is past, but many who are cured of itching, bleeding or protruding piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment look upon their recovery as next to miraculous. It is not uncommon for persons who have undergone painful, risky and expensive operations in vain to be finally cured by this wonderful ointment. It is the standard the world over and the only guaranteed cure for piles.

In a trial made by Sir Sandford Fleming, a message from Ottawa sent round the world by the new Pacific cable reaching the starting point in 6 hours 3 minutes from the time of its dispatch. The frequent repetitions that were required took up much of the time. In spite of them the message travelled at a rate of over 4,000 miles a minute from start to finish. It is a simple thing now to put a girder round the earth.

A HORRIBLE FATE.

Thessalon, Ont., Dec. 10.—Mr. James Lovatt, postmaster at Dayton, met a shocking fate on Saturday having been almost entirely eaten by a saw while in a fit. Deceased was subject to fainting spells and while doing some chores about the yard was seized by one and fell in an unconscious condition to the ground. A saw which was running at large on the place, at once commenced to devour the helpless man and when the body was found it presented the most horrible spectacle. The flesh was gouged entirely from the face and head, and the breast was almost free of flesh, the stomach torn out and the arms and legs fearfully lacerated. Owing to some domestic troubles the deceased's wife with her two little daughters left him a couple of weeks ago and went to reside with friends in Michigan, and at the time of his death there was no one about the premises.

Bilious Dyspepsia

A Dreadful Complaint Accompanied by Headache, Sickness of the Stomach, VOMITING that Can Be Permanently and Quickly Cured by Ferrozone.

Some persons have attacks of Bilious Dyspepsia very frequently, and feel as if they were about to die. The whole system seems to collapse. The tongue becomes coated, the face a sallow pallor, and a bitter taste is always noticeable in the mouth. At times the bowels are very constipated but occasionally acute diarrhoea is caused by the accumulation of bile in the system.

It is highly dangerous to allow such a condition to imperil your life. It must be cured and the simplest and surest remedy is Ferrozone. It digests every particle of food eaten, and prevents the waste products from clogging up the system. Ferrozone restores all deranged organs to a healthy, vigorous condition. It keeps the bowels well regulated, makes the kidneys eliminate all poisons from the blood, and supplies the necessary elements to build up and strengthen the entire body.

Mr. Louis Meehan, one of Peterborough's most successful and well known business men, during the past three years, was an unceasing sufferer from Bilious Dyspepsia. He was cured permanently by Ferrozone. It not only cured me of Dyspepsia and Biliousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative.

"About three years ago," says Mr. Meehan, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very run down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me, and on the advice of a friend used Ferrozone. It cured me of my Dyspepsia and Biliousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative."

Ferrozone is capable of digesting all classes of food, and contains in a highly concentrated form the elements necessary for strengthening and reconstructing, and nourishing the stomach and other digestive organs. It is a builder of blood, muscle and fat, and makes weak, disheartened people strong and well. Ferrozone gives you force, energy, vim and spirit and cures every time. Sold by all druggists. Price 50c per box or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

LETTER FROM MARS HILL.

DEAR EDITOR—We are drawing on to the close of another year; the father of time will soon drop out 1902, with all of its opportunities, and in the review we ask ourselves what we have been doing, and we pause for answer to this question. After a little we commence to look over the list to find something in our favor—something good that we have done to better our own selves, or better our community, or better our country or nation, and if we find anything to our credit in this review we must attribute it to some proper authority. The all-wise Creator of mankind had a definite purpose in view in our creation, and for a specific purpose man was made, and if we in the best light and understanding of His will concerning us, are honestly putting forth our best efforts in our various callings in this life, we are sure to succeed in a measure at least. The religious world is anxious to do more than it is doing, and it is no uncommon thing for religious bodies to be dissatisfied with, not the work, but the amount of work done, and as we draw near the approach of the new year, we commence to plan for better methods, or something that will awaken a greater interest in the church of Christ, and bring the workers into closer touch with the principles that alone will effect this great work that we so much desire; some of our prayers are yet unanswered, some that we have long been looking for to come into the Kingdom of Christ are yet in the distance, the best methods to reach them is what we are after; how can it be done? when will it be done? is our anxious prayer day after day, but we read that we have need of patience after doing His will that we may receive the promise.

