In the United States, according to th Springfield Republican, "some 9,800 murders, 190 lynchings, and only 132 legal executions is the ugly story which the past year tells of the prevalence of crime and the faulty administration of justice." This means that one out of every fifty-one murderers is illegally executed, and one out of every seventy-tour is put to death according to a legal sentence. It moreover frequently happens that the lyn chers execute the wrong man. In these figures there is much food for reflection, and the conclusions are anything but creditable to the great Republic.
