I suppose the hero and heroine of that story get married in the last chapter?" she said.

"No, divorced," replied her friend.

"Oh, how lovely! Will you let me borrow it when you get through?"

Foals Use Washes and Soaps. Thinking perhaps they will cure Catarrh, but no one ever heard of a genuine cure following such senseless treatments. There is just one prompt and thorough cure for Catarrh and it is fragrant healing Catarrhine which goes right to the root of the trouble. It destroys the germs, heals the inflamed membranes and cures any case no matter how obstinate or long standing. "I experimented for years with Catarrhine remedies but found Catarrhine the most rational and satisfactory," writes W. J. MacBach of Waterville. "It cured me for all time." For a sure cure use only Catarrhine. Complete outfit, $1.00; trial size 25c.

Lady of the House—Was your last mistress satisfied with you?

Servant—Well, mum, she said she was well pleased when I left.

TOO GREAT A RISK.

In almost every neighborhood someone has died from an attack of cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

Dentist (after struggling for 20 minutes in vain endeavor to extract the tooth)—I must say you—you have the firmest tooth I ever had—to deal with.

Patient—I'm in a hurry. It's grand practice for ye, an' it'll teach ye that we maun a' work for oor livin'.

The Baby's Troubles.

The greatest suffering of childhood is caused by eczema, scald head, chafing or other forms of skin irritation or eruption. Because of its extraordinary soothing, healing power Dr. Chase's Ointment is of inestimable value in the house where there are small children. No mother who has learned the scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used would think of being without it in the house.

I see that somebody says there is no such thing as luck in business.

He must be one of the lucky ones who have succeeded.

Irate customer—See here! That suit of clothes I bought of you yesterday is full of moth holes.

Dealer—Dat is all recht, mine frient. Moths never eat cotton, an' ven ladies and shentlemens see dose holes dey know you years only high-priced, all-wool goods.

Amateur—This is my latest attempt at a landscape. May I ask what you think of the perspective?

Artist—The perspective is its strong point. The farther away you stand the better it looks.

Wash greasy dishes, pots or pans with Lever's Dry Soap a powder. It will remove the grease with the greatest ease. 36

Some time after the new chaplain in a lunatic asylum had entered upon his duties one of the inmates came up to him and said:—I like you better than the other one.

"Why?" asked the preacher.

"Because you are more like us," answered the lunatic.

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

"I hear that Porteous is as good as married to Miss Simpson."

"Oh, better than that."

"You don't mean—"

"I mean that the engagement's broken off."

NOTHING LIKE EXPERIENCE.

"One truth learned by actual experience does more good than ten experiences one hears about." Tell a man that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will cure cholera morbus, and he will most likely forget it before the end of the day. Let him have a severe attack of that disease, feel that he is about to die, use this remedy, and learn from his own experience how quickly it gives relief, and he will remember it all his life. For sale by all druggists.

Don't forget, mothers, that interesting as your children may be to you, too much of them, and too many tales of their saying and doings, are apt to weary and bore your visitors.

Pneumonia is Filling the Hospitals.

Every day we hear of someone being taken with pneumonia. The only preventive is to get strong and keep your body healthy. Take Ferrozone which makes the rich red kind of blood that nourishes and stimulates the entire system. "I was all run down and an apt subject for pneumonia," writes A. B. Carthers of Burlington, "when I tried Ferrozone. I didn't believe it was possible for Ferrozone to build me up so quickly. In a few days my appetite improved, color came into my cheeks and I felt stronger. I gained eight pounds and regained my old time vigor through using Ferrozone." Try Ferrozone, it assures health. Price 50c.

Wife—Good gracious! Do you hear that sound from the kitchen?

More dishes broken, I'll warrant!

Husband—Never mind, my dear, it has stopped the cook's singing.

Corns Grow Between the Toes

But can be cured without pain in one day by Putnam's Corn and Wart Extractor. This standard remedy never burns the flesh, it is entirely vegetable in composition and does not destroy the flesh. Use only Putnam's, it's the best.

