From time to time the English newspapers contain letters from Englishmen in Canada complaining that English people are not popular here, that it, in fact, handicaps a man's chances of success to be known as an Englishman. There is some truth in the charge. The right kind of Englishman in any sort of occupation is preferred to almost any other kind of man, but the wrong sort of Englishman, the insular Englishman who cannot conceive of anything being right that is not English, can be objectionable to the last degree. He knows it all, he sneers at everything and everybody colonial, he will not learn, and wants to go home. Some of these are 'remittance' men, others consider that the country owes them a living, and they can think of nothing bad enough to say when they find out that Canada is not a Tom Tiddler's Ground, where gold and silver may be had for the mere picking up. The question occurs why these objections should be found to Englishmen, and not to Scotsmen and Irishmen. Are they not still more insular in their origin? Not exactly; both peoples have always lived in the neighborhood of a great country. The Scotch in their early generations were in the closest relations with peoples on the Continent, who knew more than themselves, and in later days have had a habit by necessity of largely going abroad to 'push their fortune,' often to England, often further. The Irish have the Celtic desire to please people, whatever their ways. It is the Englishman who has always sat on the summit of the world, where he could look down upon mankind that has most to fight with when it comes to adapting himself to condition other than his natal environment.

General Trepoff, who died at Peterhoff on Saturday night, has given another proof of the truth of the saying attributed to Bonaparte: 'Men of bronze are needed in Russia; men of iron are too soft.' Entrusted with the duty of protecting the Czar and Imperial Family in the midst of an empire in revolution his own life threatened in missions, which reached him mysteriously in the recess of the palace, surrounded by people racked by suspicion, and mortal terror, is it any wonder that he should break down under the strain and give up the ghost? He undeniably did his duty to his sovereign, as he saw it, and has died at his post rather than seek amid safer scenes that repose of nerve and heart which had become absolutely necessary. The Terrorists may well claim exultingly that they killed him, for he died as surely under the terrible strain to which they subjected him as though they had struck the fatal blow. His is a fearful revelation of the sort of existence endured and of the destiny confronting the men who are striving to stem the tide of revolution in Russia. Unable to reach the heads of the empire through the phalanxes of police and troops which surround them, the Terrorists are striking down every one in authority they can reach from governors to common policemen. Bombs and revolver shots are answered by volleys of musketry, taking effect on the most unprotected and disliked, rather than on the dangerous. Life is a ceaseless terror.

The German newspapers are incorrigible. Not satisfied with denazifying Canada because we gave a preference in our tariff to Great Britain, they are urging their government to serve Australia in the same, because she is given a preference to the Mother Country. It is said that, next to Great Britain, Germany is Australia's best customer, and therefore has a right to be treated on terms of equality with every other country. As well might Great Britain have complained and made a retaliatory tariff against Prussia because she gave free admission to the products of Saxony and against Saxony because she gave free admission to the products of Prussia. Canada never so much as thought of retaliating when the German states formed a customs union among themselves. Germany has just as much and no more right to interfere as between Australia and the United Kingdom. It is a family matter. Canada met Germany's reprisal with a reprisal. The whole war has proved very expensive to both parties. We should be better off without our punitive surtax. But, cost what it might, Canada was not willing to accept a punishment and it is very little likely that Australia will. Those German papers which propose to flog Britain's colonies for being British are silly.

Judge Bowen Rowlands, K. C., of the Birkenhead County Court Circuit, and Recorder of Swansea, died on the 14th inst. in London. He represented Cardiganshire in Parliament in the Liberal interest from 1886 to 1895. Judge Rowlands was one of the laymen nominated by the Catholic Bishops to sit on the Catholic Education Council.

The red headed Halifax Herald declares that Hon. Mr. Fielding "assassinated" every "cock robin" the Tory party have had for the last twenty years. Its refrain is "who killed the Tory 'cock robins'; I, William Stevens Fielding, I killed the Tory cock robins. I killed them with my little gun, I killed the Tory cock robins. But does not the Herald remember that Mr. Fielding is one of the most chivalrous politicians Nova Scotia ever produced. The only fault his party ever had with Mr. Fielding is that he was too generous to his opponents. No one ever heard a nasty personal allusion spoken by him. How different in this respect he is from the Tory leaders. Take any one of the Tory speeches and it will be found that Liberals are the most corrupt politicians Canada ever produced and are grafters to a man; that and personal abuse is the stock in trade out of which they construct their speeches. One will read those speeches in vain for any thing of constructive character. Not one word about a policy which would be better for Canada than the Liberal policy; the speeches begin with abuse; they are made up of abuse and they end with abuse. Political "cock robins" of that kind deserved to be killed."—Eastern Chronicle

The taking of scalps has been spoken of so commonly in the press of the United States that it has become a general practice, when speaking of a man having lost his life among the Indians, to say, "He lost his scalp." Novelists even of to-day, when locating their stories in Apache land, almost invariably scalp the victims of Apache vengeance. As a matter of fact, one can say that the Apache never took scalps. Men who have lived in the Apache country and have been closely associated with them for thirty years or more claim that no full blooded Apache ever scalped a man he killed. On the contrary, he would not touch a body after death and would throw away his weapons if stained with human blood. Their own dead the men never help to bury. This task is left to the women.—E. S. Curtis in Scribner's.

