BIG FIRE AT OTTAWA.

300 Buildings and an Immense Quantity of Lumber Destroyed.

SEVEN THOUSAND PERSONS HOMELESS
(Condensed from Montreal Herald's Account.)

Ottawa, May 11.—Three hundred buildings burned; about 500 families, or 7,000 persons rendered homeless; more than 10,000,000 feet of lumber destroyed, with a total loss of more than $600,000—this tells the tale of a fire that broke out in Ottawa yesterday at 3.30 in the afternoon, and burned until 9.30 in the evening.

Probably one half of the loss is actually covered by insurance.

The fire is thought to have been incendiary in origin, and while John White, an ex-convict on ticket-of-leave, is held on a charge of drunkenness, the finger of suspicion is said to point against him.

The blaze started in the lumber piles near the Canada Atlantic Railroad tracks, just west of Preston St. The fire-swept area—about 100 acres—was in part the same as that over which the great fire of 1900 burned, only it commenced where that one left off and worked in an opposite direction.

Shortly after noon the first blaze was discovered in J. R. Booth's piles, corner of Broad street and the Richmond road. This fire did not gain any headway, but entailed a loss of about $1,500.

"Hell with the lid off" was the term used a few days ago by Burns, the English labor leader, in describing industrial conditions in America. It is a term that is quite as applicable to the situation in the west end of the city yesterday evening.

The residents of the doomed district, with the memory of the fire of April, 1900, still fresh, were congratulating themselves on the success of the fire brigade in nipping in the bud the blaze which, at 12.30, had burst out in the east end of the Broad street lumber yards adjoining the C. P. R. station.

Strange to say the fire was checked in its eastward course at precisely the same point as on the previous occasion, at the McClenaghan residence. This is situated on the crest of a hill south of St. Jean Baptiste Church and overlooking Division Street. Had the flames communicated to this residence no power could have saved the western part of Ashburnham Hill.

ALBERT TOILET SOAP CO., MRS. MONTREAL.

When the fire started there was a stiff south-west breeze blowing directly toward the city. The flames were first seen about 3.30 by Frank Bossino, an Italian, and W. Starrs, a plumber, who were strolling along the railway tracks. The fire was then in the grass and being blown towards the lumber piles. Mr. Bossino told the Herald that he and his companion tried to stamp out the fire, but it got away from them, and got into the lumber piles. The flames travelled rapidly then. Some one immediately rang alarm box 162, and the work of getting out household effects began. The fire from that time spread like lightning.

The furniture that had been piled in the park fell a prey to the flames, and many spectators, who had assembled near the original point of the fire, had to run for their lives. Once in the wooden buildings on the east side of Preston street, the fire raged unchecked.

This was the point at which the water gave out completely. The main valve at the pump house had given out and there was not a drop of water to be had. It looked as if the whole city were doomed and a walk from one end of the block to the other made a difference of four or five houses.

From the time the water supply gave out until the break was repaired the fire worked through about one hundred houses and swept so quickly that people had simply to walk out and leave their belongings behind them. The fire raged from house to house in the twinkling of an eye.

About 5.30, by which time the water pressure had been worked up again, the fire had reached Somerset street, burning all before it from Rochester street, west. At Somerset street the fire worked across to the east side of Rochester and through a wooden stable and a large wood pile to Division St. This looked as though the fire was going to cross clear through the northwestern corner and into Hull and the big French church, St. Jean Baptiste, seemed a certain prey. From the wood piles on the west side of Division St. to some wooden houses on Lorne Avenue was the work of an instant. The Dominican Fathers, who have charge of St. Jean Baptiste, got out with the hose belonging to the church and poured water on the wood piles at the back of the church. The building is a solid stone structure, and this with the work of the firemen, prevented the fire from getting beyond the wooden houses on the west side of Lorne Avenue.

This was as far east as the fire worked, and from this time on the fire began to fall under the control of the brigade.

About 6 o'clock Mayor Cook wired Mayor Cochrane, of Montreal, asking for assistance.

It then looked as if the whole city was going. He received a reply that two engines, two hose wagons and twenty-five men were leaving 8.37 by special train. The force reached Ottawa at eleven, and while the engines and hose were not required by that time the men's assistance was warmly welcomed as the Ottawa firemen were completely exhausted.

At 5.30 the mayor, Ald. Grant, Ald. Plouffe and Ald. Payment requisitioned the militia to assist the civil powers.

