Detectives are more feared and hated by law breakers than the regular officers, and I knew if my business were known, as it seemed it was, it was for the present. Beside, the work I had undertaken was finished, so I concluded to go due north till I struck the railroad stop the first train I saw, go to the next station, then telegraph back for my grip and continue my journey west.

"It was now toward morning, and I concluded I had better make myself scarce before daylight reveled my whereabouts. I struck out rapidly for the north, but when the hot sun came out and with most of the time nothing to show me my local ity, I lost my reckoning and must have taken a northwesterly course. Thus it was long in the afternoon when I sighted telegraph poles and knew I must be near the railroad. Taking out my climbers, which, with telegraph instruments in case of some emergency I always carried with me during my trips, I climbed the pole, cut the wires and telegraphed to the station east to stop the next train where a white flag was flying from a telegraph pole. I then tacked my handker-chief to the pole and slid down. I was so overcome with hunger and fatigue that I knew this precaution was necessary, for I might drop to sleep and fail to hear

The Drunkard's Posterity. Demme studied ten families of drinkers and ten families of temperate persons. The direct poeterity of the ten families of drinkers included fifty-seven children. Of these, twenty-three died in the first weeks and nonths of their life, six were idiots, in five children a striking backwardness of their longitudinal growth was observed, five were affected with epilepsy, five with inborn diseases. One boy was taken with chorea and became idiotic Thus of the fifty-seven children and the children of dren of drinkers only ten, or 17.5 per cent., showed a normal constitution or development. DEAR SIRS,—I have used your Burdock Blood Bitters for biliousness and sick headache and never neglect to praise it. It brings the flush of health to one's cheeks, and I recommend it highly. Annie Beach, Stevevaville, Ont.