Lord Strathcona has predicted that Canada will have a population of 80,000,000 before the close of the twentieth century. There are young Canadians who will live long enough to see whether the prophecy is likely to be fulfilled. Its fulfillment would not be more wonderful than the developments that have made up the history of Canada in the eighty-six years of Lord Strathcona's busy life. If the prediction had been made in 1820 that the little struggling colonies of Upper and Lower Canada would develop into a Dominion stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and that the supposed frozen wastes of the Northwest would be grid-ironed with railways and would be attracting settlers from all parts of the world, it would have been considered quite as sanguine a forecast as the prediction which Lord Strathcona has made.

When the Conservatives came into power the net debt of Canada was $140,362,069; in 1896 it amounted to $258,497,432. By the 30th of June 1897 it was increased to $262,238,596 thus taking $3,000,000 to clean up the conservative overdrafts. The total increase of the public debt by the conservatives, during their regime of extravagance, deficits and scandals, amounted to $121,000,000. At the end of 1905, the public debt amounted to $266,224,166 and increased in nine years under the Liberal regime of less than $5,000,000, all of which was put on in the latter year. In 1904 the net debt was less than in 1897. In 1905 the expenditure on capital was $12,484,455 of which the surplus paid $7,863,089, besides there was added to the sinking fund $2,291,918.

Weldon Colpitts, of Pleasant Vale Albert Co, will bring an action against the Intercolonial Railway for damages in connection with the serious injuries sustained by Mrs. Colpitts in getting off the Maritime express at Penobscis on the evening of the 11th inst. The amount named, it is said, is $10,000, and the case has been placed in the hands of Fowler & Jones, barristers, of Sussex. Mrs. Colpitts is now considered to be on the road to recovery and expects to be able to return to her home in Pleasant Vale shortly.

A Mass meeting under the Auspices of the Lord's Day Alliance will be held in the Methodist Church next Sunday evening at 8.15 o'clock. Rev. D. W. Snider of Berlin Ontario will address the meeting on some topic relevant to the interests of the Alliance. Mr. Snider comes to us well recommended as a speaker of marked ability and one that will ably serve the interests of the cause he represents. An invitation extended to all to come and hear him.

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every taint or corrupting element.

In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers, and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood. If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and discontent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, growing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading lecturers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

REGARDING RYANS.

Evidently the Ryans are coming to the front all round the world. There's Father Ryan and a woman-poet named Ryan somewhere in Massachusetts, and Mariah Ellis Ryan in Pennsylvania, who writes novels; and a host of other Ryans elsewhere who are doing things; therefore it is no surprise to find the following in the Freeman's Journal of Sydney, Australia: "The lullaby, 'Sleep on Dear Baby,' composed by Miss Fannie Ryan, of Moosman, is gaining considerable vogue in Sydney singing circles. Song has been sung by Miss Beatrice Mercer, a member of the Fisk Jubilee Singers, now appearing at the Lyceum Hall, Sydney, and has been welcomed by the audiences as a tuneful and pleasing work capably interpreted by Miss Mercer. Miss Ryan will be remembered as the composer of the well-known 'Kawonna Waltz' and other popular compositions."

WEDDINGS.

Stevenson-Hutchinson.

The residence of Mrs. Matthew Hutchinson, Upper Wicklow, Carleton county, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday, 19th inst. at 10.30 a.m., when her daughter, Miss Helen M. Hutchinson, and Geo. S. Stevens, of Lynn, Mass., were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. A. Fenwick in the presence of near relatives and friends. After luncheon had been served, Mr. and Mrs. Stevens left for Grand Falls and other points in the northern part of the province previous to taking up residence in Lynn, Mass.

GARTLEY-CAMPBELL.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gartley at Watson Settlement was the scene of an interesting event Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 5th, when their second daughter, Ethel May, was united in marriage to Garnet Wolsey Campbell. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. W. Teed in the presence of over sixty guests. The house was prettily decorated with evergreens and flowers, and a beautiful floral arch, in the centre of which was a large bell. Under this the bridal party stood.

The bride was beautifully gowned in cream nunsveiling with trimmings of cream allover and lace and carried a handsome bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern.

The presents were numerous and costly, including several substantial cheques, showing the high esteem in which both parties are held. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome gold chain and locket, set with diamonds, which was worn during the ceremony and was much admired. After a sumptuous repast the happy couple left for their home followed by showers of rice and old slippers, and the best wishes of their future happiness.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster says the reason he did not go to Nova Scotia to help Borden out at the picnic was because he was a witness in a law suit elsewhere. Indeed Mr. Borden told the Truro picnicers that Mr. Foster was ill, said he had a letter from him to that effect. The truth is gradually coming out. Mr. Foster's law suit seems to have been at Toronto, where he appeared in good health the second day after the Truro picnic, and it was apparently the racket which the insurance commission is kicking up with some insurance matters.
