The New Year.

Hid in its roots among the untrodden hills;

God show thee how its sweetness every hour

Grows only as His breath thy spirit fills !

Behold, the New Year beckons, like a star,

Till all His stars as suns within thee rise!

A splendid mystery of the unfathomed skies:

God guide thee through His mystic spaces far,

The New Year beckons; He too, beckoning,

Take from His hand all blessings of the years,

And of the blossoming, starred eternities.

Nearly a hundred years ago, Hahnemann, the inventor of homoepathy, asserted that all diseases was produced by the presence in the human system of a minute insect, and that the morbid symptoms caused by this insect could be cured by remedies almost infinitely weak. Of course the microbe of modern physicians is not the imaginary mits to which physicians is not the imaginary mite to which Habnemann attributed all disease, but it is 17th—Charles E.
