Some Results of Impure Blood.

A blotched, pimply, disfigured face, feeling of exhaustion, wracked nerves, headache and a dull brain. The proper cure is one Ferrozone Tablet after each meal. Ferrozone clears and beautifies the complexion by making rich, pure blood. It restores the enfeebled brain and unstrung nerves to a healthy vigorous condition. It invigorates all the physical and mental powers, and brings strength and ambition to the depressed. Refuse a substitute for Ferrozone—it's the best tonic, re-builder and invigorator known. Price 50c, at Druggists or Polson & Co, Kingston, Ont.

The potato crop of Aroostook is not very promising just at present. Owing to the wet weather many barrels of seed, planted on wet ground, have rotted, while other pieces have missed badly. On higher land, or on side-hill pieces they are looking fairly well. Should the weather clear and be warm, most of the pieces will do all right. A few farmers have plowed up their crop, or a part of it, and sown grain.

CANADIANS DISPLEASED.

Complaints are many against the treatment accorded the Canadian coronation contingent, by the war office officials. A late London despatch says:—

"It is glaringly apparent that the arrangements made by the War Office for the Canadian contingent entirely disregarded the convenience of the officers and men. In the first place the location of the camp at Alexandra Palace was unwise. When the contingent arrived from Liverpool officers and men were divided. It required a united protest from the Canadian officers to secure the cancellation of the order separating them from their men. The Duke of Connaught, in inspecting the Canadians, expressed surprise that the men should march past in fatigue dress. He was informed that the new uniforms were in the tents. The general had ordered dress fatigue uniforms, the same as worn aboard ship. The men marched past in furs instead of full front, which placed them at a great disadvantage. According to the original arrangements, there was no place for the entire contingent in the procession, not even Colonel Pellatt and his staff. The command was given to Col. Turner, of the Canadian Artillery, Quebec. The infantry were to be used to line the streets and the cavalry of the contingent divided up to escort the different premiers' carriages. The premiers were to be bunched together. Sir Frederick Borden, Canadian Minister of Militia, exerted the strongest pressure to bring about a modification of these plans. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, it is said, would not have appeared in the procession if the Canadians had been separated as assigned by the War Office. Sir Wilfrid was determined that the Canadian contingent should be headed by Col. Pellatt. If the coronation ceremony had not been postponed, serious friction would have ensued. The officers of the contingent were unanimous in their support of Sir Wilfrid's contention. In Canadian circles here, irrespective of politics, the position taken by Sir Wilfrid is enthusiastically approved. The officers all acted together."

Their contention was finally upheld by Sir Frederick Borden. They did their best until the postponement of the great event, to have the Canadian contingent kept together. The Canadian bands, including the Queen's Own bugle band, were allotted to points in the route, not in the procession. If the coronation had taken place, and the War Office had adhered to its plan, there would have been no Canadian troops in the procession or on the street. Sir Wilfrid, Sir Frederick Borden, and the other Canadian ministers, expressed approval of the action of Col. Pellatt and his officers and men."

The Canadian contingent has been invited to remain two weeks longer. The officers are willing to stay, but the men have had enough of Alexandra Palace for a lifetime and they have decided to sail on Thursday. Among the members of the Canadian contingent it is greatly regretted that friction occurred, but the War Office is absolutely to blame. A review is ordered for to-morrow, but no horses are available for the Canadian cavalry and artillery, and they must march in their jackboots. Sir Frederick Borden has been at work all day, at the Colonial office, trying to get horses and Col. Pellatt has been indefatigable in his efforts to make arrangements right, both for the procession, which has been postponed, and for the review. All the Canadians apprised of the circumstances support Col. Pellatt. He declines to be interviewed, but all these facts come from the highest authorities.

It must be understood, however, that Col. Turner had nothing whatever to do with the order given him to take command on Friday. He was a soldier, and as such would obey. Colonels Pellatt and Turner, as well as all the officers of the contingent, are working together with the greatest harmony.

The authorities of Alexandra Palace have been making a circus attraction of the Canadian troops. They are charging a shilling one day for entrance and sixpence the other. Lady Laurier and her friends were stopped at the gate yesterday, admittance being demanded and collected before they were allowed to enter. This charging of admittance has caused great indignation among the colonials, which will not help to heal the friction arising from the general mismanagement of the War Office.

