Recalling Prophecies regarding the King.

(New York Herald.) King Edward's illness has recalled the many predictions that have been made that he would never be crowned. These dismal prophecies have been especially frequent during the last year. The time for the fulfilment of some of them has passed, but others are still pending, and his failure to recover from the operation certainly would be regarded by the believers in prohecies as another proof of their value.

That the King himself was not oblivious to the words of the prophets and that he was not free from forebodings has been mentioned often as a trait in his character. Ever since the death of Queen Victoria, it is said, he has been haunted by a superstitious fear that he would not live to be crowned. Reports have been current in London since his accession that he often brooded over the predictions of evil that had been made about him, and that he was unable to shake his mind free of them. It is said the prophecy that gave the King the most uneasiness was made at about the time of his birth, and ran as follows:

"King shall Edward be, but never shall be crowned." As the date of the coronation approached his thoughts recurred with increasing frequency, it is said, to this prophecy.

Another prediction was made by a gypsy crone in London before Queen Victoria's death. The woman had achieved some fame by making predictions which had been proved true in regard to other reigning families in Europe. She said:

"The Prince of Wales will be killed as soon as a great honor has been conferred upon him."

Henrietta Conesdon, who pretended to be able to talk with the angel Gabriel, and who attracted much attention in Paris in 1866, is said to have predicted that King Edward would not reign for long and that he would die in 1892 after a "surgical operation." Mlle Couesdon at the same time perdicted that the German Emperor would meet a violent death in 1902.

"Raphæl," a London astrologer, at the beginning of the present year said the planets were unfavorable to any political prejudices, he wishes King Edward, and he added: "Let to feel that the House of Commons great care be taken of His Majesty's has been elected by the people unhealth and person."

der his rule. So strongly has this Another astrologer, who called himself"Zadkiel," drew a horoscope of the King at the time of his birth, in 1841. It was of the non-committal kind that might be twisted by the superstitious into a prediction of what has happened, but no details were given. Cheiro, a palmist, who claimed to have predicted Queen Victoria's death six months before it happened, in July, 1900, said King Edward would be killed in May or June, 1901. An apart from the merits of the case, attempt was to be made upon his life by socialists, according to this pre- paratively a new Parliament, dediction, which, of course, did not sire to so soon go through the ex-

ing in the shape of war, revolution

It appears that we may have to modify our ideas as to the burnt-out, sterile condition of our satellite. Professor Pickering, who has recently given considerable study to the surface of the moon, finds that volcanic action has not entirely ceased. Confirmation is given to the recent surmises that changes in certain craters have taken place; some small craters have disappeared, while, in other parts, fresh ones has risen. Remarkable patches of white have also occasionally been distinctly seen upon some of the higher mount ain peaks, as well as upon the mouths of extinct volcanoes, and these seem to indicate snow or frost. for the monthly period and causes all organs of the body to perform their work properly, and at just the torial regions possibly point to some form of organic life analagous to It purifies the blood, tones up the vegetation. THE LEGEND OF A BELL.

The largest hanging bell in the world is in a Buddhist monastery near Canton. It is eighteen feet high and forty-five feet in circumference, and is of solid bronze. Canton has a pretty little fable connected with it.

The story is told by Mrs. J. P. Newman in one of her sketches of travel. The life of the founder of the greatest bell of China had been threatened by the Emperor because of his unsuccessful attempts to make a bell having perfect purity of tone. The bell founder's beautiful daughter, witnessing her father's agony while imploring the Emperor for one more trial, consulted the gods as to the reason for failure. Being told that should the blood of a fair maiden mingle with the bell metal the refruits of the recent victory for the sult would be secured, she, waiting beside her father until able to see her face in the molten ore, plunged in and was destroyed. To the sacrifice of this maiden the Chinese attribute lieves in the ancient custom that the the beauty and sweetness of tone of death of the sovereign involves a the great bell of Ta-Cung-tz.-New York Times. ward is the first sovereign whose

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and some-times by gloomy foreboding and despondency. "I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and became so weak I could scarcely get around. I took medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I continued its use, and six bottles made me a new woman. When my little girl was a baby, she could not keep anything on her stomach, and we gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured her." Mrs. Thomas Is-NIS, Wallaceburg, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures kidney and liver troubles, relieves the back, and builds up the whole system.

A LONG SWIM.

The following is clipped from the Richibucto Review:

On Monday last Thomas McNeill, while fishing about six miles off the coast, saw a large bull moose swimming in the direction of Prince Edward Island. The water was smooth and the moose came quite close to the boat. An effort was made to capture him, but owing to the calm, it failed. The moose would have a swim of about 20 miles to reach the island. He was swimming easily and would no doubt reach there safe. It is not uncommon for moose and deer to swim across the strait.

1,000,000 Deaths of Plague.

London, June 24.-A government statement, regarding the condition of India, in respect to the plague from its first outbreak in Bombay in September, 1896, to March, 1902, shows a total of reported deaths from the disease, during that period, of 536,600 in the Bombay Presidency, and 315,400 in other parts of India, or a total of 852,000 for the whole of British India and the native State. Making allowance for untraced and unreported deaths it is calculated that a million died during the period

During the first three months of 1902 the deaths reported in the Bombay Presidency were 62,667, compared with 17,806 in the corresponding period of 1901. Other parts of India show a corresponding increase especially in the Punjaub, where the deaths in 1900 were 515, in 1901 15,-245, while in the first months of 1902 the figures have risen enormously. The deaths reported in March alone numbered 42,788.

THE COFFEE HEART.

The largest part of the coffee grown in the world is consumed in the United States, and some of our life insurance societies are beginning Jewett's Corner, Woodstock, N. to realize how its excessive use increases the risks of life. Its effect is in shortening the long beat of the heart, and medical examiners for insurance companies have added the term "coffee heart" to their regular classification of the functional derangements of that organ. These physicians advise that the use of coffee be limited to not more than two cups a day. Coffee topers, they say, are plentiful and are as much tied to their cups as the whisky toper. The effect of the coffee upon the heart is more lasting and consequently worse than that of liquor.
