Iowa Prohibitionists have named a full state ticket with A. U. Coates, of Dallas county, for governor.

Topeka is now under control of the "dry" element, the state supreme court having decided that J. W. F. Hughes is the legal mayor.

Euclid Beach Park, near Cleveland, Ohio, will be run this summer without beer. A bid will be made for a more desirable class of patronage than beer draws.

The sixth annual meeting of the Association of Pentecostal Churches in America, just held at Lynn, Mass., reaffirmed their standing resolutions on temperance and recommended the use of unfermented wine at communion service.

The Woman's Club, of Eau Claire, Wis., has adopted resolutions to send a committee to wait on the street fair organizations and request that such degrading dances as were allowed in tent shows last year be prohibited this year.

The thirtieth annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, of Illinois, met at Dwight, Ill., May 26-27. Twelve prizes will be awarded to the local societies that make the greatest increase in membership during the coming year.

The Presbyterian General Assembly, in session at Philadelphia, adopted a resolution deprecating the action of the directors of the Pan-American Exposition in opening the gates on Sunday, and earnestly urging the closing of the Fair upon that day.

The Odelsting (the lower house) of the Norwegian Parliament, on May 11, adopted by a vote of 48 to 36 a bill introducing universal communal male suffrage, and by 68 to 17 votes adopted a bill providing communal suffrage for women paying taxes on an income of at least 300 crowns.

The Knights of Columbus, probably the largest and most influential social and fraternal order connected with the Roman Catholic Church, has begun a movement to expel from the organization saloonkeepers or any others dealing in any manner with the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors.

No liquor will be sold hereafter at Myers Lake, near Canton, Ohio. This beautiful summer resort has come under the control of a new company. New buildings, inclosed grounds, fine gardens and absence of intoxicants, are some of the means the new association, in catering to the pleasure-loving public, will use to secure the most desirable class of patronage.

The general quadriennial conference of the United Brethren Church in Christ, in session at Frederick, Md., adopted an amendment to the church discipline to the effect that hereafter no minister of the church shall be allowed to use tobacco in any form, and those who are now addicted to its use must desist. In the Apostles' Creed the word "Hell" was modified and will in the future be called "Hades."

The Massachusetts Association of Free Baptist Churches, in its annual session in Boston, adopted the following resolution by a rising vote:

In consideration of the misleading statements persistently presented in the secular press concerning the prohibition of the liquor traffic and the abolition of the army canteen, we most heartily commend the firm stand of the Morning Star and Free Baptist (denominational) papers published in Boston and Minneapolis upon questions of temperance and moral reform, and ask them to give their readers the most convincing facts obtainable upon these subjects.

A call has been issued for a Christian Workers' Conference to be held at Wheaton, Ill., July 22 to 28. Among the prominent speakers who will take part are the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, late of London, England, now identified with the Northfield movement; Rev. R. A. Torrey, D. D., superintendent of the Moody Bible Institute; Rev. Johnston Myers, D. D., of Chicago; Mr. L. Wilbur Messer, general secretary, Y. M. C. A., and others.

The New Voice has just completed a poll of the great railways of the country as to their attitude regarding the use of intoxicants by their employees. Up to this time, forty-nine replies have been received with the following results: Total abstinence on or off duty is required by the rules of these roads; two declare they will not employ a man who drinks if they know it; four declare total abstinence necessary to safety in operating the road, while nineteen give the preference to teetotalers in promotions, so that practically all of the railways of the country adhere to the total abstinence standard. Of the forty-nine replies, only two have rules merely against "intemperance." Thirty absolutely forbid the frequenting of saloons, under pain of dismissal.

The Importance of Maintaining Fertility.

Among all the great and absorbing questions which relate to the future well being of this country there is none greater than that of maintaining the fertility of the soil. Our population is increasing with wonderful rapidity and it must all be fed from the farm. Ignorance of the principles of fertility has already destroyed, in a great measure, the productiveness of a large area of the farming lands in the east. What such blind folly means in dollars and cents may be partly reckoned when it is understood that the state of New York is estimated to have lost a billion and a half of dollars in the last thirty years through the decline of values in farming lands.

First came loss of fertility, and that brought discouragement to young men, who fled from the farm by the thousands. That loss of fertility was brought about by men who thought it smart to sneer at the warnings science had to give. Thousands of them are to-day hard at the same old job of robbing the soil and sneering at book farming.

Whenever we meet one of those fellows who rail at "book farming," we are tempted to ask him if scientific farming ever brought a loss of fifteen hundred millions of dollars to a state in 30 years?

