U.u. Brymer had listened to Coun Day w. h much estisfaction; he had not the plea sure of a personal acquaintance with Mr J.ck, but from what he knew of him through the papere, believed bim to be an enterpris ing genttleman. He would move that he be ben d at the Board.

C up. Tweeddale this was a question on which the Council should act cooly and carefully. The better way, he thought, was to spp int a committee of one councillor from each parieb, who might weigh the matter thoughtfully and report. It had been said that Mr. Jack was here and wanted to get away; it was parliamentary in all such cases to g ve notice of motion, so that time might be afforded members to get an understanding of the subject. It was hardly possible that Mr Jack could expect a definite conclusion by that Council, on a matter so greatly affec ting the interests of the county, without taking time to consider its probable effect. However the matter could be opened up and the co umittee, after bearing Mr Jack, be able to report. Coun Day had stated that that Council had no rights in the common, but the gentlemen represented by Mr Jack must think differently or they would not be there with there present propestion; at least their act shows that they thought it courteous at least, to get concent of Council So far as the Grand Falls was concerned, scientific men saw in them vast power going to waste, and he personally would like to see this power atilised to great results; be would tavor any _ :asure to develope the power, but still they thould not proceed too hastily, He believed the encouragement of material industries and progression, still far seeing men might scoure those lands and then speculate on them. They had no guarantee as to what developements in the way indicated would be some little work done, and then the company granted.

Coun Tweeddale said that from a conver estion had with Mr Jack, he learned that the right to the lands was not vested in the with, part by the government for the benefit of what was then Colebrook, but now known as Grand Falls, and therefore now the property of the whole county. It would be remembered that when equatters were taking pos session of the commons, a memorial was forwarded to government asking them to gran said lands to the county; what had become of the memorial he did not know, but had givernment complied with its terms then would have been possible for that Council to comply with the request of the company. As i. was now the county could get no benefit with. from those lands, it was therefore their in serest to place them in the hands of those who would develop their latent powers, at the same time being careful to guard the counsy's interest. The lands should not be allow ed to pass into the company's control, without a guarantee that there would be such an Granted. investment as would secure important indussrice. Four thousand dollars was a small matter for capitalists, it by that expenditure they could obtain the lands, slose them up. or force people to pay a high price for them. safe course was to make the guarantee of the expenditure $10 000 instead of $4 000.

Ooun Ryan waked bow the $10,000 was to 1 -y would start some manufacturing enter-

Coun Brymer understied that before the empany got the lease they were to expend $10,000; he did not care what kind of work they did, but they would have to do the smount named, before getting the lease. The county had not the sole right in those lands but merely a moral claim, and when the company expended $10,000, they would consent to a quit claim and a release of whatever rights the county had; an individual could deed sway his land forever, but the Council could not do that, all it could do was to lease its rights. While the land had been set apart for Grand Falle, still that Council controlled it for the purpose, for which it was wet apart, and it was the coly power that had the right to consent to a lease. Moved by Coun Brymer, seconded by Coun Day, that the petition of Mr Jack be complied with, with the exception that the amount of $4,000, mentioned in said petition. be changed to $10,000, and the county seal and signature of the warden and secretary

That Board appointed men competent to collect and make returne, but many parties are dilatory, and some from -pite will not pay the collector, but to prevent him getting his comm seion will go and pay the Secretary-Treasurer. The Secretary Pressurer had no right to receive taxes. A delit quent migh go to the Sec Treas after the his s are in the hands of the Col. Justice, and that official might fail to notify the justice, and so unnecessary trouble and cost was whose duty it was to collect the taxes, and the Scoretary had no right to interfere. Let the collector do his duty and make his rebe no conflict. Of course, in this matter the urns to the Sec-Treas and then there would Secretary-Treasurer was only carrying ou the old custom, but it was a bad one and should be stopped. It might seem hard for the See Tress to refuse to accept, still when names are on the delinquent lies, and that list goes into the hands of the collecting jussice, the Secretary Treas should refuse to reserve taxes, and this would prevent al croable and confliction in the accounts. Coun Barker hoped the Sec Treas would not think that be was reflecting on him; h his heart he had done thus to accomodate the The Sec-Treas expressed thankfulness Coun Barker for his resolution, as its passage would save him a great deal of trouble. Coun Tweeddale said it might possibly inferred from what had been said, that the Secretary had been doing something that we wrong and prohibited. But this was not so until this resolution passed, he felt bound i receive any taxes paid, before the list wen into the collecting justices hand . He, Twee ddale, was in favor of the resolution, ar made the remarks he did in order to remov any impression that might be entertained that the Sec-Treas had beretofore been acting in a blameworthy manner The old system led to deficulty in tracing up accounts. The amount of the precept was known, and under this new system they could see at a glance by the returns what had been collected. Br as it has been, sometimes it happened the list, say $30, whereas when it was issued was $35; this discrepancy would require research, and eventually is would be found that the $5 had been paid the Secretary Treasur

Coun Brymer thought that the inference from Coun Tweeddale's remarks wuld be rather that the Sec Treas was to blame, than otherwise. That officer, he believed, deserve no censure ; the money's were all accounted for, and what he had done was merely t accomodate those who desired to pay him

The Warden said that the question assessing and collecting meant revenue ob tained. The annual examination of receipts and expenditures never tailed to be of interest to the rate payers. It was the duty of that council to see that the payments were properly made, expended and accounted for, irrespective of whom it might censure Whether it was owing to a defect in the law. under which the assessment was made, or owing to the dishonesty of the people, there was certainly a great amount of dissatisfaction existing. There was $2,000 or $3,000 on delinquent lists. during the past decade, not accounted for. This, he believed, was largely owing to the fact that the old law regarding assessing and collecting was full of defects. The law said the collect or must make return, and he believed it was lay the blame on the council; he believed the trouble occurred either from the present being a bad system, or else in the manner in which it was carried out. Coun Brymer was not up in parliamentary procedure, but he believed that a reply to the speech from the throne was always in order He felt his inability to do the matter justice but would presume to give a few suggestions on this matter of so much importance. The statement had been made, and would be spread broadcast, whe h r it was right or wrong, and that by their chief chicer, th . $2,000 or $3,000 deling tent taxes was not accounted for.
