Poetry.

One of the Sensible Sort.

She can peel and boil potatoes,
Make a salad of tomatoes,
But she doesn't know a Latin noun from Greek;
And so well she cooks a chicken,
That your appetite 'twould quicken,
But she cannot tell what's modern from an antique.

She knows how to set a table,
And make order out of Babel,
But she doesn't know a Euripides from Kant;
Once at making cake I caught her,
A real expert must have taught her,
But she cannot tell true eloquence from rant

She has quite a firm conviction
She ought only to read fiction,
And she doesn't care for science not a bit.
She likes a plot that thickens,
And she's very fond of Dickens,
From Copperfield to Martin Chuzzlewit.

She can make her hats and dresses
Till a fellow fair confesses
That there's not another maiden half so sweet,
She's immersed in home completely
Where she keeps all things so neatly,
But from Tennyson a line she can't repeat.
(Thank goodness.)

Well, in fact, she's just a maiden
That whatever she's arrayed in
Makes her look just like the heroine of a play;
'Twould be foolish to have tarried,
So to-morrow we'll be married,
And I'm certain I shall ne'er regret the day.

Select Tale.

BOB AND MAY.

Bob and May were sweethearts.

Of course they were; that's what they had been learning ever since Bob, a stripling of 20, had come out from Tennessee to the Texas Panhandle with the family

In those days May was a bright haired, high strung little girl of 14 whom Bob never called or thought of as "red-headed."

Bob was a strong, good humored boy, not a bit afraid of work, and he had a way with him that gave him command of men and creatures. He rose rapidly in old man Love's employ from simple cow puncher to wagon boss, then foreman, and when he was only 25 went, with the approval and good will of his employer, to take the position of ranch manager for a Boston company.

All the world loves a lover. Bob was such a whole hearted one, his state of mind was so patent, he took such delight in it, wore his chains with such open pride and enthusiasm, that all Panhandle felt with and for him.

And old man Love was pleased enough with the match and greatly given to bragging of Bob as a coming adjunct to the Love greatness, until the tragedy of the one horned brindle cow which tore all things up generally, threatened to sever two loving hearts, and darken forever Bob's and May's happy horizon.

This old cow—worth perhaps $7—bobbed up at one of the roundups sporting, in addition to the BN of the Boston National, which was facetiously known as the "Bean" brand, old man Love's (xxx).

Though very uncommon, such accidents may occur in the haste and confusion of branding without necessarily implying dishonesty on some one's part. While they do sometimes result in fights and killings they are easily enough adjusted between reasonable people, since any clever cattleman can readily tell which brand is of the longer standing.

But any cowboy on the range would have told you that while old man Love was square enough himself he was a crazy crank about the sacredness of his brand. His long suit was to jump up and down and swear that it never yet was on anything that wasn't his own. He invariably claimed an animal that bore it in addition to another brand (as did this old cow) however plainly it showed as the newer of the two, though as a matter of fact his branding irons were handled by just as many careless cowboys as any other.

If Bob had known what that aged and brindle cow was going to cost him, he might perhaps have blinked his obvious duty and let old man Love have her—in the face of right and reason.

But he was not the man to be backed down by any one, and he dared the worst—and got it!

He held the cow for his company, after a fierce contest, and old man Love went home raging, to give his distorted version of the affair, issue orders that no member of his family was to speak to or of Bob from that time forth, and to remark significantly that he had far rather see a child of his married to a horse thief than to a person capable of such behavior.

Communication between the lovers had since been managed, once or twice, by the utmost stealth and secrecy. Having, by this means, been assured of his sweetheart's steadfastness and readiness, Bob sent her word by one of her father's cowboys to ride a good horse past the half way branding pen, armed himself with a license and hung around the Triple X for a week.

When May finally found the opportunity to slip away in the most careless manner, with one of the men's sombreros on and in the face of threatening weather, she received a rapturous welcome from the long banished Bob, and they promptly headed their ponies for Squire Wiley's, just the other side of Roaring creek, who was supposed to be holding himself in readiness for their visit.

What Mexican or other paid spy or what unfriendly or envious hand carried the news to old man Love will not be known, but he burst into one of his near cow camps at dinner, shortly after Bob and May's departure, like a roaring South African lion with mustard in his eye.

"The boys"—who knew well enough what was afoot, and what would be asked of them—dropped their tin cups and plates, jumped on their waiting ponies and were out of hailing distance before he fairly lit in their midst.

But old Hank Pearsall, the cook, was a new man, not long from Southwest Texas, neither knowing of nor caring particularly for Bob Holly and his love affair. So he stood at his official post, at the tail end of the chuck waggon, and gave amiable attention to the impassioned harangue and singular antics of this new and entertaining employer.

