Notice to Provincial Publishers.

A New Brunswick Press Association is being promoted. The promotion has been actively favored by the publishers in the western Counties, and a convention will probably be held in Fredericton during the month of November, at a date to be announced later.

Mr John P Malaney, managing editor of the Press, Woodstock, N B, is the secretary pro tem, and Mr J T Hawke, of the Moncton Transcript has been invited to be president pro tem.

The association is needed as the provincial publishers have common interests which can only be served through association and the proposed step in forming New Brunswick association will doubtless meet with general approval.

Fredericton has been suggested as the meeting place of the convention, because it is of convenient access from not merely the western end of the province and St John, but also from the north shore counties.—Moncton Transcript.

The above notice should of interest to all Provincial publishers of newspapers. The SENTINEL some weeks ago advocated the organization of a Press Association and gave valid reasons for its existence. Newspaper men should get busy and make the proposed meeting a grand success. The SENTINEL will do what it can along that line and the editor expects to meet a strong delegation of publishers in Fredericton on the date selected by the provisional officers.