To the Primitive Baptists I would offer a few thoughts: My brethren, we have been invited by the proprietors and builders of the Union church, in the west part of the town of Mars Hill, to hold our January quarterly meeting, and dedicate their church for them; this a some, thing from some of our past experience, but God has opened doors for us in very many instances, and I do hope that our people will put forth some extra effort to attend this meeting. Our Brother Kilcollins is a resident of this place and one of the men that has gone deep into his pocket to build this house for God's worship, and he wants the ministry of the P. B., as well as the laity, to give a general attendance. He is a good loyal brother, and try and grant his request. The management have not decided yet who is to preach the sermon, but I told them that they must decide that; we did not wish to select for them, and they will let me know soon, and I will inform by card the one selected, so that he can make ready for the occasion. Now, brethren, let us be true to the trust committed to us; true to our beloved principles; true to the opportunities that we have for broadening our field and extending the much loved cause of Christ.

We are much pleased with our new neighbors from Hartland, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton; they are doing a large and profitable business in taking strangers in but not like the man that sold bad goods, their hotel is liberally patronized and well spoken of by the travelling public. Send us over some more of your good citizens, and we will give them all the work they want at a good fair remuneration.

A Short Sketch of Lord Byron.

(Written for the SENTINEL.)

George Gordon Byron, one of the world's greatest poets, was born in London in 1788. His father was Capt John Byron whose character was exceedingly bad. He was so reckless and infamous that he received the name of "Mad Jack Byron." Lord Byron's mother was a Scotch lady by the name of Catherine Gordon, who traced her descent from the famous yet unlucky Stuarts. She was a woman of whom very little good can be said. She had no moral principle and had a most violent temper. Capt Byron married her for her wealth to enable him to pay his debts, which motive he did not hesitate to avow. After squandering her fortune Byron abandoned his wife and child and fled to France, where he died in 1791 at the age of thirty six. Mrs Byron then went to Scotland and, at the age of seven, Byron was sent to school at Aberdeen. In 1798 the death of his great uncle without issue gave him the titles and estates of the family, at which time he was removed from the care of his mother and placed under the guardianship of the Earl of Carlisle. The youthful lord was placed in the celebrated school of Harrow, where he distinguished himself more by attending to manly sports than to his studies, and showed a marked disregard of school discipline.

At the age of seventeen he entered Trinity College, Cambridge. He said himself that he knew very little Latin, less Greek and Mathematics on entering the college. He was, however, a great reader and in this way picked up considerable information. While here he kept a bear, which he said he was training for a degree. The truth is his mind never was thoroughly disciplined by scholastic study, as his subsequent career plainly showed. He secured his degree by special favor because he was a lord. Shortly after this he published a collection of his poems bearing the significant title "Hours of Idleness." The poems indicated ability, but afforded very little promise of what he was capable of producing. These poems were severely criticized in the Edinburgh Review of 1800. This made the poet very angry and a while after he wrote a satire in reply entitled "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers," which evoked a fiery criticism pregnant with violent passion. This greatly annoyed some of his critics.

Byron now began to live a wild and dissipated life and by the time he had reached his majority his constitution was much impaired by his excesses. He now determined to go abroad and visited Spain, Turkey and Greece and other countries. Out of this grew his poem, "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage." This made a profound impression. A celebrated English scholar writes: 'Not only was Byron's literary position forever decided by Childe Harold, but from that hour he became the cherished and petted darling of aristocratic society in England.' To use his own words he was the lion of 1812, and he again said that he awoke to find himself famous. Disraeli says in speaking of him that all London lay at the feet of a youth of three and twenty. About the age of twenty five he married Miss Wilbank, the only child of a wealthy nobleman. She was a worthy woman and was much noted for her deeds of charity and philanthropy. About a year after their marriage Lady Byron left her husband and returned to her parents. Shortly after this Lord Byron went abroad for the second time, spending most of his time in Italy, where he edited a journal entitled The Liberal, for a short time. But he soon became dissatisfied and decided to try war and politics and perhaps imagined that he might become another Napoleon. At this time Greece and Turkey were at war. He took up the cause of Greece and, after some adventures and trials, fell ill. He never recovered, and his last words were: 'Poor Greece! poor town! why was I not aware of this sooner? My hour is come. I do not care for death, but why did I not go home before I came here? For the rest I am content to die. Now, I will go to sleep.' From this slumber he never awoke. His remains were sent to England and there interred. So at the age of thirty six one of the most celebrated Englishmen of the nineteenth century closed his brilliant yet miserable career.

INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY

$320,000 LARGER THAN FOR SAME PERIOD OF 1901.

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—The receipts of the I C R for the five months ending December 1 will show an increase of $320,000 over the receipts for the same period last year. The present year has been an exceedingly good one and this, along with the excellent manner in which the affairs of the road are being administered, certainly forebodes a success heretofore not seen on this line.

The embargo prohibiting the shipment of cattle through the state of Maine via the C. P. R. will also add largely to the receipts of the road for the next few months.
