(Concluded)

To the Editor of Carleton Sentinel:

In the report of the Dominion dairy farm the account with each cow is kept and in a herd of 20 cows—one cow, the best one, gave 10,595 lbs of milk, test 3.4, made 436 lbs butter, which sold for $97.35, cost of feed was $40.85, leaving a profit of $56.50. Her average per day of milk was 30.2 pounds.

The poorest cow of the twenty gave 3479 lbs milk, test 4, 169 lbs butter, worth $37.09. The cost of feed was $36.20 and the net profit 89 cents. Her average yield of milk per day was 15.6 pounds.

Now if the accurate accounts kept at the dairy farm, show that a cow giving 15.6 milk for 222 days, only makes 89 cents profit, what about our sixteen herds giving 15 pounds or less. Of course we do not give our cows $36 dollar feed in the year, but can we prevent a loss by depriving the cows of food?

Now that by the monthly statements we can easily tell the average amount of milk and fat yield of our herd per day. How can the record of the individual cow be ascertained?

There is only one way known, that is to weigh the milk of each cow. If this could not be done every day it might be done twice a week. A spring scale could be hung in the stable. The empty milk pails might be made to weigh just two pounds. After milking, the time it would take to weigh and record the quantity, would not be more than a quarter of a minute to each cow. A ruled slate and a pencil tied with a string, could be hung up near by, and the amounts could be taken off at the house once a week.

The school girls or boys would be glad to help in this work and it would do them good to do so.

Samples of the milk could be saved (The Creamery Co would supply the samples, bottles) and tested without charge by the Company, so that it would not cost much of time or trouble for a man to find out which of his cows were, and which not paying expenses.

One thing we have noticed in carefully examining the statistics, in 90 cases out of 100, the cows that give the most milk make the most money—in other words the quantity of milk is much more important than the test for butter fat. A good test is very desirable but the quantity of milk must be behind it, to make the cheque satisfactory.

If the poor or non-paying cows were culled out, and put away, an improvement would soon be manifest, and dairymen would feel some pride in caring for and feeding cows that were paying a good profit for his attention. No doubt there is a chance for a great improvement in stables, light, air, cleanliness and warmth. The cow will amply repay the trouble taken to make her comfortable.

Good food given regularly, plenty good water and gentle treatment all contribute to fill the pail, and increase the amount of cash receipts.

Since writing the above we have seen a communication from "X" in the last SENTINEL. And we are glad that the farmers are waking up to the question, does it pay? It is not unnatural that they should blame the Creamery Co for not paying a higher price for butter fat. But if they will think what they were doing all the years before they sold to the Creamery Co, or what they will make if they make up the butter themselves, they will soon see that it is not only the price received for the butter or milk. But the quantity they can raise per cow to sell!

IF A E Plummer of Waterville, last June, got 400 pounds of milk a day in the month of June, from ten cows, while the average of the county was only 204, and sixteen herds were 15 or less, is it not food for thought, if you leave the Creamery Co out of the discussion altogether.

We notice that one of the Sussex farmers brought over 130,000 pounds of milk to the Creamery last year, and received over $975. What is done in Kings, can be done in Carleton county, only we want better milking cows or better feed and attention, or both.

We can do it, and whether it will pay each farmer better to make up his own butter, or go in together with the Creamery, is a question each one must settle for himself. But the man who will make the money out of the dairy business is not the man who gets less than 20 pounds per day per cow. There is much more that could be said on this subject, but it cannot all be said at one time. I agree with "X" that the discussion is likely to do good. Let us be frank and manly, write over your own name. We shall hold ourselves responsible for all that is said by Yours truly,

ST. JOHN LETTER.

We have all heard of cat farms, fox farms, frog farms, skunk farms and rabbit farms, some of which have proved profitable, and now we hear of a crow farm in Pennsylvania, where the birds are raised for their wings, with which to decorate the lady's hat. The farm has been in operation about three years, and last year the proprietor sold 230 pairs of wings for $300. He expects to increase his output to 1,000 pairs a year. Cruel? No worse cruel than to grow chickens for market. Near Scarborough, England, there is a farm that is devoted to the raising of butterflies and moths. They are killed and mounted in books and on cards for naturalists and museums all over the world. The output averages 20,000 of the insects every season, at prices ranging from ten cents to $5 each. In Bohemia there is a bug farm, where the bugs of all nations are produced and sold to naturalists and museums. Of the thousands of varieties that are cultivated the sales are enormous. Some of the armor plated bugs of the tropics are very beautiful and are used in the manufacture of jewelry.

The Horse Importation.

Five stallions bought for the government by Hon L P Farris and Mr Ora P King arrived here this afternoon in a special car attached to the C P R express. The steeds were shipped from Montreal on Monday night and were in charge of Mr Wm Ness, son of the proprietor of the Woodside farm, of Howick, P.Q., well known throughout New Brunswick.

The horses which arrived here today include three Clydesdales, a hackney and a thoroughbred. Two of the Clydesdales were purchased from Mr Ness, they being Copyright, No. 2739, a handsome bay with white face and weighing 1750 pounds; and Baron Frederick, a 1600 pound steed. Both stallions were sired by Baron's Pride, the famous Scotch Clydesdale, and which has carried off more honors than any other Clydesdale in the old country. They were purchased as two year olds, by Mr Ness, two years ago, from A S W Montgomery of Scotland, and both are fine specimens of horseflesh in their class.

The other Clydesdale is also an imported horse, of heavy, blocky build. He is a fine bay, 16 years old, standing 17 hands and tipping the scales at 1900 pounds. He was imported by George G Stewart, of New York, and was purchased from Graham Bros, Clearmount; has a good record. He is on the heavy class and an admirable draft horse.

Messrs Farris and King also secured a beautiful hackney, a stylish and handsome driver, from Graham Bros. He is a much admired animal by those who visited the stables this afternoon. He is a chestnut, weighing 1,245 pounds, and standing 15 hands, 2 1/2 inches. He was bred by Harris, of New York state, and is a carriage horse of splendid action and fine appearance.

The other stallion secured is one of the five English thoroughbreds brought out last season by Col Dent as the kind of horse required by the Imperial Government for the remount service. The one secured by the representatives of the government is a magnificent specimen named Dracula, and was purchased from Clunie & Telfer, of Montreal. The average cost of the seven horses purchased was about $500.

The horses are stabled at the Park Association track and may be seen by all interested persons. Ald D J Stockford is in charge and they could be in no better hands.

All the members of government accompanied Mr Farris and Mr King to the stables and admired the province's latest acquisition in horse flesh. Among the other visitors was Collector of Customs Henry Graham of St Stephen. Those who have seen the horses concede them to be among the finest ever brought to the province.—Fredericton Gleaner.

THE SPECULATIVE CRAZE.

Canada is now in the throes of a speculative fever that may not be stayed till a crash comes, and there is piled up a mass of wreckage on the shores of the financial sea that will shock the nation. All classes are in it. Not only business men and others having a little spare capital, but clerks, mechanics, and—worst of all—women, who should be devoting themselves to the duties of the household, are dicker in stocks like their male relatives. The spectacle is not a pleasing one. It is not wholesome. It does not conduce to the upbuilding of a strong or virile people. On the contrary it leads to licentiousness, a pandering to self, luxurious living, and physical and mental decadence. Men and women may get rich quickly in that way, but it is at too heavy a cost.—Toronto Sentinel.
