"VALLEY FARM."

The ladies and gentlemen who have for some time been most industriously rehearsing, under the careful direction of Mrs J Tilley-Brewer, for the production of "Valley Farm" must have been amply repaid for all their time and trouble by the large and enthusiastic audience that greeted their appearance Monday evening in Graham's Opera.

The cast was as follows:—

Harold Rutledge	Dr A R Currie
Perry Deane	Chas A Ryder
David Hildreth	Don Nicholson
Silas Holcomb	C H Elliott
Amesiah Keop	Harry Dunbar
Jennings	George Dunbar
Hetty Holcomb	Miss M Connell
Isabel Carney	Miss Ida Hayden
Mrs Rutledge	Miss Ada Boyer
Alvira Holcomb	Mrs J T Brewer
Lily Ann Tucker	Miss P McKibbin
Verbena	Miss Dot Brewer

Too much praise can scarcely be given these young people, for many of whom it was their first attempt. Mrs Tilley-Brewer's leading part was well-sustained. Dr A R Currie made an ideal city lover, while Miss Connell as the pretty country girl enamored with the metropolitan man was simply all that could be wished for. Charlie Ryder, the disappointed suitor for the hand of Hetty Holcomb, acted his part with considerable skill, particularly in the latter stages. Pretty Miss Ida Hayden never seemed more lovely than in her portrayal of Isabel Carney, who strove to come between Harold Rutledge and his wife. Miss Ada Boyer as the grave aristocratic mother of Harold Rutledge made a decided hit in what was really a difficult part. Miss McKibbin as the village gossip and chief borrower, delivered the goods in quaint and original style. Miss Dot Brewer was perfectly at home in her role as Verbena. George Dunbar made a good butler, while Harry Dunbar as the deaf old clock mender in love with Alvira, greatly pleased the audience. A D Nicholson was up to his usual high standard as David Hildreth. Mr C H Elliott, the Andover barrister who at short notice kindly volunteered to assist, had a difficult part, but did his work nicely, and raised many a hearty laugh by the ludicrous performances of Silas Holcomb, unfamiliar with city ways. Some fairly good local hits were sprung, and between acts specialties were introduced by Dr Currie, H Dunbar, Mrs Brewer and Mr Elliott. The latter gave the old fashioned lumberman's song

"Peter Emery" in true backwood's style, and had to respond to a most enthusiastic encore. The concert at Debec on Saturday evening was well-patronized. The financial results of the company's efforts will greatly assist the Hospital.

More Liberty.

A dispatch from Toronto conveys the assurance that this coming fall the general conference of the Methodist Church will amend the Church discipline by eliminating the famous footnote placing the ban upon theatres, dancing, card playing and other worldly pleasures of the lesser order. There has been a movement for many years tending in this direction. It is now generally felt that the crisis has come. If the church is to retain many of its best members, not to speak of reaching out and including thousands of moral young people, it is almost a necessity that the question of participating in the things we have named,—now altogether inconsistent with church membership—be made a matter not of discipline, but for the conscience to decide. Many old things are passing away. The laws of the Medes and Persians are not to-day governing the Christian Church. The gift of reason is obtaining away. Locally we presume the great majority of Church attendants, if not members, heartily approve the proposed change, if we are to judge by the society columns.

The Dramatic Co went to Lakeville Tuesday evening, and played before a large audience.

A Letter from C L Smith.

"As you are aware our car left Woodstock on March 14th containing 23 people. Four more got aboard at Canterbury Station making 27 all told, old and young. They all claimed to be more than pleased with the treatment received from the C P R officials. At Montreal Mr Sturdee came to me and asked if everything was satisfactory and inquired if there was anything needed, and at other divisional points it was the same. We had the car all to ourselves all the way and the whole party enjoyed the trip very much. The Western fever did not abate any during the journey but when we struck Calgary at 20 below zero it cooled off some. However as we took train for the North it changed and here we find no snow whatever. The Alberta Legislature is in session and I had the pleasure of an introduction to the speaker, members of the Government and some of the private members. Mr Isaac Vanvader from our town has been appointed Sheriff of Calgary. I came North with him yesterday. He is one of the wealthy men out here and is held in high esteem by the first men of the Province. Settlers are pouring in very fast. Trains are loaded. Hotels crowded and land is being picked up fast and increasing in price rapidly.

Before I left home I read in some of the papers that seeding had begun in Alberta but such is not the case. Although there is no snow the ground is frozen hard and it is very dusty here to day (Mar 20th.) It is my opinion that there will be very little grain sowed in March this year. Although they say wait till the Chinook wind strike us. It make a very sudden change. They begin sowing when only a few inches of top soil is thawed out. I met Mr Macleod of the Bank of Nova Scotia lately from Woodstock. He likes it here. There are eleven Banks in Edmonton."

The Riflemen's Revenge, or Golfers Go to Grass!

