> There was a lengthy debate on the above, the whole to consider accounts against the action as unfair to the Parish which, while perfectly willing and able to take care of claim should be m de upon the parish. This family had never been a parish charge. He thought the Dr's charges too bigh. They would be willing if necessary to provide for the children; the mother was quite able to take care of herself. Mr Munro said they could only determine if Dr Ross had authority to render the medi-cal service and if so for what amount he could sue the parish for. They should move cautiously in the matter and consider well as to the doctor's authority be'ore they fixed a claim of $140 upon Brighton. He seemed to think that the overseers were liable down to the time the letter was sent from Hendercon; knowing that he was attending the woman they should have notified the doctor that his services would not be allowed as a parish charge.

Mr. Saunders agreed generally with the views expressed by Mr. Munro. If they determined that the Parish was liable the overseers could not go on and collect from the Sargefield property. It looked to him as if, in view of all the information they had gained that the Parish was liable to the doctor.
