Poetry.

The Decisive Hour.

You stand to-day at an angle,
Where divergent pathways meet,
And one looks rugged and toilsome,
And one seems smooth to the feet;
But the rough road leadeth upward
To the hills of truth and light,
The other ever downward
Unto the vales of night;
And a voice crieth:
"Choose ye! Choose ye!"

One road is strewn with flowers,
And sweet with rare perfumes;
But noxious are the odors
Of those deceitful blooms;
And many are the pitfalls
That lie the path along;
Though mirthful the wayfarer,
Soon hushed is his gay song;
While stays the moment—
"Choose ye! Choose ye!"

Who takes the upper pathway
Must tread the briars among,
Yet mounting up, triumphant
Shall voice the victor's song.
The heights he gains are vocal
With anthems from on high;
The fragrant winds that fan him,
Seem bringing heaven nigh.
Oh, heed the warning:
"Choose ye! Choose ye!"
—META E. B. THORNE, in Banner of Gold.

Canada, Land of the Free!

There's a land in the north where the rivers are flowing
In beauty and majesty on to the sea;
And the bright sun of heaven its glory is showing—
The land that is dearest of all lands to me.

CHORUS—Then here's to the land of mountain and river,
Stretching in glory from sea unto sea;
God save our heritage, now and forever,
Canada, Canada, land of the free!

When our sires, brave and true, in the wilderness planted
The standard of liberty, trusting in God,
Though it was but a home on free soil that they wanted,
They founded our country, a continent broad.
CHORUS—Then, &c.

Let us tell to the world, both in song and in story,
How bravely our fathers fought, free men to be;
And tho' thousands have fallen on battle fields gory,
Defending their birthright, the land still is free.

CHORUS—Then, &c.

Select Tale.

AN AWKWARD FIX.

'Do you think two girls ought to be born so exactly alike?' said Charlie Dacre, ruefully twisting up a cigarette.

The other man laughed.

'Are you talking of those two Dennison girls? They're not exactly alike.'

'It's all very well for you, but I haven't your long sight, and I declare to you if I see either of them at a little distance or in a bad light I can't tell which is which. I am going to a party to-night given by the respected parents of my Dennison, and I positively dread it.'

'Perhaps they play tricks on you,' said Ballantyne. 'One of them is rather skittish.'

Charlie got himself up that night with extraordinary care, and as he was a good looking fellow he presented a rather striking appearance as he entered Mrs. Dennison's drawing rooms. He had been detained, so that most of the guests had arrived when he came, and his inamorata was nowhere to be seen. But shortly after he had paid his respects to the host and hostess, the daughter of the house, prettily dressed in white and blue, came up. Dacre begged for a dance—two dances.

'I m so sorry,' said she, 'but I've nothing vacant till the lancers. You're a little late, Mr. Dacre, you see,' with a slight accent of reproach as she gave him her card. Charlie apologized in the humblest terms, and the girl bestowed a smile on him as she was led away.

Dacre went to seek her in good time for his lancers. She sat on an ottoman in a distant part of the room, where the drooping folds of a curtain formed a shade from the glare of the lights. The blue and white of her filmy gown stood out against the dark background. Dacre hastened across the room to her.

'Miss Dennison—my dance,' he said eagerly. 'May I?'

She turned her pretty face and arched her eyebrows in surprise.

'Yes,' said Charlie, 'the lancers—you promised—oh, I beg your pardon. You're your cousin—I mean, the other Miss Dennison—and, of course, I haven't seen you before.'

Then, recovering from his confusion before the young lady could speak, he added:

'I hope I'm not too late to get a dance, Miss Dennison?'

Having secured this, he sought the other Isabel.

'Why in the fiend's name do they dress alike?' he muttered in nervous fear of another mistake. He might be continually coming across the one he didn't want, like a recurring decimal. Several times he bore down on a fair girl in blue and white, but turned away, deciding that he had only come on an Isabel in another place. The lancers had begun It was in full swing before he came suddenly on a sofa where sat Isabel.

'Miss Dennison,' he stammered, 'I'm so sorry'—

'Pray don't apologize,' said she coldly. 'I assure you the delay is not of the slightest moment.'

'Indeed, it was quite unintentional,' said the unfortunate Charlie in despair. 'I have been looking for you'—

'I have been sitting here the last ten minutes, and you passed me just now.'

'I saw a blue and white dress,' acknowledged Charlie, 'but some people came between it and me. Won't you forgive me and dance this? It isn't too late.'