In straight truth the men who have made themselves and their state poor, in farming, are the ones usually who turn their backs on the teachings of science and despise "book farming."

It takes a certain amount of intelligence to recognize the value of intelligence, and science is simply systematic intelligence—Hoard's Dairyman.

Export Bacon Trade.

Just now a condition exists in our export bacon trade that should be well considered by farmers who supply the live stock to our markets. Prices have ruled higher during the winter months, and live hogs have been marketed as quickly as they were in condition. During the past few weeks, however, the tendency of the market has been downward, and in many cases those who have had stock to dispose of have used every possible means to fatten and market before the threatened drop in prices occurred. This may give the farmer a momentary advantage, but it will not pay him in the long run. For what will be the result? Fat hogs can be made only into fat and soft bacon, and the export demand calls, and calls imperatively, for bacon that is lean and firm.

The farmer is the guardian of his own interests in a matter of this kind. The English consumer is exacting in his demands for an article that satisfies his taste, and it is manifestly in his interests to supply him with what he wants. Fat or soft bacon is always in bad request, and we can send it forward with only one result, viz., great injury to our bacon trade. The favor with which Canadian bacon has been received in England is sufficient to encourage our farmers to raise stock that will meet the requirements of the market, even though these requirements appear to be exacting at first. We cannot afford to lose, by lack of judgment and foresight, the advantage that we have gained in the last few years. Any slight benefit that might come to us through forcing stock for market, before a decline in prices would not in any measure compensate for the retribution that would follow were our bacon to meet with disfavor at the hands of English customers.

Down with the Cow Boarder.

There are two varieties of cows. Note carefully:—

1. The cow that gives more than she eats.

2. The cow that eats more than she gives.

What variety would you prefer in making up a dairy herd? Which variety do you actually have?

Now, there is no difficulty about telling the cow of one class from the cow of the other. There used to be; but there isn't now.

The Babcock test does it. The apparatus consists of a small scale, a Babcock test, and a little gumption.

By testing each cow separately a man can soon tell which are paying a profit and which are merely boarded. When food is scarce and high, as it is in some parts of Vermont, dairymen will find it more than usually necessary to weed out the boarders.—Vermont Experiment Station.

The high price of flaxseed as compared with the price of wheat has caused the farmers of Minnesota and the Dakotas to greatly increase their acreage of flax, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

OUR TELEPHONE SERVICE.

CENTRAL HAS WOES AS WELL AS THE MAN IN A HURRY.

To the Editor of The Telegraph:

Sir—Have you a telephone? If so, here are a few hints which will no doubt greatly aid you in getting "satisfaction" from "central." Ring up central, go and wait upon a customer or finish your conversation, then take the receiver from the hook and "wonder what is the matter with central." Ring again, give the number with the back of your head to the instrument or with a cigar in your mouth, or in a whisper so that when you are asked to repeat you can say "wake up" or "are you deaf." If told that the line is in use, ring up every 10 seconds till you get it. It helps to pass the time and greatly assists "central" in answering her other subscribers. Again, if you want a party and you are not quite sure of the number, do not trouble to look it up, but give central whatever number you think it is; if it happens to be wrong, simply say "central" has made a mistake; ring off and guess again. If you want a party and "central" tells you she cannot get them, tell her, "I know they are there, ring again," and repeat the call often. What is a telephone for if you cannot get a man when you want him, even if he does happen to be away for a day's fishing? No matter who wants to use your telephone say "certainly." You are not able to get your money's worth out of it yourself, besides it may help your trade. When your bell rings take your time about answering, or what is still better, do not answer it at all, but in half an hour ring up and ask who called you. If "central" does not remember, ask her "what are you there for," "certainly you should remember." Of course your calls are the only ones she has to attend to. When you are talking and central comes in on your line say, "Can't you hear me talking; what are you all the time breaking in for." You remember that when you wanted the line and was told that it was in use you went away and did not ask for it again for several minutes, so that "central" would have no occasion to go in on it to find if they had finished till they ring off. And as you never leave your telephone without ringing off, why should "central" break in to find if you have finished, or why should you, in ringing up again in a minute, get the party you have just been speaking with? If you are waiting and "central" speaks, pay no attention to her and if she disconnects you make it warm for her somewhat as follows: "What did you disconnect for? Who was I talking with? I'll report you if I don't get better service. I will have this 'phone taken out," which, no doubt, "central" would devoutly wish you would do.
