SAMUEL & JAMES WATTS,

Gone, but Not Forgotten. (Written to the memory of our much beloved Pastor, Rev. S.J. Archibald, aged 89 years.) Dead! 'tis but one more in heaven, One loved one that we miss on earth; But higher, holier aims are given, And purer, sweeter thoughts have birth.

The friend we loved is gone-Not lost, but gone before— Life's toils are o'er, life's battles won; He waits for us at heaven's door.

He eleeps—our darling sleeps— Within the dark and ellent tomb; But Jesus his pure spirit keeps, Beyond this vale of death and gloom. We'll dry our falling tears,
And calm our throbbing breast;
Our feeblest cry our Father hears, And to earth's weary ones gives rest.

Our Father gently breaks the chain.
And bids us high and higher rise— For earthly loss is heavenly gain. But, Oh! at times 'tis hard to bear, Our fainting hearts will sigh and moan Under the load of grief and care That's in that plaintive word-slone.

And shall we then forget our friend Because our darling does not come? Never, till life's great work shall end, And we shall meet in our palace home.

Sacred to us are the prayers he said,
His parting words memorials sweet;
But never again tid death's knell has rung
Will our hearts, in love, responsive beat. And yet we don't despair; We'll strive to meet the friend we love,

Where all is glorious, bright and fair, In realms of light above. -N. B. B. Jacksonville, May 20th, 1891.

Boys, Read this Statement! The evil wrought by alcoholic drinks is now acknowledged and proclaimed by all the organs of public opinion. It undermines health, enfeebles the will, coarsens the mind and inflames animal passions. It separates husbands and wives, divides families, and deprives children of the influence which nothing else can supply. It lowers the standard of morals, fills prisons and insane asylums with its victims, and feeds the germ of corruption in the body politic.
