AN ANNEXATIONIST.

William R. Hearst owns the New York American, the New York Evening Journal, the Chicago American (German), the Chicago American, the San Francisco Examiner and the Los Angeles Examiner. In these papers he advocates the annexation of Canada to the United States. Apparently he is convinced that our ultimate destiny is to be a part of the Union. One of his papers recently described Canada as being in "colonial cold-storage" until such time as the United States could turn its attention in this direction. From the Canadian point of view, he is a man to be watched, since he is an extreme expansionist, and believes that the United States is the greatest nation on earth, and that no country is too good to come under the protection of the Stars and Stripes.

Mr Hearst graduated from Harvard in the early eighties, and almost immediately took charge of the San Francisco Examiner, the property of his father, the late Senator Hearst. Charles Dexter Cleveland, who was then in charge, advised him not to be a "tag on a money bag," but to put his whole strength into producing a newspaper. Young Hearst apparently took the advice. He studied his business thoroughly and soon made the paper the leading "yellow" journal of the coast district. He came to New York and bought the Journal, and spent large sums of money in making it the prominent newspaper it is to-day. In 1900 he started the Chicago American and later added the other journals mentioned above. He claims to have about three and a half million readers every day.

Mr Hearst is in his fortieth year. Tall and robust, regular and temperate in habits, he has great capacity and concentration for work. Every undertaking is accomplished with accuracy and dispatch. His favorite hours of work are from eleven p. m. on through the night. At this time he may be found at his desk, bending over forms, calling out orders, making abrupt changes in the make-up of the pages at lightning speed, thoroughly at home in the confusion of the composing room at press time, and revealing an intimate knowledge of every detail of his business.

In 1902 he was elected to Congress from the Eleventh District of New York. Just now Hearst political clubs are being organized in every section of the country. The masses of the people seem to be turning to him as their champion and friend. Such is the man who promises to be a leading figure in United States politics during coming years, and Canada would do well to keep its eye upon him.—February Canadian Magazine.

RELIGIOUS TAXES.

In a certain constituency in Ontario, not long ago, a new church was being built by a certain religious body. The member of Parliament was, of course, asked to contribute to the subscription list although he was not a member of that religious body, nor did he reside within twenty miles of the parish limits. He gave $25. Later it was intimated to him that $50 was the amount required.

This is the sort of delicate blackmail which prevails all over Canada. Members of Parliament, mayors, reeves, aldermen, councillors and those appointed by popular vote are blackmailed on every hand. Of course, it is delicately done. There is no compulsion. Yet the man who has the hardihood to refuse soon feels the scorn of those who expected his donation. The practice is reprehensible, and its hideousness is not lessened by the fact that religious bodies are the worst offenders.

The main result is that honest members of Parliament and other publicists are crowded out by men who accept presents, "rake-offs" and "percentages" and then square their consciences by distributing the moneys so received to charitable and religious organizations.

The Toronto News does morality a service in pointing out that no less a personage than Lord Macaulay refused to make any presents to his constituents in the form of race-balls or subscriptions. He confined his giving to the same occasions as would justified it if he were not the member for Edinburgh. Canada could bear an infusion of Lord Macaulay's principle. The politicians are blamed for perpetuating corruption, but the churches and the people are by no means guiltless. The keenness with which they hasten to rifle the pockets of the man who offers himself for election to any office is a most indecorous kind of highway robbery.—February Canadian Magazine.

Greenville.

Patrick Finigan and Mrs Sullivan had a very close escape for their lives on the night of the 20th inst. By some reason the house caught fire; they were sound asleep; only for the assistance of James Barton they might have been burned to death.

Miss Jane Guy was taken sick very suddenly and severely recently; the illness only lasted a few days when she was called to pass over the river of death. She died on the 21st inst. and was buried on the 23rd inst. in the cemetery at McKenzie Corner; three brothers left to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate sister and a community has lost a kind friend and one always willing to assist in time of need, but we believe our loss is her gain.