'I think my mother wants me,' said Isabel, rising with dignity.

'May I take you to her?'

'No, thank you.'

Charlie only got pardoned when everybody was going. He was mad with himself, but could not bring himself to acknowledge the real reason of his apparent neglect. He was sensitive about these constant mistakes. They went on happening, of course, which he dreaded, the other turning haughty and offended. He offered some flowers to a Dennison girl one day and she said demurely, 'Are you sure they were meant for me?'

In the old frontier days hundreds of pioneers were tortured and burned at the stake by cruel Indians. The tortures endured by these martyrs must have been something horrible.

There are thousands of men to-day who are being slowly tortured to death at the stake of disease. Their bodies cry out but in a language that only the sufferers themselves can hear. When a man is suffering in this way his body cries out with an aching head, a sluggish body, muscles that are lax and lazy, a brain that is dull, a stomach that disdains food and nerves that will not rest.

A wise man will heed these warnings and will resort to the right remedy before it is too late. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the appetite keen and hearty. It invigorates the liver. It promotes the natural processes of secretion and excretion. It makes the digestion and assimilation perfect. It purifies the blood and fills it with the life-giving elements of the food. It tears down old and worn-out tissues and replaces them with the firm, muscular tissues of health. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It is the best nerve tonic. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, weak lungs, bronchitis, lingering coughs and kindred ailments. Found at all medicine stores. Accept no substitute that may be represented as "just as good." The "just as good" kind doesn't effect cures like the following:

"Twenty-five years ago eight different doctors told me that I would live but a short time, that I had consumption and must die," writes Geo. R. Coope, Esq., of Myers Valley, Pottawatomie Co., Kans. "I finally commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and am still in the land and among the living."

Don't suffer from constipation. Keep the body clean inside as well as outside. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and biliousness. They never gripe. All good dealers have them.

'Whom else could they be meant for?' said Charlie sentimentally.

'My cousin, perhaps—she's over there,' said the girl merrily. Dacre flushed in unutterable confusion and took back the flowers, scarcely knowing what he did. And when he turned away he met the scornful eyes of a girl who must be the Isabel he wanted because the girl he had left wasn't she. It was quite impossible to present the flowers, and he made a crestfallen escape as soon as he could.

'Hang it, I'll end all this!' he said angrily one day. 'But I shall have to be careful, if I am happily successful, that I marry the right girl. It would be awfully awkward if I didn't.

His opportunity seemed thrown into his hands, for he was invited to spend a week at a country house where the Isabel was also going with her mother. He sat next her at dinner, and to his great delight saw no other Isabel.

'We shall be a larger party to-morrow,' said the young lady. 'My cousins are coming.'

'The the—Dennisons?' Charlie almost gasped.

'Not all of them—only Isabel and Lucy.'

This was comforting. And both Isabels had such an odious habit of dressing in the same colors! Why didn't they wear different colored ribbons, like French twins?

He got along fairly well, with great care and caution. One evening he saw Isabel Dennison entering the library. He knew it was his one because she had on a gray dress, whereas her cousin had worn a green one during the day. It was too dark to see her features He followed her into the room.

'The nicest time for a chat,' he said, and she made a movement as if to leave the room, flitting toward a farther door.

'Yes, but I'm afraid I can't stay,' she said. 'I only came to fetch something I left here.'

'Well—but don't go—stay a minute,' said Dacre entreatingly. He had no doubt at all about his accuracy as to identity. Her desire to escape from him was a sure proof, let alone others, for it was precisely the desire she had shown in the last few days, and which he took as a favorable sign. 'Miss Dennison—Isabel—am I mistaken in thinking—in hoping—you know—you surely must know that I love you!'

The girl had stood still for a second, while Charlie rushed on with his declaration, but she interrupted him hastily:

'Indeed, Mr. Dacre, I'm afraid'—

'Don't say that,' said Charlie, going nearer. 'All those weeks in town—down here, when we have been thrown so much together—I surely have not been misunderstood?'

A stifled sound came from the dim figure before him, whether laugh or what he could not tell, but he suddenly started back, and in so doing came face to face with another Isabel in a gray dress.

If the earth had opened and swallowed him, Charlie would have been thankful. This was the crowning disaster. Neither Isabel stirred. Which, in heaven's name, was which? To whom had he proposed? How should he ever know he got the right Isabel?

