Who is Their Leader?

New Brunswick sends half a dozen opposition members to the house of Commons. The one-time provincial conservative leader, Hon Geo E Foster, is now in exile. Driven out of Kings Co, abandoning York, and snowed under in St. John, he finally made Toronto a city of refuge. He is now an Ontario member, and so far as politics may be concerned, has shaken the dust of this province from his feet. Who is to take up the mantle? Certainly not Mr Wilnot. Although the senior in point of service, and occupying a front bench, he is more fitted for anything else than leadership. Mr Crockett of York is a mere stripling, who may some day make his mark, but will be forced to stand aside for the present. Mr Ganong although able enough in certain respects, is indifferent, and is said to have no further aspirations. Dr Daniel is scarcely a possibility, and his colleague, Doctor Stockton, although able and clever, is not in the physical condition which leadership demands. There remains Mr George W Fowler of Kings Albert and the weight of evidence points to the view that he is the young giant to whom the faithful look up. Mr Fowler is undoubtedly a clever, though somewhat erratic person, and is known to be in good circumstances financially, as well as possessing a strong hold on his constituency. He is the leading spirit and chief stockholder in the company which owns and controls the Gleaner, the leading conservative organ of this province. We read in contemporaries of many acts of kindness perpetrated by Mr Fowler. One locality in his own constituency has to thank him for the comparatively recent erection of a house of worship and a subscription of a hundred dollars towards the salary of the minister. He it was who followed so closely upon the heels of Mr Haggart in criticising the statements made by Mr Emmerson in the annual ICR debate. Mr Fowler's financial ability, eloquence and genial ways, coupled with a most attractive personality, fit him for the position. In spite of his rise, and the hopes he may be building on the prospects of the future, we believe it will be many a moon ere he draws a dollar salary as a cabinet member. He may make a good provincial leader, but he and his associates are destined for the political wilderness during the present generation.

Who is the Lucky Lady?

In this paper will be found the large and important announcement of Sullivan Bros, proprietors of the Four Big Stores. These gentlemen are starting a grand voting contest to determine who is the most popular lady in Carleton County. With every purchase, according to the terms of their advertisement, they will allow one vote for each ten cents. To the lady who receives the greatest number of votes by Christmas Eve, they will present a fine $250 piano, or $200 in cash, as she may choose. This is a bona fide offer. The firm is well known. They run a large grocery store, the bowling alley, the Palm Garden, and are opening the new meat and fish market. Frank and James Sullivan are both Woodstock boys who after gaining valuable commercial training in the great republic, decided to do business at home on the plan that secures a quick turnover with small profits. To make the people in the County more familiar with the bargains they give in the grocery line they have inaugurated this great voting contest, with the choice of two magnificent prizes. Read carefully the ad that appears in this paper. Remember the firm pays transportation charges according to the terms of the ad. When you come to town call at the grocery and inquire about this great contest. When you make your purchase record your votes for the lady of your choice. Women of Carleton County, which of you will be the most fortunate one?

Won't This Be Fine?

We, the undersigned, challenge the following men, viz, Messrs N F Thorne, Chas Comben, Wm Balmain, J S Creighton, George Mitchell and Wm Dickinson, to a match on the candlepins at the Bowling Alley on Thursday evening, the 5th prox.

Charles Dickens on the Vitagraph.

One of the most important and enthralling Vitagraph Dramas ever produced will be seen among other attractions at the Opera House on Thursday evening, April 5th.

The picture in question is entitled "The Modern Oliver Twist" or "The Life of a Pickpocket". Copyright, 1906, by the Vitagraph Company of America.

Nearly every one is familiar with this great masterpiece of fiction from the pen of Charles Dickens. The dramatic possibilities have been worked out to a high degree of perfection in this Vitagraph Production.

Little Oliver is picked up by the "Artful Dodger" and taken to Fagin's den where he is taught to pick pockets. All the scenes familiar to readers of Dickens follow in realistic succession. Oliver is befriended by Mr Browlow. Bill Sykes and his pal force Oliver to aid them in robbing Mr Browlow's house—poor Oliver is shot. Bill Sykes kills the devoted Nancy and is finally captured with Fagin and his accomplices in the thieves' den. A wonderful and dramatic picture story. Don't miss it.
