The Town Loses

Judge Gregory and the jury breathed a sigh of relief Monday night when all was over in the suit of Milmore vs the Town of Woodstock, an action for trespass instituted by Elizabeth Milmore against the town for taking part of her lot of land on Regent and Richmond streets. This was done in consequence of a survey made by the town surveyor in 1902 at the council's order. The defendants based their claim upon the act of assembly of 1875, giving power to appoint land surveyors to ascertain the street boundaries, whose findings must be conclusive to all parties. Judge Gregory pointed out to the jury that the act did not give the town such authority and that the whole case rested on a point of credibility between ex-Mayor Lindsay, chairman of the street committee in 1902, and Mr Searle, a tenant of the defendant. After being out for nearly two hours the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff, Daniel Mullin K. C. of St John appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs A B Connell K C and J C Hartley for the defendant. The verdict was for $25 with full Supreme Court costs, while Mrs Milmore presumably gets back her land.

The case was most stubbornly contested at every point, and the end is not yet, for very likely there will be an appeal. Messrs Connell and Hartley sustained their reputation as clever lawyers, while Mr Mullin proved himself fully a match for the best in his profession. His address to the jury was indeed a telling one. The jurors were M A Smith, A DeMerchant, H Lindsay, A Burpee, A J Lee, Zebedee Sloat and Councillor Jameson.

JOTTINGS.

For Sale. A second hand piano, in good condition, at a bargain. Address, P O Box 264. 2in-42.

There is to be an "At Home" in the vestry of the Methodist Church to-night, given by the League.

W. Carey Hay, who is a partner in a Bellingham Real Estate concern is reported to be making money, and what is far better, is in splendid health.

Syron, an imported laborer working on the Fredericton sewerage construction, is in trouble. Last Saturday he stole two umbrellas, one of which was the property of Raban Vince, who boards with Mrs Nichols on Kings St. Syron sold the umbrellas, but the police got right after him, and ran him in.

We have it on the authority of Mr J S Willison that not a dollar of Conservative money went to purchase the News, neither is anyone connected with it a subscriber to party funds. We are glad to learn this, as it was generally understood down East that the chief owner of that paper, Mr Flavelle, has strong party leanings.

We clip the following from a Bellingham newspaper:—"Sabine L Carr has just been notified by the state board of pharmacy that he successfully passed the examinations before that body in Seattle last week, by one of the highest markings any candidate ever received in the State." Mr Carr is making a name for himself on the Pacific Coast, and bids fair to win more than a fortune in that quarter.

Leighton vs Hale and Carleton Woolen Co vs Town of Woodstock, two appeals from the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, are to be argued sometime this month before the Supreme Court at Ottawa. The plaintiff is appellant in each suit. Mr F B Carvell, M P, supports both appeals, and Mr J C Hartley is counsel for the respondents. In the Town of Woodstock case Lt Col D McLeod Vince appears as senior counsel for the Town.

A FARMER REPLIES TO "HIGH LIVER."

Editor Sentinel.

SIR:—In the issue of the Sentinel of Oct 26th there appeared an article entitled "why is living so high," in which the writer shoulders the blame of poverty through expensive living upon the farmer.

Should the reader stop to consider for a moment there is without doubt chance to call the judgment of the contributor of the above named article into question and in the same moments when his judgment is unbiased but what may be some present bit of "hard luck" and when the plain facts are placed before him: when he has been educated to the fullest extent concerning the liabilities as well as the assets of the farmer and when he is brought to consider some truths concerning his own he may be able to lift the cause of the burden of poverty from the shoulder of the farmer and place them at his own door.

Of course not knowing who the writer of the article may be thereby not being acquainted with his customs or habits this is not intended to be personal but there are people similar to those who shall be described and it is to them in particular that this is written.

Considering that it is hard for the man with the $1000 salary to make his accounts balance at the end of the year: then letting common sense judge it is easy to see that, working on the same basis, that is supposing they attempt to live equally high—it is impossible unless a miracle is worked and the curse of oil wastes not, neither does the barrel of meal fail, for living with that $700. salary to balance his accounts and start the next year with a clean sheet.

There is in the world to-day that which appears to be a strife between fellow citizens to see who can excel the other in matters of entertainment, in the show or display that is made in the setting of the table in the delicious dishes that are served, in the furnishing of the house and in many other things we need not mention. While it is necessary that we should dress respectably and properly entertain our friends cordially and honorably, have taste as to the setting of our table, and have palatable food placed thereon that we should have the need: as well as a sprinkling of the luxuries of life to be found in our furniture: while we should have all this it is not necessary that we should live beyond our income in our attempt to equal or excel our neighbor who has been more fortunate. The man with the small salary need not live in the best rents, need not buy the choicest parts of lamb beef or pork, need not allow his wood bill to run up to $100, for nothing short or lack of foresight and extravagance can make the cost of fuel aggregate that amount, need not buy the highest price clothing and still go decent: need not in many ways make his home appear that of a millionaire and still be comfortable. Home does not consist of display but rather, harmony and unity of all members of the family being tied together with love.

It is interesting to note that the writer of last week's article thinks the farmer holds so enviable a position, financially among his fellow citizens and if there is any spark of pride and self praise in their makeup it most certainly must be kindled into a flame of joy when they remember that the position they have gained, which appears to be so enviable in the eyes of the world, has been self attained through hard work, good judgment and economy. Times at present are good and no one is more aware of the fact than the farmer himself and as a rule the articles he has to buy are cheaper than they were twenty years ago: but there is something to counteract this which makes the possibilities of the farmer getting rich less now than then.

First we must consider that where-as twenty years ago farms would cut a good crop of their own strength, now that equally good results may follow fertilizer in some form must be used. If phosphate from 500 to 2000 pounds per acre according to the crop raised, and this if used on a crop of 50 acres means a large amount. Figure it for yourself, counting phosphate from $25 to $40 per ton, then consider the interest on the amount invested on a farm worth $10,000, the taxes and insurance connected with it, consider that whereas labor used to be from $15 to $20 per month it is from $25 to $30 and on special occasions $2 per day on the Province side of the line and as high as from $3 to $5 on the American side. Consider that there is three or four times as much machinery used now as then. Consider that the wagons and carriages will not last half the time of the old ones owing to poor material and poor workmanship. And consider that the farmer puts in more hours per day at work, spends less money on that which perisheth, gives more to charity, and lives soberly in sight of God and fellow-man and it will be easy to see that if the farmer and pleasure combined it is only through constant and diligent service behind the plow, with a wise and economical wife to manage the affairs of the house, that such an end has been reached.

Though saloons were still closed in this city in June, there was an increase of crime and drunkenness over May by reason of the fact that Oakland opened her saloons that month. Also, many on this side the bay were found selling liquor without a license.
