THE TONGUE.
"The tongue, tongue, small and weak, Can crush and kill," declared the Greek.
"The tongue destroys a greater hero," The Turk asserts, "than does the sword."
The Persian proverb wisely saith, "A lengthy tongue—an early death."
"Or sometimes takes this form instead,
"Don't let your tongue out of your head."
"The tongue is a great word, whose speed, Says the Chinese, "outstrips the steed." While Arab shows this import,
"The tongue's great strength is in the heart."
From Hebrew we learn the saying, "Though feet should slip, ne'er let the tongue."
The sacred writer counsels the whole,
"Who keeps his tongue doth keep his soul."
—Rev. Philip Burroughs, Strong.

Select Tale.
MARKED DOWN.
"Take my advice, Jen, it's as much as your place is worth—don't go."
"But I promised, Joe, and when a fellow has given his promise, it hadn't o'ter to be broken—specially to his mother."
"Well, maybe your right as far as the old woman is concerned, but then the boss's orders. 'No man leaves these shops till this business is finished,' Jem told me afore 'leven, if it ain't nigh twelve, and you know well 'nough what'll follow: you'll be 'marked down' for the week. I won't promise you another."
And the rough, middle-aged machinist, Joe Walton, drew his brawny foot beginning bare arm across his wrinkled forehead, whistled softly and applied himself closer to his task.

Jem Mather was a slender youth, aged 17, learning his trade, and receiving also a paltry stipend, little enough for him to exist upon, but from it he had saved enough to bring his little pale faced mother from the crowded city of New York to his native town.

The world had not dealt fairly with Jem and his mother.
Walter Mather, the father, was an honest, intelligent, hard working mechanic who had put something by for a rainy day.
But he died, and the little pale faced mother, who kept the shop, was left with the very day's kindly father was killed by an explosion at the mills the bank wherein his little savings lay was declared insolvent.

Jem was 10 years old then, and for four years he did what he could to help his mother keep the wolf from the door.
He was, like his mother, never strong, and the lines of want and care became engraved forever upon his young face.
At 14 a gentleman became interested enough in him to send him west, and to give him another place in his home to do plain sewing.

Three years had passed.
Jem was apprenticed for four years.
He had one more year to serve, and then he would be earning and receiving the wages of a man.
One year more! How Jem said it over and over to himself! Then he would send for his mother, and they would be so happy.

The wife of Mr. Hart, the gentleman who sent Jem west, and with whom Mrs.
Mather made her home, failed in health and died, and Mr. Hart decided to go abroad. To break up his home. He recommended the little woman to other friends, but just then came such a heart rending letter from her one lamb, her boy Jem, that she decided to go to him. Mr.
Hart hardly approved, but he saw the mother's aching heart showing through her eyes, and placing $100 in her hand and procuring a ticket for her to the west, he said, "Go, my dear, and tell Jem that his mother is coming home, and that she will be with him in a few days."

Some one led her away at length.
Come with me, said the rough kindly man, filled with the love of his mother.
The news had been borne to the shop at once, and Jem's best friend came.
Yes, the little mother still lives; the pale face, whiter grown, and the dark eyes with a look from which the light has not all faded, seem always trying to understand.
Kind friends have not left her wholly desolate.
"The boys' care for her for the sake of the lad who was 'marked down'—Mrs.
S. G. Hackett in Detroit News.

Keep the Sabbath.
The special danger of our times is not in the direction of over-rigidity in the observance of the Lord's Day. We need now to be far more on our guard against losing it altogether. And I would warn those who are advocating the giving up of a large portion of it to amusement of the sure result of such a movement.
The man is stronger than the woman.
If the day should ever come to be devoted to amusement it will soon be claimed by labor. The religious character of the day must be maintained, if we would preserve it from becoming an ordinary working day, and if it ever comes to that, the workman will be the greatest sufferer.—Rev. Wm. M.
Taylor, D.D.

Look on the Bright Side.
The bright side is the right side. The times may be hard but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine and not the cloud that makes the flower. The sky is blue ten times when it is black once.
You have troubles; so have others.
Trouble gives sinew and tone to life—fortitude and courage to men. That would be a dull sea, and the sailor would never get skill where there was nothing to disturb the surface of the ocean.
What though things look a little dark, the lane will turn, and night will end in a broad day. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than in a whole hemisphere of clouds and gloom.

Enthusiasm is one of the most powerful engines of success. When you do a thing, do it with a will, do it with your might, put your whole soul into it, stamp it with your own personality. Be active, be energetic, be enthusiastic and faithful, and you will accomplish your object. Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm.

Be such a man, live such a life that if every man were such as you, and every life a life like yours, this earth would be God's paradise.—Phillips Brooks.

Local & Foreign Items.
A woman at Atchison, Kansas, sets a chair at the table every day for her husband, who died more than a year ago. In his plate she puts a bouquet of flowers, and the table service, which is usually inlaid so as to be passed unperceived into the large being breathed forth again into the poisoned air.
And thus it immediately and directly induces the seeds of infectious disease and death.
The cigarette given everywhere to be prohibited, if the young lady of our country, who are giving themselves up to the habit of smoking the killing nuisance, and who have not sense enough to do otherwise, would be preserved to rear a manhood of something like vigor. For all people, our lawmakers have the least moral courage when a real evil is to be done with regard to hardly able to hope that the Frankfort example will be generally followed. Public opinion must be relied upon, and yet this is itself perverted, so that the result is a mixture of both cigarette and cigar, to say nothing of all sorts of pipes—Church Union.

