LA GRIPPE.-We are having the grip again. It has been discovered that this disease is the devil, pathologically clothed. It is a congeries of hoofs and horns and barbs and bristles and brimstone and mulediction supraphysically expressed. It is simultaneously singular and Sawed Spruce Lumber, plural. It has several million self-contradictions. The down of it is up and verse vice (that Latin is right). You can have the grip a dozen times at the same time. The leading symptoms this maladies are those antithical to them it moves backwards and forwards synchronously still maintaining its integcity. It is a compilation of the diseases they have in bell. It is uncurably curtole and curably incurable. You can ay your prayers and have the grip at the same time. Men of the world, who are not insane, swear luridly and loudly when they've "got it," while women and preachers with it cuss internally. It is ricked not to swear when you have the grip. I knew one man who tried to stay good while he had it and very soon he had to explain the matter to His Hoofness in person. I never knew a man so tenacious of his honor that he wasn't willing to "lose his grippe." The versatility of grip is limited only by the meanest kinds of a disease in the world. When you treat it, you had better not do it. But if you are whelmed with an influx of therapeutic inspiration, advance backward in your proceedings to the end or beginning as the case may be or not be. You can treat it from before backward, or from behind forward, or sideways, or perpendicularly, or diametrically, or circumferentially, singly or doubly, distributively or collectively, concretely or abstractly, low-pressure or
