CHRONIC BILIOUSNESS.

In Its Trail Follow Horrible Dreams, Despondency, Melancholia and General Weakness.

The proper elements needed to promote good digestion, regularity of the bowels, correct action of the kidneys and liver, must be supplied when a bilious condition of the system is once established.

Ferrozone can't help but do this. It gives the stomach perfect rest and allows you to partake of and enjoy the variety of food that is necessary for maintaining health. One Ferrozone tablet, taken after each meal, will separate the nutritious portions of the food from the waste, which is carried off, thus preventing and curing constipation and its attendant evil, piles.

Being a potent blood purifier, Ferrozone cleanses the crimson flood of all bile and impurities, and, as a result, the complexion is restored to a rosy, healthy hue, and the dark circles under the eyes and the deathly pallor of the cheeks, go away never to return.

Taken for disorders of the stomach, commencing with biliousness, and ending with derangements of the liver and kidneys Ferrozone achieves marvelous results. It is at the same time a tonic and stimulant, and a regulator of all bodily functions, and chronic sufferers should not fail to give it a fair trial. It will do them good without doubt and, if the malady is curable, it will yield to Ferrozone.

With the use of Ferrozone, appetite will be better, the blood made rich and pure, sleep will be dreamless and sound. Your muddy complexion will be cleared and beautified, your eyes will acquire a new brightness, and as your spirits rise and good health returns, you will bless the day you learned the secret of Ferrozone's power.

If you think you need Ferrozone go to the nearest drug store and procure a supply. Refuse a substitute and insist on having the genuine Ferrozone, which costs 50c per box, or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

CANDA'S ARCH.

A recent issue of the London Daily News tells something about Canada's arch at the Coronation ceremony, which will be worth reproduction for the benefit of those in this country who are deprived of the pleasure of seeing it for themselves. The News says:

Living in close proximity to and in constant association with American people, it is but natural that Canadians should have acquired some of the leading characteristics of our and their cousins. Without exactly boasting of being able to, and being about to "lick creation," as the American phrase used to run, Canadian people, through the Dominion Government at home and the High Commissioner here, resolved upon making the very grandest triumphal arch in London in honor of the coronation of King Edward VII.

Said Mr. Preston, Government Agent for Emigration to Canada, to our representative at the High Commissioner, in Victoria street: "The arch will be in Whitehall, opposite the bronze statue of James II., and below the Horse Guards. It will be of 61 feet external span, and inside will be 20 feet wide, and it will be 65 feet high. The trophy is intended to be emblematic of the agricultural resources of the country. It may be of plate glass. It will be garished and beautified with products and emblems showing the development of the resources of Canada, and we hope it will tend to remove some of the prejudices as to our living in a region of ice and snow. In Canada we grow everything except the tropical fruits. The development of the interior is one of the objects we have in view."

"As to the arch itself, confidentially, I can tell you it will be one of the grandest things London has ever seen. Oh, yes, you can say so. The idea emanated from the Hon. Clifford Sifton, Minister of the Interior, and it has been taken up by Lord Strathcona, the Lord High Commissioner, who is in co-operation with the whole business. It will be done at the expense of the Canadian Government. Besides being emblematic, it will, of course, be a demonstration of loyalty. It is intended to be an evidence of Canadian loyalty, and we think we know something about patriotism."

CONTAGIOUS SORE EYES IN CATTLE.

"There exists each summer, in the United States and Canada, a contagious inflammation of the eyes among cattle, that is popularly called 'pink-eye' from the red and inflamed appearance of the eye. The disease is quite widely distributed, and while it occurs at all seasons of the year, it is most frequently observed during the summer months while cattle are on pasture, as dust and pollen from plants increase the irritation of the eye. The disease was first observed by the writer in this State," says N. S. Mayo, of the Kansas Experiment, "but, since that time, has spread rapidly, and is now quite common. The disease seems to attack young cattle rather than old, but cattle of all ages will take it, and it seems to affect old cattle more severely than calves. It does not affect other animals than cattle.

