THE TELEPHONE MERGER.

There seems little doubt that the Central Telephone Co has sold out to its big rival, the N B concern. While the transfer is doubtless a good thing for the shareholders, it cannot be altogether satisfactory to the public, who in this and other sections where there has been competition, may expect a considerable stiffening in rates. When the Union Co was absorbed by the Central many predicted this later merger, and advised against the sale.

However it's no use crying over the milk that is lost. The only thing is to calmly await developments. One prominent local merchant told the SENTINEL that the N B Company would certainly find itself up against competition in the shape of an independent local concern, possibly on a co-operative basis as rates go up, or if the automatic service be discontinued. There is of course one feature that appeals to us, and that is the fact that henceforth providing we get decent treatment from the N B Co., and we see no valid reason why we should not, there will be but one instrument to pay for in each office or residence. This will be something in favor of the merger, even if we have to pay as much, or nearly so much, for the one as we now do for the two. Stockholders in the Central are supposed to have cleaned up a tidy sum by the merger. This is as it should be, and they have our congratulations.

MORE LIGHT NEEDED.

The Press, inspired no doubt by someone interested, has an editorial on the light question. It says the committee has run 24 lamps this year at the average cost per annum of $36.66, and had there been 40 lights the average cost would be $22, as the light department pays to the water department a bulk sum, $840 per year. It does not make any difference whether 10 or 40 lamps are burning, continues our contemporary. On the same line of reasoning we suppose it holds true that it would make no difference whether a hundred lights were maintained, or even if none at all should be kept going.

Benjamin Gee and Silas Cox Visit School with Disastrous Results.

Last Thursday afternoon two well-known residents of the Demerchant Settlement, Benjamin Gee and Silas Cox, decided to visit the local seat of learning, presided over by Miss Clark of Lansdown. As the day was warm they had taken the precaution to wet their parched lips with dew from the mountainside, unfortunately however, imbibing slightly more than the quantity necessary to produce a wholesome jag. It will be readily understood that their inspection did not prove a howling success, even if they did make considerable noise. The teacher and trustees, feeling that the two rate-payers had slightly overstepped the bounds of caution, sought the aid of the strong arm of the law. Deputy Sheriff Foster was put in charge of the case, and Sunday night he succeeded in capturing Mr Gee. With considerable afterthought, Mr Cox had not been slow in making for Aroostook County, out of the reach of British justice. Mr Gee was brought before Squire Farley at Bristol on Monday. After diligently perusing the school law and regulations the magistrate failed to find any warrant for Mr Gee's inspection and gave him the option of contributing $20 or spending 60 days in the county hotel. The first alternative appealed more strongly to the accused, and he handed over the dough. The same day Charles Merritt was before Judge Farley charged with being drunk on the highway in the parish of Kent. As his guilt was not in dispute Merritt was fined $10, with two alternatives. One was to reside 60 days with the jailer, the other to get out of the county within three hours. As the day was very hot and Bristol is some distance from the county line, this latter penalty seemed very severe, but Merritt decided it held out more redeeming features than the others. He therefore made lively tracks northward, and no doubt got into Victoria Co well within the time limit.

Tuesday August 28th "Under Southern Skies" will be presented here and carries an acting company of twenty-three people and the same completeness of production that made its New York success notable, when it ran in that city for sixteen weeks at the Belasco Theatre.
