Fair Play also says he cannot see where be only a business transaction, receiving only what we pay for. I contend the I.O.F. to be a Benevolent and Fraternal Society second to none, and proclaim it boldly over my own signature. Allow me to use a clipping cut from The Independent Forester, of April,

IS FRATERNITY MORE THAN A NAME?

This is a question that is frequently asked by those who are outside the Order and unacquaintd with its operations. They are, as their question implies, somewhat skeptical as to the exercise of the fraternal and benevolent principles by the membership of the Order. They look upon insurance as a purely business matter, and if they form their experiences of straight line companies, there can certainly be excuse for not having discovered anything resembling fraternity in ing discovered anything resembling fraternity in the business methods of these institutions. Nor are the companies to be in the slightest degree blamed for this. Their connection with their policy holders is purely a business arrangement If the premiums are paid, the insurance is maintained; if not the policy lapses, and that is the end of it Other policy holders in the same company do not know, and do not care to know, who else are insured in it; there is no fraternal and social bond between policy holders, and the personal interests of one in no way concern others.

In the I. O. F. is is different. We claim to be a fraternal as well as a beneficiary Order, and we study, when the necessity arises and the op-portunity offers, to vindicate our right to the title. Hundreds of our members are ready to testify their indebtedness to the fraternal prin cipie. Let anyone but read the column of "Acknowledgments" in the Forester, and he will Shiktehauk is progressing favourably.

knowledgments" in the Forester, and he will learn that the acknowledgments are not only for the amount of the policy that was promptly paid but also for the kindness and sympathy so clearly shown by the members of the Order to the departed brother and his afflicted family. To make our point clearer, permit us to give some instances that have come under our notice in the work on the new bridge over the Big Shiktehauk is progressing favourably.