Drinking a Farm.
My hopeless friend, while you are stirring up the sugar in a tea-cup glass of gin, let me give you a full and complete view of the free, independent life of the farmer, but have never been able to get enough money together to buy a farm, but this is just where you are mistaken. For several years you have been drinking a good improved deal of gin, and you are now drinking a gale. If you doubt this statement, figure it out yourself. An acre of land contains 43,560 square feet. Estimating for common wheat, you will find that it will yield you a bushel of wheat for every square foot, or one cent for ten square feet. Now pour down the gale and imagine you are sowing wheat on a square foot of land, and you will find that you can get five or six bushels of wheat for every square foot of land, or one cent for ten square feet. Put down that glass of gin; there's dirt in it—use a trowel to dig out the dirt, and you will find a bushel of good rich dirt, worth $43.56 per acre.

The Reason Why.
It is a surprise to many that the Premiers of the several Provinces should be taking an active part in the present Dominion election.
The reason is found in the resolutions adopted at the Interprovincial Conference, held at Quebec in 1887, at which time some 20 prominent members of the Government, One of these resolutions was as follows—"That having reference to the agitation on the subject of the trade relations between the Dominion and the United States, this Inter-provincial Conference, desiring to represent the opinion of all political parties, desired to record its opinion that unrestricted reciprocity would be of advantage to all the Provinces of the Dominion."
"That this conference is of opinion that a fair measure providing, under proper conditions, for unrestricted reciprocity between the Dominion and the United States would not lessen their advantages on the part of our people, and on the contrary would even serve to increase them." At the same time, in connection with an adjustment of the fishery dispute tend to happily settle grave difficulties which have from time to time arisen between our mother country and the United States."

Imp. Fed. in the House of Commons.
In the British House of Commons, last week, Howard Vincent moved that the government at the earliest opportunity inform the British colonies to a conference in London to debate the best means of forming a silver union. His contention was that the federation was only to be obtained through commercial union.
Sir Lyon Playfair criticised the motion as covering the protectionist movement. He argued that owing to the varied interests of the colonies a silver union was impracticable.
He quoted statistics showing the increase of British trade during the general trade recession, and contended that it would be most injudicious to arrest the reaction in America against the protectionist movement by the McKinley bill by imposing differential duties against America for the benefit of the colonies. Considering all the circumstances there was no reason to justify parliament in sending the colonies to a conference. He expressed the hope for an ultimate union of the colonies on a free trade basis.

Mr. Lowther declared there was no real free trade party in America, and that the whole world, with the exception of England, was becoming protectionist. He said, "Unless we give our colonies the same protection we had better make up our minds to abdicate the imperial position." Mr. Goschen, chairman of the exchange, said whatever might be the fate of the motion England had no desire to influence the Canadian elections. He sympathized with some points of Vincent's speech. He believed the increasing desire for a closer union between England and the colonies ought to be fostered; still he hoped that the surprise of making protection would not retard the union of the colonies.
While he granted that the country must be prepared for some great changes in the interests of that union, colonies must understand that it was impossible for England to tax corn. There was no likelihood, he said, that the colonies would come to a conference on a free trade basis. There were too many differential duties and he failed to see how they could be imposed. It seemed to him therefore that a conference would be a waste of time and money, and he gave his invitation to follow a "will-of-the-wisp." Mr. Vincent withdrew his motion.

The Standard says: "The debate on Mr.
Vincent's motion will be a useful and interesting one, and will give the highest practical interest to the discussion."
"Standing with reluctant feet Where the brook and river meet," is a period of "mildness" which is perilous in the extreme to a vigorous, healthy man. Excessive exposure, at certain times, which induces irregularities, has wrecked many a fair young life. To all afflicted with derangements of a urticarial nature Dr. Pierce's Prescription is of inestimable value. It is the only medicine for urticaria, and is safe, and under a positive guarantee from the signature, that it will give satisfaction in every case or money refunded. The medicine has been printed on the bottle wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Minard's Liniment cures Dandruff.
We think that the little city of Frankfort, in Kentucky, deserves no small praise for one thing its authorities have recently done. A law has been enacted, with the purpose of enforcing it, that, cigarette shall no longer be in the corporation! Certainly a bold move, especially in a tobacco raising State, and one that deserves universal imitation. The smoking of tobacco in any form is injurious to health, and even prejudicial to morale, but the cigarette is particularly so.
The smoke of the cigarette, when it is paper-wrapped, combines with the tobacco smoke, and is usually inhaled so as to be passed unperceived into the lungs being breathed forth again into the poisoned air.
And thus it immediately and directly induces the seeds of infectious disease and death.
The cigarette given everywhere to be prohibited, if the young lady of our country,
be preserved to rear a manhood of some-
hardly able to hope that the Frankfort ex-
itself perverted, so that the result is a mixture of both cigarette and cigar, to say nothing
of all sorts of pipes—Church Union.

it out yourself. An acre of land contains 43,560 square feet. Estimating for com-
square foot, or one cent for ten square
feet. Now pour down the gale and im-
in it—use a trowel to dig out the dirt, and
you will find a bushel of good rich dirt, worth $43.56 per acre.
