CORONATION DAY.

Saturday is the day appointed for the coronation of King Edward, and everybody rejoices that the King's health has so improved, as to encourage the hope that no ill effects will result to His Majesty from the fatigue of the ceremonies. While the coronation ceremonies will be shorn of very much of the spectacular effect which was first intended, they will nevertheless evoke much rejoicing in London and many other places, and many a hearty wish will go up from the heart of His Majesty's loyal subjects everywhere, that he may be royally crowned, and live long to wear that crown to the good of his subjects the world over.

OUR EXHIBITION.

The farmers need not be reminded that the Exhibition takes place now in a little over a month. The weather has been such lately as to work a wonderful transformation in the appearance of the growing crops. Full barns, granaries and cellars, with plenty of excellent specimens in all the various lines of agricultural products, are now assured, and the prospect is that our farmers will be enabled to make one of the best agricultural shows ever held in the county.

The inducements tendered by the Directors, in the way of increased premiums, etc., show their desire to make the Exhibition attractive, and they are anxious that it shall be one of which the farmers of the county may be proud to refer to as our Exhibition; and one which will inspire visitors with a due sense of the county's resources, and the intelligence which governs the development of those resources.

CLEAN THE STREETS.

There is not time now before the 13th, to put the sidewalks of the town in the condition required, but there is plenty of time to do a thorough process of street cleaning. The luxuriant crop of grass, thistles and Burdock, which now line each side of the main streets, should be cut and carried away; the streets and alleyways carefully raked and everything made to assume as tidy an appearance as possible.

In this connection, the work being done by Mr. Hawkins on St John and Grover streets deserves mention. He not only keeps these streets clear of stones and other obstructions, but as well he has succeeded with his scythe, sickle and rake, in giving to that vacant spot of land at the junction of Main and Grover streets, which formerly presented so unsightly an appearance with its growth of thistles and other noxious weeds, and its accumulation of refuse, a very cleanly and inviting appearance. Had we more such men as Mr. Hawkins, many of our streets would present a much neater appearance than at present, and that without cost to the town.

WOODSTOCK'S BIG DAYS.

13th and 14th August.

CORONATION CELEBRATION.

Wednesday and Thursday of next week will, without doubt, should the weather be propitious, witness the largest assemblage of people ever seen in Woodstock. And the prospect is that those who come will not be disappointed in their expectations, however high their anticipations may have been raised. When the project of having a coronation celebration was first mooted, it was not with the expectation that anything on so grand a scale as that now contemplated could be hoped for. But as the thing developed, the citizens universally entered into the spirit of the affair with so much zest and earnestness, that it at once inspired the determination to make it no mere demonstration, but to insure its being one of the grandest affairs ever seen in the Province.

The programme of proceedings have been so generally circulated; with the full advertisement to be found on the eighth page of this issue of SENTINEL, renders much further reference to it unnecessary.

There will be excursions from Presque Isle, Fort Fairfield and Caribou; from Fredericton, the A O H run an excursion; the Knights of Pythias one from St Stephen; and excursions will come from St John.

Citizens are earnestly requested to decorate their stores and houses; and those having rooms to let are requested to hand in their names to the Mayor.

People from a distance may feel assured that every means will be taken to secure them comfortable accommodation. Of course the town will be crowded, but not so much so, that anyone will have to suffer for want of accommodation.

Those having canoes, who do not intend decorating them or using them in the river sports, will kindly place them at the disposal of the committee, Kenneth Connell or Tappan Adney.
