A CARIBOU STEW.

Major John Troy, proprietor of the well known restaurant, has few equals as a public entertainer. The gallant major's genius is many sided.

His younger days he took a course in Kingston Royal Military College, and graduated with the highest honors. A short time afterwards he went on the road in the interests of a well known medicine house, in the capacity of manager. Then he once more turned his attention to warlike affairs, and took a prominent part in quelling the Riel rebellion in the North West. After this feat the major, like hosts of other Woodstock boys, realized "there's no place like home." He settled down, branched out for himself, and is now known far and wide as a successful restaurant keeper. But there is another feat.

The major's make up that we must not forget. All his friends know him to be a mighty hunter. Each year he never fails to go in quest of the lordly moose and other antlered monarchs of the waste, and as surely as he departs, just as certain is he to return not empty handed from the haunts of venison. A short time ago he was the leading actor in a company who were hunting in the Wapaskia region. The major's unerring aim brought down among other trophies a magnificent caribou. Now there are lots of people in town who have never tasted that appetizing dish known as Caribou Stew. Yielding to the solicitation of some, and in accord with the generous impulse of his own grateful heart, the major invited about forty friends to a grand stew at his cafe on Thursday evening last. When the boys showed up they found everything ready. The stew was served, and such eating as it proved! The epicures of old never laid eyes upon such a feast or tasted viands to compare with the major's stew. Helping after helping was served. It seemed as if one's appetite would never be satisfied while any of the palate tickling dish remained. Delmonico never served such a toothsome concoction as the caribou stew so rapidly consumed by Major Troy's guests. After all were satisfied, and none was content until his carrying capacity seemed taxed to the utmost, the major's health was drunk and responded to by that worthy, who is an orator of no mean attainments. Just before the gathering broke up a very handsome sterling enameled sash buckle was presented to Mrs. Troy, who ably assisted the major in getting up the spread. The National Anthem closed the proceedings.

A SUDDEN CHANGE.

Our good contemporary across the way has experienced a sudden change of heart. It is now greatly troubled for fear that some person may sit at the council whose qualifications are slightly irregular, as alleged by it. Even should the facts be as the Press puts them, which no sane person really believes, why should that paper come out so boldly now as a believer in the very letter of the law being carried out? Where was the Press when ex-Coun Dibblee and others of its bosom friends sat at the board in direct violation of the act? Why did it not raise its voice in protest at that time? It was as dumb as an oyster. In the present case Coun Leighton did everything that could be done to render himself eligible as a candidate, and succeeded. The Press tries to make out that he failed. In the case of the gentlemen we have named there was simply no defence at all. It makes a lot of difference where the pinch is located, especially so with our friendly and ably conducted contemporary and its satellites.

Robert Kirk.

At his late residence, Bedell Settlement, Richmond, Carleton Co., Robert Kirk, aged 81 years, died suddenly on the 12th inst.

He had sent for Rev. J. C. Bleakney and arranged with him to conduct his burial and funeral services and to ask the Orangemen to attend in regalia.

He was buried on the 14th and his funeral sermon was preached by Rev. J. C. Bleakney in the Richmond Kirk on Sunday, 15th inst, at 2.30 p. m. The Orangemen assisted at the burial and were present in a body at the sermon.

Mr. Kirk was a respected christian and died in full reliance upon the Lord Jesus Christ. He leaves a widow, a number of children, relatives and friends to mourn their loss. (Com.)

The Royal Bank of Canada.

In the advertising section of this issue the Royal Bank of Canada presents its annual statement for the information of its customers and the general public. The report is well worthy of careful reading. It gives in compact form just what information one would desire about such an institution. Needless to add, the year has been one of marked progress. The local branch of the Royal is now under the management of Mr. William Dickinson, who although here but a short time, is already exceedingly popular with patrons of the bank, and bids fair to prove a worthy successor to the able and genial gentlemen who have preceded him. He is assisted by a courteous staff consisting of Messrs J. N. Jones, Ralph Waite, C. R. Creighton, H. A. Watson and A. Beresford Connell.

Meduxnakeag.

Sometimes we see it Meduznikik, and occasionally Meduznikik. The maps and old documents have it Meduxnakeag. If this be the original, and we believe it is, let there be uniformity.

VANCOUVER LETTER.

Vancouver Teacher (to class in history)—Now, can anyone name any of the great men mentioned in our history?

