CARLETON COUNTY COUNCIL.

(Concluded from Last Week) Mr Forrest considered this the most important matter ever brought before the council sizes he had a seat there. He had been approached and told if he did not vote to bring the gaol to Woodstock he would never go to the council again. Disregarding such appeals he would vote according to his own conviction as to what was right; were he influenced by selfish motives he would favor Woodstock for the gaol as it would be more.

The filling its promise he asked was there an instance that could be shown where Woodstock went back on its promise.

este of the whole county. It was useless to Mr. Henderson—Much talk was made about talk about the gaol as not being connected the rate-payers being burdened; the ratewith the court house; most assuredly, if the payers knew little and cared little about the gaol was built in town, the court house figancial transactions at this board. The sothen would follow. The argument used as called poor men of the county were not burto the expense now of carrying prisoners be- dened with taxation but it was the business tween the gaol and the police magistrate men who really felt the burdens. He felt would apply equally in regard to bringing just as much interest in the back districts as prisoners from the gaol in town to the court in the town and so did the people of the town house here. The Record building cost $10, and he repudiated the implied and expressed oe.

Mr Forrest—That is the way I understand it, althor the requisition for this meeting only mentions a gaol. The interest samuelly payable would be from $1,000 to $1,500. I hen add the other expenses. They could not expense. add the other expenses. They could not expent Woodstock to give them water free as it cost the town heavily, they would have to pay for pipes and labor to secure sewerage. Again, the county property in town had never | ly. As to the way the town council acted in been assessed for taxes but was it legally ex- the Scott act matter he, at the time, gave his empt? if not and new buildings were put up then a considerable amount in taxes might have to be paid and they must remember that the town tax was five times as much as in any other parish of the county. The anshould consider not only the present but the nual expense connected with a new gaol future and look to all the probabilities of would amount to, at least, $2,000, and it if built, as on any building, there would be which would cost as much as the annual repairs on the old gaol. The several reports and statements made to this council estimated that the repairs upon the gaol, as recommend ed by the Grand Jury, would out from $1700 Barrister, Notary Public, to $2,500 and then some councillor stated that a new gaol could be built for $5,000. Now some of those estimates must have been sponsible parties would undertake to repair

The why should they go to the expense of building a new gaol, involving the large annual charges he had referred to, when for the one payment of $1,000 they could have the goal put in a proper state of repair? He must on these grounds vote against the resolution. When their constituents asked why put the county to this expense, Mr White would answer for bumacity. He did not think the people would be satisfied with such an answer. The fact was the present move is made to gratify the vanity of the people of Woodstock especially the lawyers of whom there were too many controlling affairs in the departments clared they would not be justified in plunging the county in debt and paying $2,500 a year for the benefit of the town and its lawyers. When the time came that new buildings were a positive necessity then it would be time to in the newspapers, and they had no assurance

Personally he had always felt favorable to having the gool in town. He thought sometimes councillors did not treat the town just right; it they could not all see alike they should agree to disagree and had no right to impute unworthy motives either to those who signed the requisition calling this meening or to councillors or people of the town who desired the change. He had no figures to offer but had decided that it would not pay to attempt to repair the old gool. He had been around his parish some and while many persons had told him to use his own judgment he did not happes to meet anyone opposed to building a new gool in town and did not know that if such opposition had been expressed it woulf effect his vote. He would like to see Mr Moores suggestions carried out and scource some guarantee from the town another words. The building of a new gool in the town council would act in good faith.