Mayor Cook states that the city would not be looking for assistance outside of Canada. The people who were burned out were all looked after by friends last night, and not a single case of appeal for aid was made to the city authorities, the people seemingly being taken care of by their friends.

A meeting of the city council has been called to arrange for assistance and relief to the suffering.

The Canadian Pacific Railway had everything moveable taken out of their yards in case of fire. All the freight in the sheds was loaded into freight cars and hauled to a point of safety. The yards and buildings were at one time seriously threatened.

At the burial of a South London man his six dogs draped in black followed the cortege.

WORLD'S FAIR.

April 30th to St. Louis—1903.

Oh say, St. Lou.,
We're looking at you
And so is the whole wide world
As your flag is unfurled
To-day.
And say,
What do we see?
The Future Great?
Ah, that's too late.
You're the Present Great;
And you've got there
For fair.
You're the centre of the universe,
And every voice is turned
St. Louisward this April day
To boom the place you've earned.
A year from now
We'll place on your brow
The crown of your greatness,
The diadem.
With fourteen states
As its one grand gem;
The richest and finest
That ever shone
In the crown of the monarch
Of any throne.
We'll crown you Queen,
The Queen of the Purchase,
The lady fair,
Whose palaces rise through the misty air.

And their golden gleams
Mark the site of a wonderful
City of dreams.
Oh say, St. Lou.,
That's you;
Indeed it is,
Gee whizz,
Don't you know yourself?
Can't you rise and say:
"Here comes St. Louis;
Get out of the way?"
You bet you can;
And you've said it so
The whole wide world
Has come to know
You're going to have the greatest show.

That ever happened,
And in its pride
Of you,
St. Lou.,
It will stand aside
To give you all of the road and more
For your spread in 1904.
From the little village of Pere
Chouteau
To what you are,
The Queen and the Star
Of an empire bought
That Freedom might be wholly wrought
Into an undivided free
And glorious land from sea to sea.
That's you,
St. Lou.
Any man, who says its not,
Will be shot
On the spot
See?

Mr. Blair's Policy Meets With General Approval.

Winnipeg, Man. May 8.—The adoption by the dominion government of a policy of keeping railways 40 miles apart in Northwest Canada when granting future railway charters, as announced by Hon. Mr. Blair, minister of railways and canals, meets with general approval, because additional railway mileage constructed hereafter will all be developing existing lines in sections already well served.

THE INVALIDS' HOME.

THE IDEAL MODERN HOSPITAL.

It is generally the case that when some great modern improvement of old methods of business is put forward, the world says, 'How simple! Why didn't somebody think of it before?' When you read of an 'Invalids' Hotel' as the modern hospital ideal, the thought at once comes, 'What a great improvement. Why didn't somebody think of it before?' The Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., the unique model of medical and surgical progress, owes its existence to its founder, Dr. R. V. Pierce, and the rare combination of business acumen and professional ability which he possesses in a marked degree.

Most people dread the thought of the ordinary hospital, however beneficent the institution may be. In the popular mind the hospital is next to a prison; a place where identity is lost, and a man or woman becomes merely a 'case' for the experiments of doctors or surgeons. With his experience the thought occurred to Dr. Pierce, why not put the hospital on a hotel basis? Why not let the patient preserve his individuality and identity, and lead an existence as independent and free as the condition of invalidism will allow? And so was born and built the 'Invalids' Hotel,' whose waiters are white-clothed men and white-capped women nurses. Here are no great dreary wards, echoing with the moaning of the sick, but separate rooms, as in an ordinary hotel, with extraordinary hotel service, the servants being skilled physicians and nurses.

The Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute is provided with every modern appliance for the electrical or mechanical treatment of disease. Nearly a score of physicians (each man a specialist in his department) are in constant attendance on the inmates. Everything that can conduce to comfort and home-likeness is provided by Dr. Pierce for his guests, and the sights and sounds and smells of the public hospital are entirely avoided.

Undoubtedly Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., is the ideal modern hospital.

Miss Gannon, Sec'y Detroit Amateur Art Association, tells young women what to do to avoid pain and suffering caused by female troubles.

"I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, for at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well as I did."—Miss GULIA GANNON, 359 Jones St., Detroit, Corresponding Sec'y Mich. Amateur Art Association.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

It is clearly shown in this young lady's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will surely cure the sufferings of women; and when one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is only one of hundreds which we have, the great virtue of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all.
