Knowingnot guessing.

Instinct tells a man more, at a glance, that he needs to know, in the trying on of a ready-made hat, suit, or shoe, than his tailor could guess for him in a century. The round-shouldered person instinctively recognizes (when trid on) the suitability of the quiet, loose-fitting coat, which conceals the deforming curve of his back, even though he may not analyze the cause of such suitability, nor admit the deformity. Slender men can look stouter, short men taller, sloping shouldered men squarer, and any man more dignified or jaunty, as he desires, by an intelligent selection of standard "Fit-reform" shapes, tried on before purchased.

This does not apply to ordinary readymade clothing, in which neither these distinctive shapes, nor the workmanship, which constitutes and retains fit, are obtainable.

their very existence depended. The apostic plainty clucidates the philosophy of man's existence and scatters to the four wiads the theory of polytheism. Notice first: In Him we live. Paul here strikes the key mote of our existence. He brings us to the origin of man quite different from the cheory of Ingersol, and draws a powerful contract between the ignorance of Ingersol and the wisdom of the Apostle Paul. Paul has it right, man must first live, then he has his being. This is the Bible doctrine and the origin of man, would leave God out it accounting for the origin of man, would leave out the sun and God." The scriptures teach us that God made man and gave him the breath of lite, away back on the first pages, and away here, away back on the first pages, and away here, away back on the first pages, and over the cattle and over everything that oreep-The apostic plainly clucidates the philoso-phy of man's existence and scatters to the four made lives in the God that made him. What a profound thought! How many bright monuments of architectural skill can be now sees standing as the labor of mea's hands who now sleep in the grave. The makers and builders of them once lived, but are now dead, and their work left to dilapidation and ruia, while they in a few years are forgotten But looking back into the genealogy of nan, the workmanship of God's hard, we find a standing record which points us to the toundation stone of his existence, which shows nis Creator, not as a man who once lived and is now dead, but in whom he yet lives. Sad thought, that man should live in a God whom he sought and did not find. Paul was well versed in all Jewish science, he had once been a disciple of the faith which he now denounced; therefore, as he stands and gazes upon the fields of heathenism, thickly inhabited by earthly gods, he is overwhelmed by deep meditation, which caused his heart to heave in an oceantide of feeling for the salvation of their benighted souls. Around him in this way, the strongest woman will soon stood the exalted temples, covered with vain glory, dedicated to classic mythology, about the centre of which stood their idolatrous altar with the inscription "To the Unknown inc. It cures all weakness, disorders and displacements of the delicate internal organs. It is the greatest of all nerve tonics. It these synagogues of Grecian culture and proud philosophy and summons the mighty men to give head to the blessed gospel which tells of a known God. "Him I declare unto you, in whom we live and have our being." Paul shows that man occupies the most lofty seat in the chamber of divine providence.

Second: Ia whom we move and have our being. What a glorious thought, that sinful man should move in God. Here we fall back on the eternal purpose of God when He laid. on the eternal purpose of God when He laid the foundation of the earth, which he pro-posed to earry into effect through the endless years of eternicy. Brethren, however far man goes on the road of prosperity; however high he ascends the ladder of literature or philosophy; however deep he dives into the ocean of science, he has only made a step in the purpose of God. Again, it is wonderful to know that God is sufficiently large and infinite for Career of the great Apostle.

The apostles, as faithful heralds of the bloody cross of the dear Redeemer, went forth in the discharge of their duty, preaching the gospel to every creature, giving increase to the government which Isaiah had long before said should have no end.

Paul, then known as Saul, fought against this faith with the bloody sword of vengeance to the this faith with the bloody sword of vengeance.

Queen Elizabeth said on her death bed that she was willing to give her empire for just one hour more in this world. Tom Payne, the noted infidel, on his death bed cried out, "Remorse! Remorse!" Alexander the Great, the conqueror of all the civilized world, in the hour of death, so unwilling for his domination to cease, said, "Give my kingdom to the strong." Thus the more man achieves the more ha wants to achieve the feels.
