THE SCHOOL BOARD AND THE SOLID SOUTH.

The School Board met Wednesday evening. Present, Acting Chairman Belyea and Trustees Fisher, Bradley, Hay and Balmain.

After the reading of the minutes the Acting Chairman rose and stated that the Board had received a letter from the Town Council re the Broadway School. He also noticed by the papers that a delegation from that section recently addressed the council. Their remarks had surprised him, particularly the speech by Mr. Eagles who is reported as saying there were four or five men at the Trustee Board who were not fit for the office. It seemed to him that Mr. Eagles was as hot as a tailor's goose after the board. He was sorry to see such venomous feeling. The trustees had all worked hard, attended to business, and stood as high in the esteem of the people as did their critics. As for criticism by Mr. J. T. A. Dibblee that he (Belyea) was an enemy of the Sloyd School, the minutes would show that he had been an enthusiast in favor of giving it a fair trial. A man who has no children is not thereby disqualified from sitting at the Board. We never had a better Trustee than L. P. Fisher, and St. Stephen never had a superior to Dr. Black. Both these gentlemen were childless. He considered the Sloyd School something of a luxury. Its annual cost comes close to $700. If citizens want it, he had no objection. As to the Broadway annex, the speaker said he had urged action all along. The Board advertised for tenders, but the architect failed to get the plans out in time. There was no intention of abandoning the matter.

Trustee Balmain said he had always been in favor of the annex, as he knew the departments were congested.

Trustee Fisher said he had kept after Mr. Drysdale to get out the plans as quickly as possible.

Trustee Hay agreed with the Chairman. The Board had been abused too much. He for one would not submit to such insolence in private affairs and did not intend to put up with it in public. He was done with the business, as his resignation was already in the hands of the government. No men in town except Archdeacon Neales and Wm M. Connell had taken more interest in the schools. He considered the men who were after the Board used mighty poor taste. It needs more than mere wind to run the schools right. Talk will never do it. Some people were trying to trot in too fast a class. Although he was all done as a Trustee he would still be a friend of the schools, the same as in the past.

Several members then expressed regret at Mr. Hay's resignation, as they felt satisfied the board would miss his advice and services.

The meeting was then thrown open to the two champions of the South, Messrs Dibblee and Eagles, who had patiently sat through all the rest of the proceedings.

Mr. Dibblee said he had come to urge the building of the annex, and also to urge the necessity of running the Sloyd School. He said if any words of his had wounded the feelings of the Trustees, he would apologize. He thought the Trustees should not squeal at criticism. If Mr. Drysdale will not get plans out at once,—why, get some other man to do it. All he asked for is fair play for Broadway.

Mr. Eagles said he was surprised at Mr. Belyea's remarks. Re venom he felt that the chairman had used plenty of it. What had surprised him was a conversation with Mr. Belyea. He had no apology for his remarks at the Town Council. He was deeply in earnest, and meant what he said. Conditions were bad at Broadway School. He felt like censuring the Board for causing so much delay.

On behalf of the Board Trustee Belyea replied briefly, after which the meeting adjourned. The secretary was instructed to have the notice for Tenders extended, and in the meantime every effort will be made to get specifications. The idea now is to rush the annex to a finish.

WEARY WILLIE WALKER

The maximum of song and action crowded into two hours and forty minutes of entertainment space and with just sufficient dialogue to season a musical comedy broth "Weary Willie Walker" brings its batteries charged with novel features and delightful surprises to the Opera House, Saturday, June 16th, when it hopes to score another one of those delightful triumphs that have been accorded in every city, where the love of charming music and spontaneous mirth is strong enough to recognize a very superior offering. Inflated with the records of its former achievements, a production with infinite melody concern, and bolstered up to a high pitch, on account of the thoroughly efficient organization of clever comedians, together with a wonderful beauty show, comprising more pretty girls than was ever before dreamed of.

Buttered Salt.

C. M. Sherwood, Centreville, has a great number of good customers who manifest wisdom in salting the butter they bring to his store, using about one ounce of good fine salt to a pound of butter. He also has a few customers who butter their salt and bring this mixture expecting to get good goods in exchange. For humanities sake and for the sake of their own consciences, let this class of dairy people get out of this selfish rut and do as they would wish to be done by.

Weary Willie Walker is and always has been one of the biggest musical comedies of its kind, occupying as it does, a field all to itself, it has become quite popular long since and every year brings out new and novel ideas in the comedy role, and is always ready with fresh jokes and lively dances, and this season is not an exception to the rule. There is a great deal of clever speciality work introduced during the play, which makes things move swiftly enough to satisfy the most exacting. The players are the foremost in comedy with a large and well drilled chorus of pretty girls, beautifully costumed in various attires, which give the musical ensemble life and attractiveness. There are several brilliant scenic environments that have attracted more than passing notice, they are stubbed with electrical devices which form a dazzling picture effective in the extreme. There is a general dash about the the performance that make it decidedly refreshing to say the least. This big musical comedy will be seen at the Opera House, Saturday, June 16th.

Buy Hair at Auction?

At any rate, you seem to be getting rid of it on auction-sale principles: "going, going, g-o-n-e!" Stop the auction with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It certainly checks falling hair; no mistake about this. It acts as a regular medicine; makes the scalp healthy. Then you must have healthy hair, for it's nature's way.
