CURIOUS ANNOUNCEMENT.

LONDON, July 10.—The trial of Earl Russell before the house of lords, July 1, on the charge of bigamy, has occasioned the issue of all kinds of quaint notices. None of them, perhaps, is more curious than the latest relating to the admission of women.

The notice announces that a hundred places have been reserved for peeresses. As the offence is bigamy there is considerable curiosity as to the extent to which the invitations will be accepted.

Earl Russell, who is now being tried before the house of lords for bigamy, is among the tolerably well-known English noblemen on this side of the water, because of the legal proceedings with which his name has been intermittently and malodourously connected during the past ten years. His last bid for notoriety, however, surpasses all previous efforts. He is the grandson, as one is apt to forget from the groove in which his affairs seem to run, of the famous Lord John Russell, whose name was so potent in England of half a century ago, and a great grandson, therefore, of the Duke of Bedford. The Earl, who succeeded his grandfather in 1878, is described as decidedly unromantic in appearance. "A rather solid, ruddy face is redeemed by smiling eyes that look out mildly from the shelter of gold-rimmed glasses. John Francis Stanley possesses none of the oratorical or literary qualities of his famous grandfather, though he has spoken once or twice in a modest way in the house of lords. He is, however, reputed to be a rather good electric engineer."—Star.

South Africa.

We are told to-day that the war is nearing its end, and that Lord Kitchener is wearing down the Boer opposition by a gradual attrition. This seems to be the conclusion which Mr. Ford, the London correspondent of the New York Tribune, draws from a perusal of the English press. There are estimated to be ten thousand men in the field. If Lord Kitchener goes on making a hundred to two hundred captures a week, it will take from one to two years to bring the last Boer to subjection. When Lord Roberts came away great faith was placed in Lord Kitchener as an energetic fighter, who would use severer methods. It is highly improbable that he is merely going to hang on his oars with two hundred thousand men. The lack of any news from the front must be that he is concealing some concerted movement for which he is preparing. It is hopefully suggested in the report, too, that the Boers are becoming de-horsed. That would seem to be the last point at which they would break down. A raid into Cape Colony will always give them horses. Should they not have enough ammunition buried, it is possible they might run short, but no one can predict. It was hoped by destroying all food in the houses to make it impossible for them to get provisions, but the British have of course to leave food for the Kaffirs, who have grown a crop of corn during the last season. By looting this the Boers may be able to subsist in small bands, though they could never mass an army. Lord Kitchener must do something more energetic than just wait if he expects success. There are two methods by which he can work. Surrounding movements may be made by a number of columns working together, or columns may be sent out with orders to use dash even at large sacrifice. This latter method would be very telling. The Boers, in running before a British column, leave a rear guard of twenty or so, who stop at the top of each successive hill, and opening fire on the enemy's advance, hold them till they make a flank movement or open fire with their guns. Were the British to risk a greater loss of life they could make this sort of work so hazardous that it would be hard for the enemy to get any one to do it, and they would often come up with the column they were chasing, when a united charge would bring that Boer party to an end. The British generals seem to have so taken to heart the losses in their first great charges, as at Magersfontein, that they now become too cautious.—Montreal Witness.

A Useful Exhibit.

It may be said that the Canadian exhibit at Glasgow is a good, useful and well-arranged display of the natural resources of the country, and all manufactures in which a trade can be done with countries on this side the Atlantic, writes a correspondent on the spot. No doubt can exist in the minds of any who visit this Exhibition as to the wealth of Canada in the production of its soil, in its minerals, its forests and its fisheries. Nor can there be any question as to the great progress which has been made in the development of these various resources. No better object-lesson can be placed before the mind of the intending emigrant than what is here represented to him, and from the enquiries made, the interest taken and the admiration so freely expressed by the people of all classes who crowd the Canadian Pavilion there can be no doubt that the Glasgow Exhibition will have more effect in developing trade with Canada and promoting emigration than people in Canada are inclined to admit. We are here, not among strangers who may wonder and admire and pass on, but amongst our best customers, the people with whom we are most anxious to trade and most desirous of attracting to our shores.

The Beguny.

New York, July 8.—The World to-day contains a St Petersburg, Russia, despatch which says: Twenty peasants, twelve of them women, have been arrested and imprisoned in the province of Bessarabia and Kherson for having been implicated in a new outbreak of Beguny atrocities. The Beguny is a strange sect which kills many of its votaries, the victims willing by consenting to the sacrifice. The favourite method is to bury alive those selected for the sacrifice. In the cases just discovered the victims were given a more merciful death. Some of the women arrested confess to having smothered members of their families with pillows. The Beguny has existed for nearly thirty years. Though its followers are religious fanatics, the Beguny was originally a political and economical organization, its agitations having always been directed toward greater personal liberty and political power for individual members of society.

The political strength of the Beguny was crushed long ago, but its strange religious features have thrived.

SPLENDID CROP PROSPECTS.

WINNIPEG, July 4.—Reliable reports from all parts of the province and territories indicate crop conditions are ideal, and farmers claim this to be the most promising year in the history of Manitoba. All danger from drought is now passed and no damage is reported from any source. Hay, which will be cut during the next fortnight, is abundant, and coarser grains are on par with wheat. The latter is heading out, and farmers are confident the harvest will begin in August. This practically insures against all danger from frost, which never has been known in July or the early part of August. Manitoba this year has over two million acres under wheat, and good authorities think twenty bushels per acre a conservative estimate.

