A dividend of eight per cent. was declared during the first week in February by the Montreal Cotton Company. This is the usual dividend and amounts to $112,000, the capital stock having been increased to $1,400,000. Last year a surplus of $59,000 was carried over for contingencies, and this year the surplus is over $85,000, according to report. The gross profits were thus $197,000, or a profit of over 14 per cent. And this on a stock which is said to contain a small percentage of water. Surely there is no need for Canadian cotton manufacturers to complain of hard times or insufficient protection.