Being commanded to come along and assist in dispersing Bob and rescuing May, he mounted a serious appearing but fitful tempered buckskin colored pony, with one white eye and much symmetry of bone—as much of a character in its way as Hank was in his—and started, with considerable interest and curiosity.

They rode hard and were near overhauling the lovers within a mile of Roaring creek. But while pursuer and pursued pushed on at their utmost pace another factor was coming with a hundred times greater speed to take a hand in the game.

The dry bed of Roaring creek was just before them, beyond that a tiny rise, then an arroyo, and beyond that again the roof of the justice's house, just in sight. As Bob and May clattered over the creek bed and scrambled up onto the rise beyond, both looked back, and their ponies stopped, tossing their heads, pricking their ears and snorting at a curious humming sound that suddenly seemed to fill all the air about.

"Hurry up, darling," cried Bob, throwing out a hand to catch May's; 'It's a big storm coming from above.' But before they could ascend the slope to cross the dry arroyo in front it was running from bank to bank and brimming over with a sudden flood of red, muddy water.

And even above the noise of the flood before them they heard a sound like the angry shouting of furious multitudes. Looking backward and up the creek whence the sounds came they saw a great, tumbling, shuddering wall—pushing before it and bearing upon its crest all imaginable sorts of debris—advancing down the dry creek bed with such a thunderous onslaught that the little mound on which they stood shook and seemed fairly to lower under their feet. they looked about them. The arroyo ran into the creek below. Above, both it and the creek had flooded out until they joined. Their little mound was an island, momentarily growing smaller, surrounded on every side by raging torrents, in which were driven and whirled whole trees, full grown cattle, with sometimes a fence post whose trailing wires had caught in their barbs all manner of ghastly wreckage.

Up came the water about them; down fell the big hail.

'It's a cloudburst above, darling,' said Bob. 'It won't last long—the water won't cover this rise.'

'I'm not afraid, Bob,' said May, with very white lips. 'I'm glad I came anyhow. If we've got to die, we'll die together, and the way I've felt for the last three weeks I'm sure that's a heap better than living apart.'

Bob jumped off his pony and lifted May from hers. The hail was coming bigger and beat cruelly upon them. He wrapped his slicker about her, pushed the ponies close together and sheltered her with them and his own body as best he could.

'We won't die,' he said, 'but poor little girl, what an awful storm I've dragged you out into!'

Just then, from the farther bank of the creek, above the awful howling of the storm, came this intelligent command in old man Love's ear splitting tones:

'May Love! You come here to me this minute!' And May laughed hysterically.

'Well, he can't get at us anyway—but the hail can. Oh, look at your poor hands! Oh, Bob, I can't bear it—put the slicker back on!'

'Why, honey,' said Bob as the tears came in earnest now, 'I'd get pounded just the same anyhow, and you must let me have the comfort of keeping some of it off you—it ain't a patchin on the way your pa would do if he could get me right now.'

While the storm raged and the water rose nearly to their feet, Hank Pearsall had the almost exclusive benefit of old man Love's remarks, since only his wildest shrieks reached the young couple, who were too much absorbed in each other to heed either him or the storm very much.

These remarks disagreed with Mr Pearsall, who was notoriously a man of judgment and observation.

'What's the matter with that young feller?' he queried angrily. 'Watch him a-standin to the north'ard uv his gal, a-keeping the hail offen her! He ain't no chump! If he keep that lick up right through, he'll make a better husband'n what you ever did!'

About this time, the hail ceasing, the expectant justice came down to the farther bank of the arroyo. The water was going down visibly. but its roar was still considerable.

'Ho, Bob!' yelled the justice, above its sound, 'got your license?'

Bob took it out and waved it above his head.

Old man Love could not from where he stood hear a word, but he surmised what had been said, and the sight of the document was a livid red rag to the bull.

'I dare ye to marry 'em,' he screamed.

'I dare ye to do it!' And in an ecstasy of rage and anxiety he faced his pony down into the foaming creek among the whirling drift, where he was promptly pitched off by the terrified creature, which instantly returned. Pearsall, at the risk of his own life, had to fish him out, receiving plenty abuse for his pains and returning it with bitter irony.

In two minutes' time the shallower arroyo was fordable, though the creek, down which big drift continued to come, was not. Bob set May on her pony, mounted his own and prepared to ride out. The sight of the justice—a plains Cupid, with boots, slicker and cowboy hat—preparing to take charge of the pair was too much for old man Love, and dismounted as he was he plunged, in a delirum of rage, into the creek, sputtering and yelling:

'Stop! Hold on! You just dare!'

May hesitated, frightened, but old Hank Pearsall yanked her father out again and set him on dry land, snorting:

'Doggone ye! I pulled y' out onct before! What fer cain't ye stay out? Huh? When ye try buckin agin a boy like that, backed by a Texas norther, you're agoin to git left—don't ye know it? That kid's got a double cinch on providance! Bet ye he had this hyer storm staked out!

