The Conviction of a Heathen.

Another article in this paper is headed, "The Gospel in Japan." Read it.

When the renovating power of the gospel gets into a man, and stays, it will cleanse him from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, and cause him to do nothing to himself or his fellow-men but what he can ask God to bless him in its performance. You talk of Christian Ministers and Christian lay members in the church that they smoke and chew, and Christian storekeepers stand behind their counters and deal out this filth, and body and soul-destroying abomination, apparently with no more qualm of conscience than an innocent babe, and yet in far away Japan, where almost everyone uses tobacco—men, women and children, a heathen gets hold of a New Testament, it reveals to him the Lord Jesus Christ, and he decides that a Christian cannot use tobacco, and in advance of some of our American Christian merchants, decide they cannot sell it. It turns him from his idols, but that heathen has got manhood enough and Christ enough, to realize that in order to be a true follower of Him, in whose mouth quid was never found, he must get rid of the cursed business of tobacco-selling, in order to come into the liberty and fullness of the gospel of Christ.

That heathen Japanese is on the right track.

Temperance Missionary Work.

The "American Issue" quotes from the note-book of one who was present at a meeting of the Ohio Liquor League some years ago, these words from an officer of the League who, when discussing and citing the conditions of success in the trade, remarked:

"It will appear from these facts, gentlemen, that the success of our business is dependent largely upon the creation of appetite for drink. Men who drink liquor, like others, will die, and if there is no new appetite created, our counters will be empty, as will our coffers. Our children will go hungry, or we must change our business to that of some other more remunerative.

"The open field for the creation of this appetite is among the boys. After men are grown and their habits are formed, they rarely ever change in this regard. It will be needful, therefore, that this missionary work be done among the boys—and I made the suggestion, gentlemen—that nickels expended to the boys now, will return in dollars to your tills after the appetite has been formed. Above all things, create appetite!"

Is it not time that Christians do a little missionary work in the same "open field?" Who will help? The people should be taught, the young should be warned, the unwary should be cautioned. Literature should be scattered everywhere to show the dangers of indulgence in strong drink, and to guide the young in paths of truth and soberness.—The Christian.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.

We are surprised to note that some of the foreign insurance journals have been copying the absurd conclusions of one J. Thomann, in a pamphlet recently published in New York, to show by statistical figures that "beer's the healthiest drink known." That writer declares, as the result of his investigations, that the "risks" incurred in insuring the lives of habitual beer-drinkers are less by forty per cent. than the ordinary risks of such transactions." Thomann simply proves what he did not start out to prove, that the robust men employed in the breweries, who drink from forty to fifty glasses of beer daily, remain in robust health for some years by virtue of their large amount of vital force and tenacity; not by virtue of beer, but in spite of it.

We have closely watched the heavy beer-drinkers in this community with reference to their mortality ratio for more than twenty years, and our observations show that out of every hundred who saturate themselves in this immoderate way not more than five out of every hundred pass the age of fifty-three. Those that escape Bright's disease or uræmic poisoning become victims of cirrhosis or fatty degeneration or erysipelas or apoplexy. One or the other of these fatal diseases invariably gives the finishing touch to the "splendid physique" about which Thomann rants, long before the period of natural expectation.—Baltimore Underwriter.

The Canadian Pacific Railway company, in Winnipeg, has been making every effort to move the grain crop out of the country, but there is every likelihood that this will be barely completed in time to begin the new one. Dairying in New Brunswick.

BY J. F. TILLEY, DAIRY SUPERINTENDENT.

(From the Farmers' World.)

The dairying industry in the Province of New Brunswick is one of its leading occupations and is fast coming to the front.

In 1891 only a few cheese factories or creameries were in existence, each manufacturing a very small quantity of cheese and butter, with very little interest shown by those who were at that time patrons, they thinking that dairying was not a paying business, and more money could be made from the farm by following some other line of work. In this they were not astray, as will be seen if we look at the census returns of 1891. We find then that the dairy cows of the Province only made an average of 71 pounds of butter, which, if figured at 18 cents per pound, gives the farmers the sum of $12.78. To this would be added $2 for skim milk, which would bring the net return of $14.78 per cow per year. There is not much wonder those who were engaged in dairying at that time entered into the work in a half-hearted manner, for no one could expect to feed a cow for a year on the amount they were then realizing from them. Dairy knowledge was very meagre, and as few cows were kept the farms soon began to show signs of exhaustion, as crops were beginning to get less each year.

The Provincial Government, however, came to the farmers' assistance, and offered bonuses of $150 and $250, respectively, for the erection and equipment of cheese factories and creameries, with the result that the first year quite a number were erected. Traveling instructors were put on the road, holding meetings and giving practical instruction in butter-making, and it was not very long before new life was put into the work, and more attention was paid to the breeding, selection, feeding and care of stock, which soon began to show its good effects. The number of factories steadily increased, and to-day we have 56 manufacturing cheese and patronized by over two thousand farmers, whose output amounts to about two million pounds.

Thirty-five creameries and skimming stations are in active operation, manufacturing over half-a-million pounds of butter. The net return from both industries last season brought to the dairymen the snug sum of about $287,000. A large quantity of both our cheese and butter is exported to the Old Country each year, and the reputation earned has been a very satisfactory one.

The exports of cheese have increased from about $38,000 worth in 1897 to $111,000 in 1901; while in butter we find that more was exported previous to 1898, and last year shipments to the value of about $66,000 were sent forward.

The prospects for the coming season were never brighter than now, and we can safely predict a large increase in both the output of cheese and butter, as New Brunswick farmers are showing by the interest taken that they are making money from their dairy work. Better cows, better stables, better food and care of stock than in former years goes to prove this, and coupled with the fact that as their education along dairy lines improves the quantity of the milk improves, which places the factory men in a position to manufacture a finer article, we can safely look for more lucrative business.

The cheese and butter factories in the Provinces, with the exception of the cheese-curing rooms, are well built and equipped, but we fear that unless a change is made in the rooms now in use for curing cheese, there will not be very much improvement in the quality of the product. We firmly believe that factory patrons should compel owners to reconstruct the curing-rooms so that proper curing temperatures can be maintained. Until this change is brought about we will have to be content with a lower price per pound than we will get when the change occurs.

In my opinion the butter-making industry is only in its infancy in the Province, and in future years New Brunswick will be recognized as one of the leading butter-producing Provinces of the Dominion. We have the natural advantages required for dairy development which many countries do not possess that are at the present time far in advance of us, due to the fact that they have been engaged in the work much longer than we have, and have perhaps not had the market for other farm produce that the New Brunswick farmers have had and consequently have followed the line of work which gave the greatest return. We realize the fact that education is necessary in the development of any business in order to put it on a paying basis, and as far as that education extends, just so far will the work extend profitably. To assist along this line the Government of the Province have established a system of farmers' institutes which can-

A provincial dairy school is held each year at Sussex, where a practical course is given in the theory and art of cheese-making, milk-testing, separating, butter-making, and animal husbandry. The school is well equipped with up-to-date machinery, and at time of writing has about forty students in attendance, a few coming from the neighboring Provinces of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

This school is supported entirely by the New Brunswick Government, and no charge is made for tuition for any student. The instructors are: Harvey Mitchell, milk-testing; J. F. Tilley, cheese-making; L. C. Daigle, butter-making; and Geo. Dawson, separators. This school is situated in a fine dairy district, and about 8,000 pounds of milk are taken at the factory daily.
