That's the idea, dear sisters and brothers, in the Sunday School line. County and parish officers, superintendents and teachers, Bible students and students of the childrentwo great books indeed-and all who are in sympathy with the upward trend and forward march of our modern Sunday School work. And the news of the S S pluck during January's grim severity of those S S people whose hearts were too warm, whose loyalty was too true, whose enterprise was too real to be kept back from convention by the frost, is refreshing. Good indeed to hear character of some of those conventions being as great as anything the vention in February too. Fine programme, well-selected subjects, able speakers, a breeze of energy, a wave

Marion Lawrence and Mrs Mary Foster Bryner, delegates to World's convention in London in 1898, cannot easily forget the strong personality and irrepressible vivacity of Mrs Bryner, and Marion Lawrence has stood out before the public gaze for many a day. Threatened years ago with early death from lung trouble, cheered by a tactful friend every time that friend called, he lives and thrills and impels fellow workers onward. A convention we are likely have! Not for a good many years will there again be opportunity in our county to present and receive diplomas. Let us have a phenomenal number of graduates.