'Go it, feller! Go it, gal! I'm with ye every time—I'm fer ye! Yer the right sort! I wouldn't hender ye fer all the durned old snake bit fools in Texas! I'll jist gether up the scraps o' this ole eejit an tote 'em back to the ranch.'

And as May and Bob rode off, tattered beaten, draggled, but obliviously blissful and jaunty, a faint hail followed them:

'Goodby, kids—wish yer joy! Come on, ole calamity!'—Alice MacGowan in Chicago Herald.

The People's Faith

Firmly Grounded Upon Real Merit—They Know Hood's Sarsaparilla Absolutely and Permanently Cures When All Others Fail.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is not merely a simple preparation of Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and a little Iodide of Potassium.

Besides these excellent alteratives, it also contains those great anti-bilious and liver remedies, Mandrake and Dandelion. It also contains those great kidney remedies, Uva Ursi, Juniper Berries, and Pipsissewa.

Nor are these all. Other very valuable curative agents are harmoniously combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla and it is carefully prepared under the personal supervision of a regularly educated pharmacist.

Knowing these facts, is the abiding faith the people have in Hood's Sarsaparilla a matter of surprise? You can see why Hood's Sarsaparilla cures, when other medicines totally, absolutely fail.

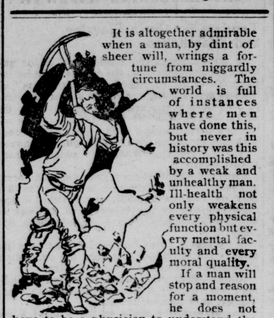
CHESTNUT & HIPWELL.

Woodstock, Nov 28, 1898.



It is altogether admirable when a man, by dint of sheer will, wrings a fortune from niggardly circumstances. The world is full of instances where men have done this, but never in history was this accomplished by a weak and unhealthy man. Ill-health not only weakens every physical function but every mental faculty and every moral quality. If a man will stop and reason for a moment, he does not have to be a physician to understand the causes of impure blood, or its far-reaching effects. When a man's digestion is disordered, his liver sluggish, his bowels inactive, the blood is deprived of the proper food elements, and the sluggish liver and bowels supply in their place, the foulest of poisons. The blood is the life-stream. When it is full of foul poisons, it carries and deposits them in every organ and tissue of the body. Bone, sinew, muscle, and flesh-tissue, the brain cells and the nerve fibres are all fed upon bad, poisonous food. Serious ill-health is bound to result. The man is weakened in every fiber of his body. He is weakened physically, mentally and morally. He suffers from sick headache, distress in stomach after meals, giddiness and drowsiness, loss of appetite and sleep, bad taste in the mouth, shakiness in the morning, and dullness throughout the day, and lassitude and an indisposition to work. Sooner or later these conditions develop consumption, nervous prostration, malaria, rheumatism, or some blood or skin disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best of all known medicines for ambitious, hard-working men and women. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It makes the appetite keen and hearty, and the digestion and assimilation perfect, the liver active, the blood pure and rich, the nerves steady, the body vigorous and the brain alert. Where there is also constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used. Both of these great medicines are for sale by all medicine dealers.

Mr Joseph A Sutton, marble polisher for Furnace & Sons, Hamilton, writes. About a year ago I fell on a piece of ice, causing a very painful injury to my shoulder. The pain troubled me with the least exertion until a few months ago, when I was advised to try Griffith's Menthol Liniment. It has completely taken out all the pain and soreness and, during the past three months, since using this remedy, the pain has not returned. I think its merits should be known by all. It is a wonderful remedy. Sold by druggists. 25 cents.

Montreal Star says, re New Brunswick election: The new leader of the Opposition will find himself at the head of a small, a compact, but let us hope a united party. There should be no difficulty in securing harmony in the caucusses of the party if the three 'cusses' who form it can once agree upon the important question of the leader ship.

THE HARTLAND BRIDGE.

ORDER IN COUNCIL PASSED.

A Deputation consisting of a number of gentlemen residents of Hartland in the County of Carleton this day attended before a committee of Council for the purpose of urging upon the Government the granting of such assistance towards the construction of a bridge over the Saint John River at Hartland as would insure the erection of such bridge.

The minutes of the proceedings upon the hearing of a previous deputation which waited upon the Government upon the same subject on the sixteenth day of March last past were read, and the views of the present deputation were placed before the committee.

It was finally proposed by the members of the deputation that a company should be incorporated to construct and manage a bridge over the Saint John River at Hartland, with the powers necessary thereto and including those hereinafter specified.

That the capital stock of the said company, should not exceed Four Thousand Dollars.

That the bridge should be a toll bridge, and that the tolls should be at all times subject to the approval of the Governor in Council, who should have the power to fix the amount thereof, and to alter the same from time to time by order in council.

