It, at once, becomes evident that the accumulation of condemned cars cannot go on indefinitely, for space would fail to store them, aside from the value of the iron in them. To get out the iron and save the wood for fuel would cost more than the latter is worth. The only resource therefore is a holocaust once in a while, to reduce the accumulation, and turn out a great quanity of iron to the "Stores Account."

The Duty of the Hour. To the Editors of the Carleton Sentinel:

I have always been a defender of the Scott Act. Many discussions are listened to in my office for and against the law, and it is amusing to hear the opinions of some men. There are advocates of high licence, of free rum, of the people's rights, of total prohibition, Scott Act, etc. Regardless of the result and withthe drinking of them as a beverage, is bad, will take effect upon the minds of remen or women. ourselves in the wreck of a train, but to be summoned to the scene is another matter.

It was the good luck of waiting train-men, passengers, and others at McAdam Junction, last Saturday noon, to receive a cordial invitation from Mr. Haggarty to go with him out to the rear of his domain, and see the actual demolition of the cars. None were loath to accede to such a request, and off we went. While we are going over to the spot it may not be amiss to explain a bit how the official could have a voluntary "smash-up" on his hands.

To the Edutors of the Carleton Sentinel:

For the benefit of my dear old N. B. friends, I would like to tell them something about this city. Hunteville, is eituated in the northern part of Alabama, and has a population of 9,000. Some claim for this city the title—"Garden of the South." However, it is well supplied with beautiful old-fashioned residences and magnificent gardens. The vegetation of the South is much grander than that of the North. The most beautiful shade trees are to be found growing here everywhere, and in riding round through on his hands.