Porto Rican Prosperity.

LONDON, July 10.—The foreign office issued yesterday a number of consular reports dealing with Porto Rico. W. B. Church Ward, British consul at San Juan, says the general trade of the island has improved, although the commercial benefits have gone entirely to the United States, but that the condition of the people is not so satisfactory as had been expected.

"The new system of taxation has not been well received by any class," continues Mr. Church Ward. "The upper classes dislike it, for they have to pay more than under the Spanish, and the lower classes because they expected to be free of any import tax."

The British vice consul, reporting from Aguadilla, says: "Under American rule Porto Rico has entered upon an era of prosperity, the effects of which will soon be apparent. Statistics show that British trade is declining."

Resolve to be Happy.

Whether your journey this summer be across the ocean or to the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, or only to some farm or town 20 miles from your own hearthstone, first of all have your mind in a holiday mood. Resolve to be happy and to make all around you happy, if they know enough and have in them the capacity for it. Then study how you can get as complete a change as possible from all that surrounds you.

Change even the kind of books you read, taking up some fresh page of the story of life as it is committed to literature. Throw yourself heartily into out door games—golf, basket ball, croquet and tennis—or learn to emulate the English girls, who are not afraid of a 10 mile morning walk. If you live in the city and spend your vacation in the country, take with you a book or two on birds, trees or wild flowers, not as a study but to help direct your attention and help you see what is around you.

So you will find recreation, rebuilding or restoration of mind and body as you walk in fields and woods and peer into thickets, or wade in green embowered brooks, searching out the wild things of nature.—Ada C. Sweet in the July Woman's Home Companion.

Hon. A. G. Blair, and other Canadian ministers in London met a distinguished company when they were entertained to luncheon Friday by Gilbert Parker, M. P., the eminent Canadian novelist. The party included the Duke of Argyll, Lord Aberdeen, Lord Onslow, Lord Cranborne, the American Ambassador, Lord Strathcona, Hon. Geo. Wyndham, Hon. St John Brodrick, Hon. C. T. Ritchie, Sir Charles Dilke, Sir Edward Carson, Lord Advocate Graham Murray and the Governor of Dongola. The cable says that "the Ministers make up a strong delegation, and their presence in London has strengthened the good relations between Canada and the Mother Country."

Your Hair

"Two years ago my hair was falling out badly. I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and soon my hair stopped coming out."

Miss Minnie Hoover, Paris, Ill.

Perhaps your mother had thin hair, but that is no reason why you must go through life with half-starved hair. If you want long, thick hair, feed it with Ayer's Hair Vigor, and make it rich, dark, and heavy.

She Was Over Eighteen.

A young man in New York got around a difficulty in a novel manner. The young lady whom he wished to marry was not quite 18 and she looked two or three years younger than she really was. When they went to the county clerk's office the man who issues licenses hesitated. As they gave no sworn statement that the bride was over 18 he didn't grant them a license.

A few minutes later they returned. The man said and made affidavit that to the best of his knowledge Vernie Deacon was "over 18."

After the ceremony the young man laughed and explained that the word "eighteen" had been written on a piece of paper and placed in Miss Deacon's shoe. When she stood on the paper she was "over eighteen." The young people are a little worried, however, because the girl's father says he will prosecute the young man for kidnapping his daughter.—Portland Express.

The Mount Pleasant Baptist festival was a grand success in point of pleasure and money getting, over fifty dollars added to church building fund; the ladies say thanks to a generous public.

A few days after the close of our school its teacher, S Wilbur Smith, hies up Coldstream a couple of miles, and was the cause of an important social event at the residence of Edward Clarke, when a very respectable and reasonably fashionable invited number of guests witnessed the marriage ceremony performed by Rev J D Wetmore, uniting said S Wilbur and Miss Ethel, only daughter of Mr and Mrs Ed Clarke. The occasion was more than ordinarily brilliant; the bride was splendidly attired, while the groom exhibited remarkable courage in this the really serious adventure of his life. Presents were numerous and costly. The young couple have the very best wishes of the entire community.

Upon evening of same day as above, Mr Amos Belyea and Miss Edna Wiggins, called at the parsonage and were united in holy wedlock by Rev J D Wetmore.

We note the marriage of one of our native born young ladies in your city a few days since, who is at once the recipient of congratulations of every man, woman and child in this region, as one favourably known and memory cherished. May the union in very truth prove a most noble one.

Egypt.

July 8th.

The weather for the past month has been delightful. How charming and admiring is Nature, robed in her richest verdure. At this season, especially, the woods and groves appear in their full loveliness.

The farmers have been very busily engaged, rushing to get in large crops, taking every advantage of the early season.

Many were obliged to replant and sow over again, on account of the heavy frost which did much injury.

There has been large quantities of hay sent away from nearly all the adjoining places in the vicinity, making a rush of work for the farmers ever since cropping time.

Most of the young men are away working in the bark woods.

There has been much sickness here lately, nearly every family having been visited, something in the form of "la grippe."

Strawberries have been quite plentiful, but owing to the heavy showers much damage has been done them.

Our school, just closed, passed a very successful term under the management of Miss Mary E Mullen; having an enrollment of 26 pupils with a good attendance. The parents and friends of the pupils have expressed themselves well pleased with the progress made in so short a term, and very anxiously solicited the services of the same teacher for the next term.
