What They Say in England.

The comments of the great London dailie on Sir Wilfrid Laurier's loyal and eloquen speech in Parliament Tuesday night, will not Here are a few quotations:

The London Times says; "The speech would rank high in any assembly as a model Hinden have similar customs at their ation concur. Chance, however, and of noble eloquence, but it is not its eloquence Which will make it live in the annals of the Empire. He has expresse i more faithfully and more truly than any other statesman who has yet spoken, the temper of the new im perial patriotism, festered into self-conscious ness by the war, We look forward to a day, not distant in the life of nations, when Boer de-mier of a South African dominion shall kindle with a like devotion to the Brit-

The Daily Ohronicle says: "Canada is per haps, the colony of all others which will have acted as the pioneer of imperial federation i ever the Empire should be federated." The Daily Mail says: "Why should not Sir Wiffrid Laurier and the great leaders of as he our other colonies have a share in the direction of imperial affairs ?" that the colonies have won the strongest claims to gaining privileges in the Empire by volunteering to assume its burdens.' The Morning Post says: "Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke for Canada in words of im passioned and splendid eloquence. The Montreal Star's special cable from and available, London says: "The speech of Sir Wilfrid Laurier is much discussed. Even the few who oppose the British government's policy Union stockyards, Chicago, in 1899 was parson said to the woman—'Wilt thou admit this speech is a weighty justification an even 100 000; total valuation, $11,- have this man to be thy wedded husband? for the war. Sir Wilfrid's pronouncement, 250,000. may, it is suggested, be the foreruner in the course of time of momentous changes in the administration of the Empire. It is felt especially that the speech cannot fail to have a marked effect upon opinion in the United States weich the British ministers are watching with somewhat anxious care just

"The Usnadian premier's refenge to com pulsion in regard to future military contri butions from the colonies exactly represents the feeling of the British ministry. Lord Salisbury and his colleagues are above al things as sious not to lead the colonies along the line of imperial co operation at a quicker pace than they themselves desire."

A General Rejoicing.

Never within the memory of living man, never perhaps in all tue glorious history of these isles, has such a wave of enthusiasm and joy passed over all our peoples as that which spread over the length and breadth of the British Empire yesterday. There was noing hysterical in it; the extraordinary manifestations which began in London and spread almost with the swiftness of light to the farthest lands in which the Eoglish speech is heard was the healthy joy of a great nation at the success of the heroic labors of its sons, whose task it had watched and followed with anxious straining eyes. In our hearts we all knew that upon the spiendid garrison of the beleagured town was swiftly drawing the time when human endurance and British pluck could do no more, and we realized that if help came not soon it would come in vain. It is wonderfu! that the news that help had come indeed, and that the cruel suspense of our soldiers was over, should have stirred our breasts as no man has seen them stirred before? From Cheapside, singing the National Anthem in thundering shorns, to To ronto storming its very Parliament House in wild enthusiasm, to St John, N B, sus pending all business, to Jamacia, mourning only that she has no sons at the front, to Calcatta, showering flowers upon the status of the great commander, to Melbourne and Aukland, rejoicing with exceeding joy that in this imperial deed they have borne their part, the marvellous thrish had apread. Everywhere everyone has seemed to feel a necessity laid upon him to express in some manner, mean and inadequate it might be, but still real, the feelings struggling for utterance; and the unorganized demonstrations of the British peoples have been, in consequence, more truly magnificent than anything could have been which was consciously prepared. Yes-terday was a great day, one of the greatest, in its way, we shall ever see, for it showed that alike in our sorrow and in our joy we are indeed one people, with one purpose and one mind .- Lindon Globe, March 2nd.

Golden Thoughts.

No woman is binder than she who deems herself faultless The shadow of a trouble is generally blacker than the trouble itself. This world is full of beauty, and if we did our duty it would be full of love. Faith will not make the sun rise sooner, but it will make the night seem shorter. Prayer is the

An Irish Catholic organization in the United States had wired congratulations to the Laval students on tearing down the British flag, but the students replied that they did not tear the flag, but. on the contrary, had every respect for it.

'And do you really love me, George?'

'Love you!' repeated 'dear' George fervently. 'Why, while I was bidding you good-bye on the porch last night, dear, the dog bit a large chunk out of my leg, and I never noticed it until I got home. Love you!'
