WHAT STRONG DRINK DID.

'I want bread, mamma.'
'There is no bread, my child,' replies the mother, as she hovers over the little form of her sick child. She takes the thin wrap from her shoulders and lays it over the child, and shivers, as the cold wind sweeps through the broken window pane and stirs the few remaining coals in the fireplace, which glow a moment and go out.

'When will bread come mamma?'
'I do not know,' replies the mother, 'perhaps in the morning.' And the child, as though satisfied, turns over in its little bed and soon forgets its hunger in dreamland.

The mother places her hand over the fevered brow, and with eyes humid with tears, murmurs, 'poor little thing, I know you are hungry, but mother cannot help it.' And the child, as though disturbed in its slumbers, mutters, 'papa, papa,' but where was papa?

Down in the village the revelry in Jim McCarthy's saloon was at its height. In this den were gathered some fifteen or twenty men. Some were seated at tables throwing the dice, others were standing at the bar drinking, and occasionally some drunken brute, turned into a demon by drink would strike his companion, who perhaps being more sober than himself would back him out of the door.

From one of the tables a man rises, and taking a small object from his pocket, gazes at it as if it recalled some tender recollection. And well he might, for it was the ring with which he sealed the solemn vow, when he took unto himself a wife. But he gazes at it but a moment, and then staggers over to the bar, throwing it on the counter, says: 'What will you give me for this, Jim?' 'Oh, I don't know; a dollar, I guess,' replied the man spoken to. 'Hand it over,' says the man, and having obtained the money, he again seats himself at the table.

But let us return to the child, we left it sleeping—but now it is awake. 'Where is papa, mamma?' asks the child. 'Down in the village, my dear.' 'Is he at Jim McCarthy's, mamma?' 'I don't know, I hope not.' But just now a step was heard, and the husband staggers into the room. 'Oh, John,' cries the wife, 'have you brought anything for the child to eat.'

'No,' replied the husband, 'how could I, with no money?' 'I lost everything, even to the ring,' and with that sinks down into a drunken sleep.

The midnight hour arrives and the child is worse, and the mother, true to her divine purpose, sits beside it, and tries to cool its forehead with her hand. It grows worse. The wife tries to wake the husband, but in vain, he only murmurs in his sleep, 'what will you give me for this, Jim?' All night the child tosses in feverish delirium, but towards the dawn grows quiet and says: 'Mamma, I am not hungry now.' And just after the sun at first a small gleaming disk, and then a luminous orb came slowly up in its majesty, the little spirit crossed over into the great beyond, to rest forever in the sunlight of God's eternal love.—Argus.

Let Us Prize True Unity.

At this time of union it is good to prize true unity, avoid being narrow and sectional, have kindly and considerate forbearance as much as possible. There, however, must never be any letting go, the fundamental truths of the Gospel for any end whatever. Those who forsake the faith, however seemingly united, will themselves be forsaken, and have "Ichabod" inscribed on them. In this matter of union it is to secure things essential. Hear what Robt. Murray McCheyne said: "I was once permitted to unite in celebrating the Lord's Supper in an upper room in Jerusalem. There were fourteen present, the most of whom, I had good reason to believe, knew and loved the Lord Jesus. Several were godly Episcopalians; two were converted Jews—one a Christian from Nazareth, converted under the American missionaries. The bread and wine were dispensed in the Episcopal manner, and most were kneeling as they received them. We felt it sweet fellowship with Christ and the brethren; and as we left the upper room and looked out upon the Mount of Olives, we remembered with joy the prayer for our Lord that ascended from one of the shady ravines after the first Lord's Supper, that they may all be one."—Thos. D. Brown.

The German railroad exhibit at the St. Louis Fair shows the block system and switch signals now in use in Germany. More than 1,500 feet of track, in the construction of which both iron and wooden ties were used, have been laid. There are a station house, two switch towers and one intermediate block signal post. One of the switch towers is fitted with mechanical and one with electrical signal apparatus.

SAVE BABY'S LIFE.

You cannot watch your little ones too carefully during the hot weather. At this time sickness comes swiftly and the sands of the little life are apt to glide away almost before you know it. Dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera infantum, and stomach troubles are alarmingly frequent during the hot weather. At the first sign of any of these troubles Baby's Own Tablets should be given—better still an occasional dose will prevent these troubles coming, and the Tablets should therefore be kept in every home. Promptness may save your child's life.

Mrs J R Standen, Weyburn, N. W. T., says: "Baby's Own Tablets are valuable in cases of diarrhoea, constipation, hives, and when teething. I have never used a medicine that gives such good satisfaction." This is the experience of all mothers who have used the Tablets. If you do not find the Tablets at your druggists send 25 cents to the Dr Williams' Medicine Co, Brockville, Ont, and a box will be sent you by mail postpaid.

When the proud mother first puts her little boy into knickerbockers she is often puzzled as to how to keep them up, for she rightly thinks that the ordinary braces with buckles are likely to hurt his soft little body. Here is a way out of her perplexity. Let her buy a yard of very broad elastic, cut it in two, cross it over at the back in the manner of ordinary braces, and fasten it together. At the ends of the elastic she should sew tape loops to fasten over the knicker.

HIS LAST HOPE REALIZED.

(Upon the Sentinel, Gosh, Mont.)
In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers, in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping upon his claim, he encountered much bad water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure and he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by all druggists.

New potatoes ought to be put on in boiling water, and boiled quickly, as the starch cells are still undeveloped, and slow boiling causes them to be sodden or waxy. Perfectly plain, or boiled with a little mint, they are a grateful change, but many simple, pretty dishes are possible, and elaborate ones also for those who care to take pains.

FAGGED OUT—DEPRESSED.

Energy, Snap and Ambition Gone.—
You Need a Bracing Tonic to Ironize the Blood. Try
FERROZONE.

Ferrozone will make you strong and capable of doing a heavy day's work without fatigue. It is a marvellous remedy and does marvellous things, as the following testimonial proves:—
"After my baby was born, I was left in a weak, sickly condition, totally unfit for a mother's household duties. I somehow did not gain strength, although I took malt extracts and tonics all the time. A lady friend recommended Ferrozone which I used with splendid results. The first box helped quite a little, and when I had taken six boxes my former health, ruddy cheeks and good spirits, were fully restored."—Mrs Newlands, Swansea.

You can't spend 50c to a better advantage than on a box of Ferrozone, and the sooner you get Ferrozone, the sooner you will get well. Don't accept a substitute, but insist on your druggist supplying the genuine Ferrozone, which sells for 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50. By mail from the Ferrozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

When a whitewashed ceiling has become blackened apply a layer of starch and water to it with a piece of soft flannel. Allow it to dry, then brush off lightly with a brush. The blackness will have disappeared, leaving no marks whatever.
