We have no querrel with the econom who find a growing import trade more esti factory than an advancing expert trade. But it is always a greater pleasure to us to announce an increased sale of Canadian products abroad than an increased coasumption of foreign products at home. It is indeed pleasant to know that we are able to buy, but there is some satis action, to knowing that we are able year by year to produce the excess of imports up to some fireen or twenty millions appears to be nominal and in year of rapid railway construction even a larger balance may not mean increased current obligations.
