POOR SPORTS.

It is evident that Sir Thomas Lip-ton has no intention of building a fourth challenger for the America's cup. Even on the purse of a millionaire the cost is a severe drain, but from the correspondence which has passed lately between those concerned in the retention or capture of the trophy, this does not appear to be the reason. Apparently the task has been considered hopeless.

This is a pity. Sir Thomas has been patted constantly on the back by New York yachtsmen, and told he was a fine fellow, but that palls. There is not much encouragement to a sportsman to find that the prize he seeks to gain is so hedged round by conditions that it is impossible to win it. Would it not be better for the sake of sport to place competing yachts on level terms?

When the America took away the cup from England, the race was gifted her. She only happened to be on the other side, and though bigger than any of the other competitors was allowed to enter without any debaring conditions. During the race a storm arose and the best of the smaller English yachts were either blown ashore or dismantled. The America won.

Having secured the trophy the Americans proceeded to impose conditions which made it practically impossible that the cup could ever be taken away from them.

Would it not be more sportsman-like to reciprocate the treatment accorded to the America, and make a fair and reasonable competition possible? It would help to destroy much of the disapproval in which sportsmen generally hold the United States. The Palma Trophy business has brought them into great disfavor generally, and in Canada particularly, while the way in which Canadian lacrosse teams were barred from the World's Fair will not soon be forgotten.—Montreal Herald.

WAR NEWS.

The Chinese officials deny in the most positive way that they propose to intervene in the war, and if Kuropatkin retreats it will not be because of the menace of Chinese troops in the rear of his army. He has much trouble with Chinese bandits who are operating quite near Liaoyang, and who must greatly hamper the movements of supply trains and convoys.

In the aggregate, thousands of Russians must be serving on the line of communications who should be on the firing line to meet the Japanese assault. Yesterday's bulletins indicated that the Japanese are closing in after the same calm, unhurried fashion that marked the operations on the Yalu. The coming clash will, of course, be on an immensely greater scale than the battle of the Yalu.

The two Japanese armies on the march consists of at least 140,000 fighting men, and Kuropatkin must have almost as many scattered along the line between Haicheng and Mukden. The Russians think that the Japanese advance is characterized by indecision, but where an advance is made over a front of quiet fifty miles, with great mountain ranges preventing the columns from keeping closely in touch, indecision, if for that we are to read extreme caution, is a very good fault.

At sea Russia is securing some crumbs of comfort. The sinking of the Japanese third class cruiser Mayako off Dalny on Saturday was one. The vessel, like a torpedo boat earlier in the week, struck on a mine while at work clearing Talienswan Bay of them, and sank in twenty-two minutes. Only two of her crew were killed. Japan makes no report yet of the alleged torpedoing of one of her armored cruisers a week ago, but the story is too circumstantial to be entirely without foundation. It may be a long while before Port Arthur can send details of recent operations. The railway has been completely wrecked, many miles of track have been torn up, and even natives with despatches will have a hard time getting through the Japanese lines. The investment may be said to have begun last Saturday.

Russians Driven Out of Kai Chou.

Che Foo, May 18.—As a result of the engagement with the Japanese had on Monday with the Russian garrison at Kai Chou, on the west coast of the Liao Tung peninsula, twenty three miles directly south of Kin Kow, the port of New Chwang, the Russians were driven out of Kai Chou, the nearest point to New Chwang with the exception of the Liao river, where there is sufficient water to allow of the landing of troops.

Chinese who recently arrived at New Chwang, while confirming the above, also say that the Japanese are skirmishing on either side of the railroad, north and south of Kin Chou.

Circulars have been posted at New Chwang and its vicinity, signed by the chief staff of the Japanese army, advising the Chinese to maintain order and secure stocks of provisions and transport wagons, for which the Japanese will pay full value. The small Russian guard remaining at New Chwang is ready to leave on the near approach of the enemy.

Quantities of wood and oil have been placed on board the Russian gunboat Sivouch in New Chwang waters, to be used in destroying her by fire when the last of the Russians evacuate New Chwang.

THE WRONG TURN.

Among the many stories told of absentminded people there is one about the dreamy mother of a young American author which is well authenticated, but seems almost incredible.

One evening, when her son stopped at the door of her room on the way to his own to deliver a message which had been sent her, he discovered the old lady in the pitchy darkness holding a match under the cold water faucet.

When she 'came to herself,' in response to her son's hearty laugh she admitted that she had lighted five other matches and treated them in the same way.

'I was thinking about something else,' she said naively, 'and all I knew was that I had to turn something on before I could light the gas.' And then she added, 'I don't think it was such a queer mistake after all!'

A countryman, after some hesitation, entered a watchmaker's shop and asked the shopman if he would accompany him into the country for about three miles and repair a watch.

'Why did you not bring the watch with you?' asked the watchmaker. 'Weel, the watch belongs to a no-weel man, and he has to keep it beside 'im to ken when to tak' his medicine.' 'Then the watch must be going all right,' replied the jeweller. 'Yes, it gänge; but he's getting tired of poking the wheels wi' a preen, sae he wants somebody to put it richt.'
