In his book on "China and the Chinese" Dr. Giles gives a specimen of Chinese humor which, if the source were not known, might well be mistaken for American humor.

There is a Chinese story which tells how a very stingy man took a paltry sum of money to an artist—payment is always exacted in advance—and asked him to paint his portrait. The artist at once complied with the request, but when the portrait was finished nothing was visible save the back of the sitter's head.

"What does this mean?" cried the sitter indignantly.

"Well," replied the artist, "I thought a man who paid so little as you paid wouldn't care to show his face."

Amorous Youth—Oh, yes, we can read.

MATTHIAS FOLEY. Oil City, Ont.

The other day a little red faced Irishman approached a postoffice which had three letter boxes outside. One was labeled 'City,' another 'Domestic' and the third 'Foreign.' He looked at the three in turn and then, as a puzzled expression crossed his face, scratched his head.

"Faith," he was heard to mutter, "I don't know in which way to put 'th' letter! Sure, Katie's a domestic, an' she lives in 'th' city, all right, an' she's a furnisher, too; but, begobs, I dunno how 'th' thing can go in both of 'th' three holes at wance!"

Deafness is Curable!

Sufferers from impaired hearing will be glad to know that their affliction is probably not due to any organic defect in the ear, but results probably from a thickening of the lining of the middle ear caused by catarrhal inflammation. Hundreds of perfect recoveries as a result of the inhalation of Catarrhazone are reported, and on the highest authority we recommend this treatment to our readers. Catarrhazone quickly restores lost hearing, and its efficiency is placed beyond dispute by the case of Mr. Warren of Toronto, who recovered perfect hearing by using Catarrhazone, after years of deafness. Price $1. At Druggists or by mail, from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Look on the Bright Side.

The sufferer from nervous exhaustion is generally blue and discouraged. He looks on the dark side of things and fears paralysis, locomotor ataxia or insanity. All this is changed by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which gradually and naturally rekindles and revitalizes the wasted nerve cells and instills new vigor and energy into the whole system.

Had Been in

But the doctors did not cure him—They said he would never be well—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a wonderful medicine.

Mr. SIMON CROUCHER, shoemaker, 110

Lagauchetiere St., Montreal, Que., states:—

"For six years I was not able to work, my nerves were all unstrung and my digestion bad. I had severe attacks of headache, could not sleep, and suffered with shooting pains in the small of my back. I was in four hospitals but the doctors could not cure me. They said I would never be well again. In spite of their decision I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food some months ago, and I am convinced that I owe my life to this medicine."

Mr. Cloutier I have now been at work for over two weeks, and believe that my health has been fully restored. It is a pleasure for me to add my testimony to the hosts of others from persons who have been cured by this wonderful medicine."

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his remedies.

"What," inquired the psychological student, "do you regard as the chief end of man?"

"Well," answered Mr. Blykins, "it depends on what you want the man for. If you want him to do brain-work, it's his head; but if you want him to run errands, it's his feet."

Life.

The poet's exclamation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves, are among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but exist; for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, run-down, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes exhausted life into life, and makes life more abundant. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.

Do you know whose automobile it was? Inquired the reporter, who was the first one to reach him after the accident.

No, sir, said the victim.

Yes, it was the 27th. I had managed to dodge all the others.

Minard's Liniment cures Diphtheria.

John's Caution.—How's this, John?

You said that you intended to propose to Miss Gushington this evening, and here you are back before nine o'clock. She surely didn't refuse you?

"No, I didn't propose. I decided to postpone the question."

"Now, John, if you don't get that girl it's your own fault. The idea of being such a coward. You, who have bravely walked up to the cannon's mouth."

"Yes, but the cannon hadn't been eating onions."

"Why, George, what an enormous pile of letters!" exclaimed the bride of a week. "Billettes doux, I suppose."

"No, my dear," replied the other half of the sketch. "They are billies overdue."

Young Wife (sobbing)—I will not keep still! Before we were married you said I had a charming flow of language.

Young Husband—And so you have, dear. It not only flows, but lashes, leaps, bounds, roars, goes over cat- aracts and mill-slides, and there is an occasional water-spout as well.

A story is told of a judge who had a notorious scoundrel brought before him. In the course of his examination his honor asked:

PNEUMONIA.

The American Medical Association which recently closed its annual meeting at Saratoga, gave most attention to the terrible increase in the death rate from pneumonia. Consumption has for years been the greatest destroyer of life. However, in the last decade pneumonia has claimed equally as many victims. In discussing the disease, James J. Walsh, Ph. M. D., says the following: "We hear much of the ravages of diphtheria; the whole country is disturbed by the thought of smallpox; but at their worst these diseases are only trivial factors in the death rate of our large cities, and pneumonia is responsible for about one in seven of all the deaths that occur."

"There is no drug that will shorten the course of pneumonia, much less cure the disease. The only thing is to care for the patient intermittently so as to tide him over the crisis of the disease. Notwithstanding all the study given to the disease, physicians confess that they are no more successful in treating pneumonia now than they were fifty years ago."

Dr. Walsh claims that pneumonia is caused by germs and that the disease is contagious. He further advises taking the same precaution to prevent its spread as is done in cases of consumption, or in other words, he advocates chasing the bug out of existence that causes the disease.