That bonds should be issued upon the security of the said bridge, the principal and interest whereof should be guaranteed by the Government, the amount of such bonds not exceeding thirty thousand dollars, to be sufficient to cover the actual cost of the said bridge and the approaches, not including the land damages, if any, or cost of site which would have to be paid by the company.

That the tolls received from the said bridge should be applied in the first place to defray the cost of collecting the same; secondly, to pay or provide such reasonable sum as in the opinion of the Governor in council shall be sufficient to make the necessary rebairs of wear and tear upon said bridge; thirdly to pay the interest upon said bonds; and fourthly to provide a sinking fund for the redemption of said bonds.

That the bonds are to be issued for such terms and at such interest as the Governor in Council shall determine.

That in case any part of the said bridge shall be carried away, or damaged by ice or freshet, or otherwise the company shall, at the request and by the direction of the Governor in council, issue bonds in addition to those above provided for to an extent not exceeding five thousand dollars, payable at such times and bearing such interest as the Governor in council shall determine, the proceeds to be applied toward repairing such exceptional damage as aforesaid, the payment of the principal and interest of such bonds to be guaranteed by the Government in like manner as the first issue.

That the bridge when constructed shall be open to public travel, subject to the tolls to be fixed as aforesaid.

That the shares in the said company shall be of such amount each as the applicants for incorporation of such company shall in their petition for incorporation fix or determine, not to exceed one hundred dollars.

That the bridge is to be so constructed as not to interfere with navigation, and in so far as it may be found that it shall be necessary to procure the consent of the Dominion Government for the erection of such bridge such consent shall be obtained.

That the number of directors of the said company shall be five.

That the head office of the said company shall be at Hartland.

That the said bridge being erected in the public interest should by legislation be made free from taxation for municipal or school purposes.

That plans and specifications of the said bridge are to be subject to the approval of the Governor in Council and the engineer to be placed in charge of the construction of the said bridge is to be subject to the selection and approval of the Governor in Council.

That the bye-laws of the said company are to be subject to the approval of the Governor in Council and the Governor in Council may by Order in Council fix, revise or alter the salaries to be paid to any of the officers or servants of the said company.

That all the officers of the said company, except the Directors thereof, shall be subject as to their appointment and continuance in office to the approval of the Governor in Council and in case the company shall at any time neglect or fail to appoint such officers as the Governor in Council shall deem necessary for the management of such company and collection of said tolls, the Governor in Council may thereupon appoint such officers to hold office for such time and at such salary as the Governor in Council may by order direct and determine.

That the meetings of the said company shall be held annually on such day as the petitioners for incorporation shall fix or determine.

That in the Act incorporating the said company power shall be given to the said company to expropriate, subject to the usual conditions and restrictions in such cases, any lands or right of way which the said company or the Governor in Council shall deem necessary or desirable for the purposes of the said company to enable them to erect and maintain said bridge and the approaches thereto.

That the net income derivable from the tolls of said bridge after providing for the payment of interest, sinking fund and repairs and otherwise as aforesaid shall be applied, so far as the same may extend, toward the payment of interest upon the paid up capital stock of the said company, up to five per cent.

That in case the said bonds have been paid off and satisfied from the sinking fund provided from said tolls the Governor in Council shall not abolish the said tolls without providing for the repayment to the stockholders of the amount of stock subscribed and actually paid up by each stockholder.

That the Governor in Council shall have power by Order in Council to fix and determine all conditions of the contract under which said bridge shall be constructed and the construction of such bridge shall be commenced within the year 1899 and as soon as reasonably practicable after the formation of the said company and shall be completed without any unreasonable delay.

That such legislation shall be promoted by the Government at the next meeting of the legislature as shall provide for the incorporation of such company as aforesaid and as shall enable the Governor in Council to guarantee the issue of the said bonds and as shall be necessary to enable the company on the one hand and the Governor in Council on the other to give effect to all the conditions and provisions and proposals above set forth.

And the Committee of Council having considered the matter and approved of the above proposals it is accordingly so ordered.

Dated this Twenty Sixth day of January A D, 1899.

Fifty years ago Benjamin Disraeli, in the House of Commons, bitterly attacked the character of Sir Robert Peel.

Sir Robert retorted that it was surprising Disraeli should have been so ready to unite his fortunes with those of Peel in office. To this Disraeli replied by saying that nothing of the kind had occurred, that he had never asked a favor of any kind from the government and that the statement that he had applied for office was entirely unfounded. Parker's recently published life of Sir Robert Peel, now shows that Sir Robert was right and that Disraeli deliberately falsified the record. This "life" contains a letter written in September 5, 1841, in which Disraeli said:—"I confess that to be unrecognized at this moment by you appears to me to be overwhelming, and I appeal to your own heart, to that justice and that magnanimity which I feel are your characteristics, to save me from an intolerable humiliation.