The cause of the disease has not been discovered, although it is believed to be due to a germ. The manner in which the disease is spread from one animal to another is little understood, although flies are believed to play an important part. The disease however spreads during the winter when there are no flies about. Direct contact seems to be a means of spreading the disease. They undoubtedly aggravate it, but the disease must be introduced into a locality by an infected animal.

The first symptom usually noticed is a profuse discharge of tears from one eye, running down over the face. Dust and dirt often adhere to the moist hair and a dirty streak is observed, especially in white faced cattle, extending from the inner corner of the eye downward across the face. The disease usually begins in one eye and later attacks the other eye. In some cases both eyes may be attacked at the same time. Associated with the discharge of tears is a swelling of the eyelids which are nearly closed, partly from the swelling, but principally to keep the light from the eye, as bright light seems to increase the pain. The front part of the eyeball becomes milky white in appearance, and one spot usually red or copper colored. At this point an abscess or small gathering usually forms and looks to be a reddish fleshy mass. It breaks and discharges a small amount of pus or matter that escapes with the tears. As the animal recovers and the eye resumes its normal condition, a white speck remains on the eyelid for some time as a scar showing where the abscess existed. In a few cases this abscess weakens the front of the eye to such an extent that it bursts and allows the contents of the anterior chamber of the eye to escape. A few of the cases where the eye bursts will heal and the animal will recover the sight, but in a majority of the cases the animal will be permanently blind in that eye. A few cases are reported where both eyes have burst and the animal was permanently blind in both eyes. During the acute stages of the disease if both eyes are affected at the same time, the inflammation may be so severe as to cause a temporary blindness, the animals being unable to see at all, and it is necessary to feed and water them to prevent them from falling away rapidly in flesh. If the animal has the disease in an acute form there is often some fever associated with it; and in practically all cases the animals cease to ruminate, and stand about with ears lopped and eyes closed exhibiting all signs of severe suffering. Milk cows usually fall away in the amount of milk secreted, or in severe cases it may be stopped entirely. Owing to a closing of the eyes together with pain, the animals do not eat well, especially while at pasture, and, as a result, fall away in flesh. Since practically no animals die of this disease and only a few are permanently affected as to sight, the greatest loss is in the shrinkage of flesh that follows the attack of the disease.

If possible the disease should be prevented by keeping infected animals away from the healthy. After the disease is once introduced amongst a bunch of cattle, by separating and isolating the affected animals as soon as the first symptoms are shown, the disease can be checked. It is not practicable to attempt to treat a large number of animals unless they should be especially valuable or suffer from the disease in a severe form. When it is advisable to treat an animal it should be placed in a darkened stable, the eyes thoroughly washed with cold water, all secretions removed, and a solution of boracic acid, twenty grains dissolved in an ounce of water, should be applied. A few drops of Harlequin oil, or a little ointment made by mixing one part of finely pulverized iodoform, with twelve parts of fresh lard or vasoline can be applied directly to the eyeball, by putting it on the inside of the eyelid, and gently rubbing it over the surface. Cloths wet with cold water and kept over the eyes are useful in reducing the in-

ST. JOHN LETTER.

Except about the wharves the city is unusually quiet, but a grand rush is expected from the country next week when the city will be in gala attire on account of the coronation. The day will be a notable one here as it will be everywhere else in the Empire. But about the wharves there is more activity than there was three months ago: twelve steamships are now loading for ports in the United Kingdom and the United States, also six barques and eighty two schooners. This is a pretty good showing.

The tongs of the city anticipate a good deal of enjoyment at a slugging match which is announced for coronation eve. It is a disgrace to the city that such exhibitions should be permitted.

The first wild strawberries of the year were received here last Tuesday from Wickham, Queens Co. Steamship Monarch, with the last cargo of horses for South Africa, sailed last Wednesday.

Seven or eight Konnebecensis Bay farmers expect to harvest this season from 60,000 to 80,000 boxes of strawberries for the St. John, Boston and New York markets.

Three Raymond & Whitcomb excursion parties are to tour the province this summer.

It is estimated that there are 1,500 unlicensed dogs in the city. Except for a slight advance in prices of following articles, markets are unchanged since last week.