Pupil—Yes! There are the two A's—John A. and Larry A. (Laurier). There appears to be quite a demand in this city for New Brunswick girls. Miss Myrtle Pauline Hamilton, recently of the teaching staff of the Dawson School, daughter of Joseph B. Hamilton, was united in marriage to John D. Fraser of the Yukon Government Telegraph Line on Monday, 8th inst. The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev Dr Fraser, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, took place at the residence of the bride's father, 773 Princess Street. At its conclusion the young couple drove to the C. P. B. station, and left on the Atlantic express for Ashcroft, where they will make their future home. On the next day Miss Elma C Newcomb and Frederick Bittenchen went the same way at the hands of Rev R N Powell, pastor of the Princess Street Methodist church. The bride was given away by her uncle, Capt John Newcomb. The wedding march was played by Mrs M B MacLennan. Miss Newcomb was from Moncton, N. B. They left for Seattle on their honeymoon and on their return they will take up their residence in Vancouver. There are more bordering on the same ordeal. Whenever the catastrophe occurs your scribe will give you due notice.

Notwithstanding the fact that nearly $2,000,000 was expended on buildings in the city last year there are no vacant houses in the city at the present time. Considering the fact that this sum was largely expended in new dwellings and structures of no very elaborate proportions, few cities in Canada, or in fact anywhere in America, of the same size as Vancouver can show such a satisfactory sum spent in the same time.

A great many farmers from Manitoba and the Northwest are buying up land in this province and settling here. They have made good money there but the severe cold weather in winter drives them to seek a milder climate, which they find here on the coast.

We have had a very fine fall and winter here so far. We have had one or two light flurries of snow which would disappear in a day; very little frost and not much rain. To-day, the 17th of January, the sun is shining brightly, and the atmosphere is very like a fine day in April in the home of the CARLETON SENTINEL. Poultry at Christmas time was as cheap here or cheaper than in Woodstock, turkeys sold 18 cents and geese at 16 cents a pound.

In one of the old time, true blue Presbyterian families of the South "before the war" there was a faithful old negro named George, who, after years of faithful attendance at the Presbyterian church, went one night to a Methodist revival and was converted. The next day his master said to him: "How is this? I hear you have turned Methodist."

"Yes," answered George, "dats so. Ise got the true Methodist religion."

"But, George, I thought I had brought you up in the Presbyterian faith. Haven't I done everything I could to make a Presbyterian out of you? You have disappointed me."

"Well marse," said George, "what you say is true. You certainly has done your part, but marse, don't you tink the Presbyterian church is a mighty dismal place for a nigger?"

RUSSIA IN REVOLT.

Streets of St Petersburg Red With Blood.

Russia is having her troubles at home as well as abroad. For a long time there have been signs of discontent at the capital and these have spread throughout the whole empire. There is a large body in Russia who earnestly desire a constitutional form of government. The nobility have for centuries oppressed the common citizens. Finally under the leadership of certain priests representations were made to the ministry, asking for relief. It appears as if these requests were refused. Great masses of discontented workmen thronged the streets of the capital on Sunday. They had demanded an eight hour day instead of the eleven hour day to which they had been accustomed. This was refused. Soldiers of the Czar dispersed the men with the bayonet and rifle. Hundreds were slain; men, women and children falling in the fearful carnage. St. Petersburg is under martial rule, and the end is not yet. The affair may cost the Czar his throne and his life.

Social Sunshine.

On the eve of 19th inst, the members and friends of the Baptist congregation of Jacksonville met at the Parsonage. A grand tea was served by the Ladies. A pleasant evening was spent by young and old. Before saying "Good night" Mrs

Joseph McCready on behalf of those present in a neat address presented to the pastor and his wife a donation of fifty dollars (mostly cash). Other gifts continue to follow. May the richest blessing rest upon these kind people.

Indian Braves Coming.

The famous Indian Hockey team from French Village will likely play a local team in the near future. These Indians are well known as able skaters, and are becoming adepts at hockey. Last year they made a tour of this province and Nova Scotia. They play in their gorgeous native uniform, the only thing lacking being the scalping knife. If they come this way the rink will scarcely accommodate the crowd.

POULTRY A Gold Mine.

If you fed your hens egg-producing foods last winter and failed to get satisfactory results, it was not the fault of the hen. Either you did not commence feeding soon enough or you did not feed the right preparation. Maybe it was both.

A run-down hen doesn't lay eggs. It takes time to get such a hen in condition to lay, but a healthy hen, made so and kept so by

Day's English Tonic Powders For Poultry,

Cannot help but lay eggs—lots of them. Eggs are high now and will be still higher. Begin feeding them this preparation at once and be able to take advantage of the high prices. It will be the best investment you can possibly make.