A line in one of Moore's songs runs thus—Our couch shall be roses bespangled with dew. To which a sensible girl is said to have replied—

"I would give me the rheumatism and so it would you!"

A story is told of an eminent New York lawyer receiving a severe reprimand from a witness whom he was trying to browbeat. It was an important issue and in order to gain his case it was necessary, if possible, to diminish the value of the witness' evidence. The following was the dialogue that ensued:—

"How old are you?"

"Seventy two."

"Your memory, of course, is not as brilliant as it was twenty years ago, is it?"

"I do not know but it is."

"State some circumstance which occurred, say, twelve years ago, and we shall see."

"Well, sir, about twelve years ago you studied in Judge B—'s office, did you not?"

"Yes."

"Well, sir, I remember your father coming into my office and saying to me: 'Mr D—, my son is to be examined to-morrow, and I wish you would lend me twenty dollars to buy him a suit of clothes.' I remember also, sir, that from that day to this the money has never been paid. Will that do, sir?"

It did.

Doctor—Well, Mr Jenkins, did you follow my prescription?

Jenkins—No. If I had I should have broken my neck.

Doctor—Why, what do you mean?

Jenkins—I threw the prescription out the window.

CANADA AND MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

BY CHANCELLOR WALLACE, OF M'MASTER UNIVERSITY.

The obstacles to Imperial unity and progress need to be removed—the Englishman's ignorance of the Canadian view-point, and the Canadian's impatient resentment against that ignorance. The Englishman will not understand our country or our countrymen until he has learned how vast are the resources of Canada. Not until then will he give proper weight in his thinking to the national dimension of this mighty and vast Dominion. Not until then will he think it profitless and perilous to win United States favour at the cost of sacrificing the interests of Canada. And as long as the Englishman shows more regard for United States than for Canadian opinion, and an easy willingness to alienate Canadian interest for the sake of removing "occasions of friction" between the Empire and the Republic, so long will the Canadian feel an indignant sense of injustice. And such a feeling, whether justified or unjustified, is dangerous to the Empire. The present situation is somewhat anomalous. The Englishman who would be shocked at the thought of ceding a part of English soil to a foreign government in order to remove an "occasion of friction," sees no impropriety in reaching diplomatic compromises by alienating from Canada territory which Canadians believe is as much a part of Canada as Kent is a part of England. This makes the Canadian angry. Perhaps it is unreasonable for him to be angry. Perhaps he should be more humbly aware that Canada is only a dependency. Certain it is that the Englishman needs to know and respect the Canadian view-point, or that ardent devotion to the Empire which has been characteristic of Canada will lose something of vigour and warmth. And at this point there is a gleam of hope from the present agitation in England. The aim of Mr. Chamberlain's campaign is to bring the different parts of the Empire into closer relation to each other by giving them common interests and differentiating those interests from the interests of other nations. Other nations have profited by browsing in English meadows; he would have the dependencies gain this profit, in so far as possible. Other nations have gathered strength from their relations to the dependencies; he would have this strength given in increasing measure to Great Britain. The ideal is certainly worth cherishing. And a discussion of it will make the Englishman know Canada better. The British Empire was never face to face with a crisis so great as that which faces it to-day. Neither optimism nor Imperial self-conceit should make us blind to this fact. Unless the several parts of the Empire are drawn closer together they will certainly drift farther apart. Canada will grow with extraordinary rapidity for the next twenty-five or fifty years. Great Britain will grow but little during that period. Chamberlain is sufficiently sagacious and daring to make an iconoclastic effort to remove the forms and traditions that prevent Canada's coming strength from becoming a recognized part of British strength in a narrow and specific sense as well as in a broad and Imperial sense. He is the only statesman living who could hope to accomplish an end so great. In spite of the academic objections which may be urged against his scheme, in its general aim and method it deserves well of Great Britain and Canada. —Canadian Magazine.

