Talks on Temperance. The statement of the Brewers' Gazette that America manufactures 31,000.000 barrels of beer in a year is startling. Who drinks it? Half the people of the country never touch it. Another one fourth drink much less than the half barrel, which would be there proportion. Possibly an eighth or three sixteenth drink their half barrel. The rest goes to feed the oraving of the "old guard" of the saloons.

Of this old guard every city has its quota. We know its members by eight.
