The pedestrians on Queen St. were astonished and terrified the other day to see a mad bull come tearing down the street at an alarming rate. The enraged animal had escaped from a butcher who was leading it. It rushed with fury into the yard of the soldiers barrsuks, when the pet bear of the I. S. C. met its view. With a snort the bull dashed madly at the soldiers' pet and tossed him lightly in the air with apparent ease. The soldiers at once came to the rescue or bruin would soon have been a carcass. Two rifles shots at a distance of twelve yards stretched the infuriated animal lifeless.