Capt Balmain of the Rifle Bowling Team wears a proud smile these days. On Tuesday evening his men met the champion Golf Team and routed them,—horse, foot and artillery. At every stage of the struggle the gallant sharpshooters were ahead. It was simply a procession. The captain secured two new stars, F W McLean and Coun McManus. These colts played like veterans. The defeated crowd when asked for explanations wink the other eye and say "Wait till you see us next Tuesday." It is certain that the riflemen will strive to make it two straight, and just as true that the golfers will do or die in their final effort. The next lineup will be about the same for the Riflemen, but the Golfers will make a few changes. They will put their regular star team in the field, and will no doubt set a merry pace for their late conquerors. Betting on the result is brisk, odds of five to four being offered on the golfers.

The score in detail:—

GENEROUS GRANTS.

The local government has voted $1500 to the Agricultural Society in aid of the proposed fall exhibition. This with the $300 promised from town will ensure a great success.

To the Centreville Society a grant of $500 has been made. This will materially assist in the erection of further and much needed building accommodation. The fall fair at Centreville will no doubt eclipse all past records.

Solicitor General Jones has done nobly in securing these two fine grants for Carleton Co. There were applications from a great many towns in the province. St John got the usual grant to a provincial exhibition.

Cheaper Golf Balls.

While golfers have a great admiration for the Haskell golf ball, they have not admired the monopoly kept up by the makers of it, and now they are jubilant on receipt of the news that in the English courts the exclusive patent of the Haskell people has been broken. The evidence of two enthusiastic golfers, Captain Stewart and Mr Fernie, caused the Haskell to lose their case. Captain Stewart testified that as far back as 1871 he made and publicly used balls constructed of elastic taken from spring-side boots, and afterwards balls made from banks of india-rubber. Mr Fernie said he made his from damaged football bladders, which he bought from little boys on the streets. Their Lordships held that the ball made by Captain Stewart embraced all the essentials of the Haskell ball, inasmuch as the core consisted of india-rubber threads wound at high tension and covered with gutta-percha. He had played with the ball openly in a way which brought him within the meaning of the words "public user" and justifies the claim for anticipation even if other people did not open the ball and discover his secret.

The balls made by Mr Fernie also involved all the essentials of the Haskell patent, but, looking at the matter on broader grounds and bearing in mind the fact that hundreds of thousands of toy balls cored in the same way had been sold and were well known, their Lordships came to the conclusion that the contention of the defendants that in the state of public knowledge in 1898 there was no subject matter for a patent and no room for invention was well founded. This means competition in the production of rubber-cored balls. Soon, it will not be necessary to pay six dollars a dozen for balls.

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Those who attended the Opera last Saturday evening had the pleasure of witnessing Robert Louis Stevenson's masterpiece (Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde) put on the boards in a manner that would suit the King's taste. Mr Fred W Pierce as Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde played his part in a manner which clearly showed that he is one of the best seen in this Burg for a number of moons. His changes were rapid and good, and he left some of the audience in a state in which they did not care about going home, especially if their road was anyway dark or lonely. McSweeney "one of the bravest" the butt of amusement, certainly had a phiz that would take first prize at a Harland carnival. Taking everything into consideration the performance was very good, and if the company ever happens to strike here again there is no reason why they could not draw crowd enough to tax the capacity of the Opera House.—(Com.)

A Lucky Strike.

The Sentinel learns on good authority that at the Auction Sale of Public School lands held in Edmonton, Alberta, on the 21st inst, a fine block containing 480 acres was knocked down to Postmaster C L Smith. The land is only three miles from the city of Strathcona. After the sale a group of capitalists offered Mr Smith a sum amounting into four figures greater than the price he paid for the land. Western papers say that he had a great piece of good fortune, and stands to realize handsomely on the transaction.

Avondale, N B, March 27th, '06.
To the Editor of Carleton Sentinel:—
We would like to express through the column of your valued paper the sincere thanks we feel towards our friends and neighbors for their unselfish and manly help in trying to save our property just consumed by fire on the 24 inst. Thanks to their heroic efforts we were able to save our dry house and lumber shed although the lumber shed was partly burned.

But we sorrowfully announce to our many customers throughout the country that our main woodworking factory is a total loss as only a few machine were saved from the devouring fire.

Again we say our hearts were touched by the kindly sympathy expressed to us in our loss and by the good practicable help in saving what was saved by our friends and neighbors.

Also thanking you the editor for the space in your paper we remain Sincerely yours,

The Insurance Inquiry.

So far the investigation into the workings of the Canadian life insurance companies has not unearthed any astounding conditions. True it is that one large and well-known company has been accused of dabbling in things contrary to statute, but no actual loss has occurred on account of these transactions. There is an agitation to appoint a commission to inquire into the manner in which the banks are run. We do not see that there is much need for this, but perhaps it is no harm to brighten up the ideas of all concerned.

How We Make You Safe. . . .

In buying the preparations that enter so largely into prescriptions, we procure those made by houses who use assayed drugs. These are drugs that have been subjected to analysis and their medical strength determined.—Such preparations cost more than many druggists care to pay, but no other should go into prescriptions.

Though we employ the highest grade drugs, our prices are low and we do not believe are ever beaten.
