BASE BALL.

Lovers of the game may expect a treat on Monday, May 25th (Victoria day), on the morning of which, our crack team, the Woodstock Colts, will accept the challenge of that famous team of Connell's Foundry.
This team has defeated everything that has gone against them in the past, but will meet the hardest team of all when they play the star team called the Colts, who, last year, under the name of the Grammar School team, met some of the best teams in the northern part of the Province and established a fine record for themselves. With Donnelly and Mc-Kinley, the crack battery of the Woodstock Browns, as battery for the Foundry team, and Milmore and Mercer in the points for the Colts some hot work may be expected.
The hard hitting powers of the Foundry team and the splendid holding of the Colts should display some good base ball.

The line-up will be as follows:—
Colts:—Dalling, 2d b.; McRae, 1st b.; Milmore, p.; McLean, 3d b.; Mercer, captain, c.; Donovan, s. s.; R. Mc-Lauchlan, c. f.; G. McLauchlan, r. f.; A. Glidden, l. f.
Foundry:—H. McKinley, c.; C. Donnelly, p.; J. Long, s. s.; O. Fournier, 1st b.; G. Buck, 3d b.; S. Pickel, r. f.; F.
Buck, captain, l. f.; A. Bagley, c. f.; W. Courtney, 2d b.

In the afternoon the Houlton Stars, who promise to be the leading team in that town this season, will cross bats with the Colts. This game will be as good, if not better, than the morning game as considerable rivalry exists between the two teams.
Saunders and Cameron will be the battery for the Stars and Roy Mc-Lauchlan and Mercer will officiate for the Woodstock boys.

Chamberlain on the Tariff Question.

LONDON, May 15.—Addressing his constituents at Birmingham tonight, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain made an important speech, which seems to foreshadow the direct raising of the question of free trade vs. protection at the next general election.

Mr. Chamberlain's unusual reticence and his absence from parliament and the political arena since he returned from South Africa have been the occasion of considerable comment, so has also the fact that he took no part in the heated discussions excited by Mr. Ritchie's budget and the remission of the grain tax. In to-night's pronoun-cement probably will be found an explanation of this attitude. It at least shows a variance of opinion with Premier Balfour's speech of to-day, on the abolition of the grain duty.

In the beginning of his speech, Mr.
Chamberlain referred to his South African tour and to his return home to find the minds of the people filled with local questions. He made light of the difficulties he had been told assailed the Unionist party. For him these local questions were comparatively unimportant beside the great imperialist policy upon which the fate of the empire depended; namely, "whether we stand together one free nation against all the world, or whether we shall fall into separate states, selfishly seeking their own interests and losing the advantages that unity alone can give."

The colonial secretary proceeded strongly to urge the necessity, in order to preserve the great empire, that the trade of the colonies should be secured. Canada has offered exceptional advantages, he said, which Great Britain did not dare accept because of the narrow interpretation of the doctrine of free trade, the policy of dictation and interference by foreign powers.

Mr. Chamberlain said he was justified by the belief that Great Britain was so wedded to its fiscal system that it could not defend its colonies.
This was a position not intended by the pioneers of free trade, who, if they were alive to-day, would agree to a treaty of preference and reciprocity with the empire's children.
The speaker said he believed that an entirely wrong interpretation had been placed upon the doctrine of free trade, but that the country ought not to be bound by this, and it should not hesitate to resort to retaliatory, if necessary, whenever the interests between the colonies and the home country were threatened.

Mr. Chamberlain avowed himself a free trader, but he objected to the artificial and narrow interpretation of free trade. He pointed out that Cobden had made, and that Bright had approved, a preferential treaty with France, and said:—
"There are two alternatives before you: First, to maintain the free trade policy in all its severity, although it is repudiated by every other nation and your colonies; second, to insist that we be not bound by any purely technical definition of free trade. While we seek the one chief object, the free interchange of commerce between ourselves and all the nations of the world, we will nevertheless recover our freedom, resume the power of negotiation, and if necessary, of retaliatory."

In conclusion the colonial secretary said he desired that the discussion of this subject should be open.
It was an issue graver in its consequences than mere local disputes.
A mistake in legislation could be corrected, he said, but a mistake in imperial policy was irretrievable.
Personally he did not think a general election very near, but whether near or distant, the issue would depend on whether the people have it in their hearts to do all that is necessary even if it occasionally went against their prejudices to consolidate an empire which could only be maintained by relations of interest as well as by relations of sentiment.

Weak?
