Lines on the Death of Minnie Allen

Who Died April 4th, 1900,

aged 12 Years.

Another flower in early bloom

Has just been borne away.

Another loved one now has gone To the realms of endless day,

But though she's left us here below,

She was too pure and fair for earth,

We know she dwells above.

God called her to His arms,

And free from death's alarms.

She'll walk the streets of Paradise

They neither need the sun nor moon

Would such a home be given.

Dear friends, you now are lonely,

You miss her from your home,

But her gentle spirit hovers near,

And whispers to you "Come.

Lay earthly things and cares saide

And seek a home on high,

In that gloriou s "Golden City,"

When their work on earth is done.

No death, nor pain, nor crying there, None take the parting hand, But friends shall all united be

The "Tree of Life" is blooming there,

In that bright, happy land.

With healing in its leaves,

A soothing balm for every care,

To share the joys of heaven.

For every heart that grieves.

And his blessings freely be given, Until you gather home above