He recognized after the first wild movement that he must save the situation. He approached the newcomer, who eyed him distainfully.

'Miss Dennison—Isabel,' he began.

'Which Miss Dennison do you intend to address, Mr. Dacre?' she demanded stifly.

'How the deuce should I know? It is nearly dark, and you both evade me.'

'You had better pursue your conversation with the lady you seem to recognize best, and I will retire.'

The other Isabel sprang forward.

'Don't be a goose, cousin,' said she, half laughing, 'and you, Mr. Dacre, wait a minute. You know very well, Isabel, it's all a mistake, and I'd have interrupted Mr. Dacre before he was so impetuous I had no time. He didn't mean me at all'—

'Mr. Dacre doesn't seem to know whom he means,' said the offended Isabel.

'I know very well when I can see them,' murmured Charlie, nearly crushed. 'Here goes for a light.'

But when a blaze of light illumined the room only one Isabel remained. Dacre took her hand.

'You are the one,' he said.

'Are you quite sure?' she asked archly.

'Ah, that's cruel! Of course I am. What will you say to me, Isabel—forgive me and'—

'Love you,' whispered Isabel.

ONE HONEST MAN.
Dear Editor—Please inform your readers, that if written to confidentially, I will mail, in a sealed letter, particulars of a genuine, honest, home cure, by which I was permanently restored to health and manly vigor, after years of suffering from nervous debility, sexual weakness, night losses and weak shrunken parts. I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thank heaven I am now well, vigorous and strong, and wish to make this certain means of cure known to all sufferers. I have nothing to sell and want no money but being a firm believer in the universal brotherhood of man, I am desirous of helping the unfortunate to regain their health and happiness. I promise you perfect secrecy. Address with stamp, WM. T. MULFORD, Agents' Supplies, P.O. Box 59, St. Henri, Que.

Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, left for England, last Saturday, where he will float a loan for $10,000,000. Half of this amount is to retire treasury bills now outstanding; the other $5,000,000 is to meet the Crow's Nest Pass subsidy and to pay for the St Lawrence canal enlargement.

Literary Notices.

Harpers Magazine for October opens with the first instalment of 'Spanish John," by William McLellan, a novel of adventure, dealing with the fortunes of the Scotch Pretenders to the throne of England. The illustrations, by Myrbach, interpret the story with unusual delicacy and sympathy. In "The Strategic Features of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea" A T Mahan presents a timely discussion of the advantages which Cuba possesses over Jamaica and other neighboring islands as a basis of naval operations for the protection of the mouth of the Mississippi, and of the proposed channel of communication through the isthmus with our ports on the Pacific. The unprecedented popularity of golf in all parts of the United States is celebrated by Caspar Whitney in "The Golfers conquest of America." A B Frost contributes a series of character studies of the humors of bad form in golfing, and a series of illustrations of correct form in using various clubs. In "The Future of Railroad Investments," W A Crane shows what has been accomplished in the process of refunding at a lower rate of interest, and the effect of the general adoption of this policy on rates of transportation. In the fifth instalment of Frank R Stockton's humerous romances of inventions, "The Great Stone of Sardis," illustrated by Peter Newell, the Polar expedition draws towards a close, and the discovery of the centre of the earth begins. The short stories are: "Mrs Upton's Device," by John Kendrick Bangs, illustrated by O Dana Gibson; "Psyche," by George Hibbart, illustrated by Albert E Sterner; and "There and Here," by Alice Brown. Charles Dudley Warner, in The Editor's Study, discusses Edward Bellamy's theories of collectivism as explained in his recent work "Equality," the education of children, and Du Maurier's "Martian." The Editor's Drawer opens with "Serena goes a-Black-berrying," by Mildred Howells.

Before and during the war in Greece no writer was so frequently quoted on the crisis as Henry Norman, of the London Chronicle. The October number of Scribner's Magazine contains Mr Norman's inside history of the diplomacy that preceded the war, now told for the first time. He was in confidential relations with the Greek Government, and his narrative is therefore of authoritative value. A visit to the front on the eve of battle is also picturesquely described. The illustrations are from Mr Norman's own photographs, among them autographed portraits of the King and his sons. 'The Workers,' Walter A Wyckoff's vivid narrative of his personal experiences as a day laborer, has called out more newspaper comment than any magazine series for many years. The first popular article ever published on 'The Newspaper as a Business enterprise' appears in this number, by J Lincoln Steffens. Like other articles in the series on 'The Conduct of Great Businesses,' it gets at the inside facts from the highest authorities. Helen Watterson Moody's second paper on 'The Unquiet Sex' discusses womens clubs. The light satire of these papers, which is used to convey sound common sense, makes them very interesting reading. The second instalment of Miss Elliott's novelette, 'The Durket Sperret' depicts a remarkable gathering of the Durket tribe at a Tennessee mountain funeral. William Henry Shelton contributes an amusing story of life in a Confederate prison camp, with the striking title, 'The Man With the Bacon Rind.' This frontispiece is Bernard Partridge's conception of a famous scene in 'Vanity Fair.'