With regard to the return journey, Col. Pellatt's arrangements are well managed in every detail and seem perfect. The baggage is ready packed, and four special trains will be in readiness to-morrow morning. The Tunisian is ready at Liverpool, but the War Office answer hangs fire.

The bugle band of the Q. O. R. has created quite a commotion among those who can appreciate a good thing, and the members have been lionized everywhere. It is the prevailing opinion that the contingent, the bugle band and the Canadian arch at Whitehall, combined, have been the best advertisement Canada has ever had here."

The Engineer Against the Economist.

Economics, for the man in the street, begins with Adam Smith. Smith's "Wealth of Nations" was published in the latter half of the eighteenth century (1776), just before the influence of the engineer and mechanic was beginning to be felt. The only steam engine mentioned by Smith is Newcomen's; and the cotton trade is only referred to by him once, and that incidentally. Nevertheless the great manufacturers were then coming to birth. Between the years 1760 and 1770, Roebuck began to smelt iron by coal, Brindley was cutting canals from Manchester to the sea, Wedgwood discovered the art of making earthenware cheaply and well, Hargreaves invented the spinning jenny, Arkwright perfected the throstle and applied water power to turn it, and Watt invented the condensing steam engine. No wonder Smith, with all his intellectual sharpness, was unable to foresee precisely the way in which social matters would develop. Ever since that time the engineer and the mechanic have been upsetting the calculations both of the philosopher and the practical man.

Constipation

Causes Headache, Abdominal Pains, Piles and in Severe Cases Insanity and Apoplexy.

It is a common mistake to conclude that Constipation is not a dangerous condition. Although at first it is only accompanied by slight inconvenience and pain, yet, if not corrected, it will inevitably lead to very dire results. Great care should be used in selecting a remedy for Constipation because, if a violent purgative is employed, it is sure to set up pain, irritation and congestion, and result finally in piles.

The experience of those who have tested all the cures for Constipation, seems to prove that Ferrozone is the most agreeable and satisfactory treatment. It makes the bowels so well ordered that natural and unassisted action is established. Nothing can equal the immediate sense of comfort it produces, and pains in the head and stomach, and in the intestines, disappear almost at once. Ferrozone is very mild and certain in its action and never causes inconvenience or distress. Ferrozone can be taken easily as long as required, and it in no way interferes with business or pleasure, and nothing may be feared from its use however prolonged it may be.

For Constipation, Piles and Sick Headache, Ferrozone stands unrivalled. The driver of the city Express company, who suffered from piles, says: "Constant sitting on the wagon seat produced a rectal irritation, which, combined with constipation, led to the piles. I used without benefit, different ointments, and other remedies; but got quick relief and most satisfactory results from Ferrozone. I can recommend Ferrozone to all who suffer from piles." Ferrozone always cures, and can be purchased at any reliable drug store for 50c. a box or three boxes for $1.25. Sent to your address by mail, if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Monday was not the sort of a day here that provokes hilarity or promotes the picnic. THE HUMAN HEART.

The heart of man is a book—nay, it is an encyclopedia of everything that has ever come within the range of its personal experience. It preserves an eternal record of all the stories in which it has played a part. It is strange what sad things may be hidden in its depth without giving any token of their existence. The heart may be gay and may send the smile mantling to the face, but all the while you see only the topmost stratum. If the graves beneath were to give up their dead, the smiles would seem strangely out of place.

It is just like this green earth of ours that renews itself year after year and has not on its surface any token to tell what is the simple truth, that it has given graves to 200 generations of human beings.—Farrell.

"HER TOUCH."

A sailor, who met with a serious accident, was carried to the London hospital. The poor mother hurried to the building to see her son. She was met by a kind but firm refusal from the house physician; but nothing daunted she pleaded for admission to the poor fellow's bedside.

Who could resist a mother's entreaties? The safety of the patient lay in his being kept absolutely quiet; but the physician consented to her admission on condition that she did not speak a word. She stole softly to his bedside, and gazed, as only a mother can at her unconscious boy. She dare not speak, but a mother's love was not to be denied all expression, and gently laying her hand on his fevered brow she let it rest there a moment, and then noiselessly crept from the room. The watchful nurse heard the comatose sleeper murmur the words, "Her Touch!" and, rousing himself, he added, "Surely my mother has been here; I know her touch!" Ah! there was an electric thrill of sympathy in that touch, which told its own tale to the dying man.

There were ten thousand persons in the big religious demonstration of the Catholic Order of Foresters for the Province of Quebec in Montreal on Sunday.
