Electricity and X-ray.

This remedy is one of the many that had, in its past history, a season of recognition during which it was used successfully in the treatment of a variety of human aliments and was then almost entirely abandoned for a long time. Over a hundred years ago state insulation and sparks were administered in cases of paralysis, chorea, hysteria and other diseases, with amazing results, by the orade machine in the hands of the profession an instrument which widened the possibilities of static electricity. The discovery of the fact that the Roemtgen ray could be produced by passing the high potential static current through a Crook's tube was a great aid in bringing the static machine into deserved prominence. To successfully apply static electricity in the treatment of different conditions.

In regard to the x-rays it must not be understood that less interest is being taken in this department. On the contrary both in hospitals and private practice x-ray photographs have now taken a definite place in the routine work of medical practice. The reader has only to look upon the subject to realize how much work is being done in a quiet and as just said routine way. The bones and hard tissues naturally afford opportunities for the largest number of cases where x-rays prove valuable in diagnosis. Stone in the kidney and calculi elsewhere are being diagnosed more frequently and with greater accuracy. What is specially noticeable, however, is the still will be received by noticeable, however, is the still will be purposes at the Centreville plant is shut down when signs of scarcity occur, that every gr is may be promptly ground.

What is specially noticeable, however, is the still growing tendency amongst physician to make use of the x-ray screen and radiogram for diagnosis in diseases of the thorax and indeed in other cavities. Thus the examination one chicken poorer and it is rumored that the man who shot the chicken will be poorer by at least the price of the unfortunate bird.

Miss Beatrice Marsten, who has been visiting relatives in St John, in diseases of the thorax and indeed in other cavities. Thus the examination of the lungs, the heart, the pleuralcavities, the movements of inspiration and expiration as influenced by diseased conditions in the region of the diaphragm, is most noticeable. Last year it was pointed out by authorities that the x-ray had proved advantageous in the treatment of cancers and another treatment of cancers and another years treatment has simply confirmed the views expressed twelve months ago. That a large number of cancerous tumors, have been improved or have disconnected alto. proved or have disappeared alto-gether under the treatment of the x-rays, is beyond any question. A great many facts have already been established in regard to x-rays and electricity and a great deal more is expected in the near future.

of Senator and Mrs Baird. A number of Andover people received invitation to the state Ball in Fredericton on Friday evening.

Considerable regret is felt by the many friends of Frank Baird for his defeat in the municipal contest considering he made no canvass in the parish owing to the illness of his wife, also his own indisposition for a few days previous to election-his vote is a very creditable one. Almost the entire village of Andover supported Mr Baird strongly. We hope to see Mr Baird yet one of the councillors of this parish. The funeral of Wilmot Porter took place last Monday afternoon at Bairdsville. Ernest Hoyt went to St. John on Friday last on a vacation.