After Many Years

A SUFFERER IS RESTORED TO HEALTH AND STRENGTH

Suffered From Weak Heart and Could Not Safely Walk Any Distance—How The Pulse of Life was Adjusted.

From the Cornwall Freeholder.

The romance of unwritten facts of real life far exceeds the rich elaborations of fiction. A peep behind the scenes would furnish us with adequate proof that there is more of care, trial and severe anxiety in human life than floats on the surface. We find many whose experience has almost incessantly fluctuated between health and sickness; little if any of this is obtruded upon the notice of the world, or breathed into human ear. You may secure the confidence of some of these sufferers who will rehearse to you dark catalogues of pains and aches that are often ill understood by the friends and inadequately treated by the physician. Thanks be to the mighty genius that discovered the now famous panacea for the ills to which humanity is subjected when suffering from impoverished blood or shattered nerve system. Thousands have, and thousands are still using to the greatest advantage Dr. Williams Pink Pills. They have passed the ordeal of experiment again and again with ever increasing honor. The following statement is from one who was rescued from seeming permanent enfeeblement and distressing heart action. Mary Fisher, of Lancaster township, Glengarry County, is a maiden lady. About eight years ago Miss Fisher was seized with weakness and a distressing sensation in the region of the heart. It was attributed to several causes, all possibly more or less true, they were overworked, exposure, etc. She was certainly weak and the action of the heart was abnormally rapid. The doctor in attendance pronounced the ailment nervous palpitation of the heart and she received treatment accordingly for two years. At this stage she took to her bed she was so low. For twelve months she lay receiving only domestic attention. She improved somewhat, however, and was able to be taken to a friend of hers near Lancaster village, Mrs. J. Hancy, where she was under medical attendance and took medicine for about three years. At the end of this time she could not safely venture to walk out even a short distance. All this time she complained of her heart. About two years ago she began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, from this date she began what proved a steady restoration of nervous energy. During the summer of 1896 the improvement was marked. She was able by the middle of the summer to do as much work and walking as most ordinary women, and so satisfactory and apparently permaneat is the cure that Miss Fisher has gone to her former home. Such are the unvarnished facts of a remarkable case. The malady was persistent, tenacious and hard to fight But the constant use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills wrought a marvellous change, which Miss Fisher's friend said might be profitably known to many others.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They renew and build up the blood, and strengthen the nerves, thus driving disease from the system. Avoid imitations by insisting that every box you purchase is enclosed in a wrapper bearing the full trade mark, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

October Ladies' Home Journal.

'Inside of a Hundred Homes,' the first of a succession of articles picturing interiors of the most artistically-furnished houses in America, is one of the notable features of the October Ladies' Home Journal. Another of special interest introduces The New Tenants of the White House' through photographs of the McKinley household. The pictures were made expressly for the magazine, and have never before been published. Lilian Bell's chat—bright and witty, it is needless to state—of her preparations and departure for Europe is also an interesting feature. It is the prelude to a series of letters Miss Bell will write to the Journal, giving her impressions of the Old World. Edward W Bok points out to young men where the best chances of success await them, and counsels young women who object to the word 'obey' in the marriage ceremony. William George Jordan tells of the 'Wonders of the World's Waste.' In a lighter vein are Charles Dana Gibson's Dickens drawing—'Caleb Plummer and his daughter'; Mary E Wilkins' sketch of a New England apple-paring bee; the conclusion of 'The Spirit of Sweetwater,' Hamlin Garland's serial, and a deliciously-reminiscent poem. There is a timely article on Hallowe'en games and pastimes, and others touching every phase of woman's work and home life. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar per year; ten cents per copy.

The population of New York is now about 2,000,916. The greatest increase has been above 75th street, due to the increased number of dwellings erected in the upper part of the city since 1880
