LIBRARY OF PARLIAMENT IN GRAIN.

Canada's Agricultural Exhibit at the World's Fair is a Beauty and It Shows a Portion of an Historic Structure.

St. Louis, April 27th, 1904.

Canada's wonderful exhibit in the Palace of Agriculture at the World's Fair is a revelation to the one who may have had an idea that the great north country is one of cold and ice always. No section in Uncle Sam's galaxy of states displays fairer specimens of the result of the husbandman's industry and no land shows a greater variety of products than do the great provinces that adjoin the United States on the north.

Canada has a space of 10,000 square feet in the Exposition's mammoth Palace of Agriculture—a structure that covers an area of 20 acres and contains specimens of all that is edible from all lands. The Canadian space is on the east side of the main aisle, about midway of the giant structure's unrivaled length. A replica of a historical structure forms the center piece of this notable exhibit.

One of the handsomest of the public buildings in our country is certainly the Library of Parliament at Ottawa. The spire of this building, reproduced on a smaller scale, is one of the most commanding objects in the mammoth construction. It is an octagon, 34 feet across, and its top extends 60 feet upward and brushes the rafters of the Agriculture Palace. Its frame is of pine and the surface that shows is covered with glowing red burlap. Artistically fastened to this background are the grains and grasses of Canada, more than 3,000 specimens being shown in charming array.

Great buttresses are built up of millet, a forage plant; brome grass, a fodder crop grown extensively in Western Canada and which appears shortly after the snow leaves the ground; wheat, oats, clover, blue grass and hundreds of other choice specimens. Corn, used so much in the embellishment of the exhibits of the states, finds no place in this display. The eight arches in the octagon afford a conspicuous place for a series of oil paintings, typifying the live stock industry of our country. The pictures are works of art and their great size make the scenes very lifelike. The windows under the pointed arches are filled with bottles of threshed grain.

Beneath the dome is the office for the Superintendent W H Hay who has charge of the entire agriculture exhibit. The walls are lined with attractive exhibits.

At the corners around the central pavilion are attractive little booths built to show to the best advantage the boundless wealth of Canada's soil. One booth is devoted to honey, and two tons of the product of the apiary make a beautiful sight. The maple sugar industry is exemplified in an interesting manner; a small house is built of maple logs and branches, and this house is the model of an up-to-date sugar plant.

There is a miniature grove of maple trees and the story is illustrated of how the sap is taken from the trees, how evaporated, crystallized and made into sugar.

Another section is devoted to the cereal food industry, and two exhibits of flour, and the manner in which it is made, prove attractive to all visitors. The Palace of Agriculture will be the rendezvous of all Canadian visitors to the big Fair, and it fully merits being thoroughly inspected.

Mr. Bull's Reply.

To the Editor of Carleton Sentinel:

I notice a reply to statements which I had published in a recent issue of the SENTINEL from prominent American horsemen about the different breeds of horses. The English horseman says that he can prove every word that he said. We Canadians have had experience enough with Englishmen, both in South Africa and the Alaska award, as well as losing the State of Maine. We Canadians can attend to our own business without any instructions from abroad.

Enoch Phillips is a man who has owned and handled all kinds of stallions including Clydes. He heard Mr Spark in Woodstock and was at the eve of going to buy a stallion and could get lots of Clydes in Canada for half the price of a Percheron, but after hearing Mr Spark he was all the more anxious to buy a Percheron and has gone to Chicago since hearing Mr Spark.

My opinion of Mr Spark is this—he is always the way the wind blows hardest. Mr Spark said, 'In Paris I like the Percheron, but in Canada I like the Clyde.' He further says that in the Argentine good Clyde mares could be provided here for $100. They must be valuable and a great demand for Clydes in the English market which he talks so much about or they would pick up a few of them. We not not have to sell even grade Percherons for that. I can name lots of Percheron colts that will bring in the market from $150 to $200 right in this market without the English market. All the horses that ever went from here for the English market that I know of was a dozen for the South African war and then they would not touch a big loose jointed Clyde. For instance look at the government importation of heavy stallions. When they were sold at public auction Prince Imperial sold for $1700, Zephyr $1100, Prefere $900, and no Clyde fetched over $500 and I bought a Clyde myself at $145. This was the first importation.

Mr Spark also said at Woodstock in regard to standard bred horses that he saw many poor ones but never saw a good one. He must have been kept during his younger days in some suburb of Canterbury, England, or he would surely have seen some good ones among the standard bred. If he would make another visit to Woodstock if he can afford the time, we might get someone to show him around. It would do him good to see a nice, clean cut, racy looking standard bred stallion, such as we can show him here in Carleton county. He also condemns one of our best blacksmiths, a man that can show most Englishmen where horse shoeing first started, a man that has no superior in New Brunswick. He says he tried to spoil a Clyde's feet. I will venture to say that I have owned 20 horses to Mr Sparks one—have owned horses that sold all the way from a pint of peanuts to $3000 and have one at present and have found more poor ones among the Clydes than all the other breeds put together. I keep a trading stable. I will admit that the Clyde stallion Knight of Chester left some good stock in this county as well as lots of poor ones.

Forepaugh's manager once told me that he could teach a Percheron more in one week than he could a Clyde in a lifetime. When men like Barnum and Forepaugh, men that have experience and wear out hundreds of horses and use nothing else but Percherons for hauling heavy loads and ring work except some ponies. It is useless for anyone to come here and preach Clydes. I have owned four pure bred Percheron stallions, and have one now, and have owned a few Clydes, and it is the only way that they can be proved by actual test.

We can sell all the Percherons we

NOTICE TO FARMERS!

We expect to resume our business of slaughtering Lambs this season as usual. We shall buy our lambs by the pound, weighing when taken away, which has proved very satisfactory.

We shall continue to pay one cent per pound more for ewes and wethers than we do for buck lambs. We advise weighing all lambs before selling by the head, and see if we are not offering more by the pound for good lambs than they will bring by the head.

can raise right here without the English market. I can buy lots of Clyde stallions for less than half of what you can buy Percherons and know just where to get them. I sold one stallion last week, four years old, for $500. He was half Clyde and half Percheron; could have got $1,000 for him if dam had been Percheron instead of Clyde, although he was a fine horse but showed no Clyde in appearance.

Now, Mr Spark admits that he has no horse nor interest in any. I am not like him. I am in the horse business and in it to stay and don't want any advice from any old country people.