Power and Purpose of Japan

by Baron Suematsuo.

England, of course, is the greatest power on the sea. France is second.

I do not say that we could combat with France if she should bring at one and the same time her entire navy and army to us. But it would be almost a matter of impossibility for France to give any effective blow to us with her army. With regard to the navy alone, our fleets are pretty much equal to those of any other power now in the Orient. And now that we have already worsted Russia's navy in the manner you have seen, I do not think the Russian fleet and the French fleet would come to attack us at one and the same time. The French fleet alone cannot make a full and converted attack on us, and we believe that we could manage pretty well the issue with these French ships sent out to the East. Suppose we were to get the best of fighting on the sea with France, then we might perhaps manage the French colonies in the East.

What I have said, roughly speaking, means this—I explain this point in this way because the question of our sea-fighting capacity in relation to France, as well as other nations, has been put to me, but, of course, I want it very clearly understood that we have not the least intention of facing such a momentous event. It will never be done by our provocation. We wish to maintain good and cordial relations with France, and be her friend. We are to a great extent indebted to her for the organization of our army, because, first of all, France was our teacher of modern army and warfare after the European conscription system. In matters relating to laws, we have brought the European idea into our country mostly through France at first. Besides all this, in commercial matters we have many reasons why we ought to keep in good understanding and friendly relations with France—all of which cannot but tend to a large mutual benefit. And, therefore, for these reasons generally, and for many others, we have not the least intention of alienating French sympathy.

Moreover, if France with some other nation takes up her arms against us, then England must come to our succor by the terms of treaty of alliance. England as a national power cannot evade her treaty obligations, which are also based upon actual interest of both parties. And on this point several highest English statesmen have declared themselves plainly and distinctly and positively, and we trust them thoroughly.

If this is so, even supposing we are not a fighting match for France, France would have to consider gravely before she took up arms against us. But I do not believe France is even in the least disposed to take such a step as this. The recent rumor that France is somewhat disposed to take such a step as this seems to be nothing more than newspaper sensationalism and exaggeration.

HEALTH FOR GIRLS.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make Strong, Healthy, Rosy-Cheeked Lasses.

"I was attacked with appendicitis," says Miss Fabius Grammont, daughter of Mr. Charles Grammont, a prosperous farmer of Champlain, Que., and while the doctor who attended me cured me of this trouble, it left behind after-effects from which it seemed almost impossible to recover. I grew weak and very pale; my appetite was poor; I suffered at times from severe headaches; and the least exertion left me completely worn out. I tried several remedies, but instead of getting better I was gradually growing worse. Any work about the house left me weak and dispirited, and I felt almost like giving up. At this time a friend, who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with much benefit, strongly urged me to give them a trial. I got a box, and as I did not feel any better when I had used them, I would have given them up but for the fact that my friend urged that one box was not a fair trial. I then decided to continue the use of the pills, and by the time I had taken three boxes my condition was improving. I used eight boxes in all, and by the time I had taken them all my old time health had returned. My appetite had improved, I had gained in weight and the glow of health had returned to my face. I cannot too strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all pale and weak girls."

Good blood is an absolute necessity, and the only way to have a constant supply of rich, red, health-giving blood is to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make new blood, and to drive from the system such troubles as anemia, languidness, neuralgia, dyspepsia, rheumatism, etc. You can get these pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sunshine Furnace

DOUBLE FEED-DOORS

Just about the meanest thing a furnace can have is a dinky little door.

Ever have one? Hit the edge as often as the hole? One has to be an expert stoker to shovel coal into some furnaces. If you're not an expert you'll get as much on the floor as in the furnace.

The Sunshine furnace is equipped with a good, big door. You can put your shovel in and drop the coal just where it is wanted—no trouble, no taking aim, no missing, no scattering, or annoyance.

Everything about the Sunshine furnace is on the same scale of thoughtfulness.

Sold by all enterprising dealers. Write for booklet.