In past editorials I have called attention to the uselessness and waste of time in attempting to exterminate germs. It cannot be done with the present methods at our command. The only sensible way to combat both pneumonia and consumption is to develop the disease resisting powers of the body. Breathe more air, breathe it properly. Develop healthy lung tissue, so that when germs do find their way into the delicate lung tissue, that the rich blood will destroy them immediately.

If deep breathing will cure consumption, and I have ample evidence that it will do so, then it is reasonable to suppose that deep breathing will prevent consumption.

$25,000,000 in Five Minutes.

GREATEST LOSER ON RECORD DIES IN A GARRET IN LONDON SLUM.

New York, June 5.—In a grimy garret in a London slum there died the other day the only man who ever succeeded in losing $25,000,000 in five minutes' time.

His name was Henri Thibault. For years prior to his death he had eked out a precarious subsistence as a translator and teacher of languages. Yet 13 years previously he had been the prime mover in the great copper corner, the collapse of which shook to its foundations the French financial world.

Thibault's idea was to secretly buy up the world's available supply of copper, and wait for the inevitable rise. And he came near succeeding.

From his office in Paris he controlled through his agents, the markets of London, Berlin and Vienna, and in all of them he purchased every pound of copper that was offered.

The result was quickly apparent. On July 1, 1887, "B. C. B.'s" (best Chili bars) were selling at $200 a ton. By June 1 they had risen to $260, and the rise continued steadily until the middle of December, 1888, when the unheard of price of a fraction over $500 a ton was being asked and obtained.

Then came the collapse. Thibault had sunk all his own money in the venture, all he could borrow, all he could beg, and still, from all sort of odd and unexpected corners of the world copper came pouring in.

As soon as he ceased buying he had, of course, to commence selling, and this hastened and accentuated the inevitable end. By March 1 the price had dropped to less than it was when Thibault commenced operations.

Altogether the gigantic gamble cost him $50,000,000, of which sum fully one-half was lost between noon and five minutes past on Feb. 28, 1889, when the bottom dropped out of his corner.—Stray stories.

JULY NUMBER OF NEW IDEA WOMAN'S MAGAZINE.

Everything of interest and importance to the life and comfort of a home-maker in the Summer time, from golf to bathing suits and the various ways of serving cherries, is touched upon in the Midsummer Number of the New Idea Woman's Magazine. "Parasols and Sun Umbrellas" are reviewed by Kate Wallace Clements; Frances Dana sets forth the vogue in "Summer Gloves and Mitts"; and Waldon Fawcett tells "How to Make Porticoes Attractive." "The Fourth of July in Luzon" is charmingly described by L. McLaughlin, and a page of humor delightfully illustrated is an excellent feature for the hot weather. The patterns set forth the latest vagaries of fashion, and the stories are extraordinarily interesting.

A Montreal despatch says: "A novelty in the way of taking steps to prevent tuberculosis in the Province of Quebec was observed in many of the Protestant churches here on Sunday. Prominent medical practitioners occupied the pulpits, and delivered scientific addresses on the dread malady. The idea took shape a short time ago during a meeting of citizens interested in the anti-consumption movement, when it was decided that to educate the masses on the real condition in this respect was of the first importance."

Sick Headache—
Lack of Appetite.

Its glorious to feel right in the morning—ready for work. But how seldom one does. Sick headache, lack of appetite, disagreeable taste in the mouth—these are the usual morning feelings of most people—even of careful liver.

This morning illness shows that the organs of digestion are not working properly. They need a tonic. Take a teaspoonful of Study the Right Side.

A photographer was asked the other day if there is any special reason why most photographs show the left side of the face and not the right.

"Yes, there is a reason," he answered. "In majority of cases the left side is the good looking side, and photographers know this and take advantage of it. On the other hand, if you want to get at the real strength and character of a person's face, man or woman, study the right side of it—the ugly side, as some portrait painters call it. There you will find the lines bold and harsh, comparatively so at any rate, with every defect accentuated. On the left side, however, everything is softened down, and the face is at its best."

"Whenever you suspect a man of trickery or deceit, or woman either for that matter, stand on his right and closely watch his expression. There never was an actor skillful enough to cover up the marks of his real personality, as nature has stamped them on the right side of his face."

How the Springboks Travel.

The springboks of South Africa migrate in vast herds, moving in a compact body and carrying everything before them. If a flock of sheep be in the line of March, as sometimes happens, it is surrounded, enveloped and becomes, willingly or unwillingly, part of the springbok army. An African hunter tells the strange story of seeing a lion in the midst of the antelopes, forced to join the march. It is supposed that the lion had sprung too far for his prey, that those upon whom he alighted recoiled sufficiently to allow him to reach the ground, and then the pressure from both flanks and the rear prevented him from escaping from his strange captivity.

If the springbok travels in such armies, how can those in the middle and in the rear find food? In this wise: Those in the front ranks, after they have eaten greedily of the pasture, gradually fall out of the ranks to rest and chew the cud, while the hungry ones in the rear come up, and so the columns are all the while changing.

The Discovery of the Fork.

Some believe that the fork was in use all over Europe as early as the year 500 A. D., but if they were their use and the fork itself were lost sight of up to about the beginning of the seventeenth century, when it was either discovered or rediscovered and popularized. Walton, Weems and other antiquarians hold to the earlier date, because a stone vessel containing coins of the middle ages and some iron forks were found at Sevington, England, in the year 1834.
