In A Position To Know.

(From the Calgary Heeald.) RB Bennett, when in Winnipeg, opined that Mr Haultain would have done much better had he come out straight for national schools a little earlier in the fight in Saskatchewan. Mr. Bennett was in a position to know. He came out straight for na tional schools early in the Alberta election; he did not wait until driven into it; he was Johnny-on-the spot when the bell rang; he carried one seat and he himself went out with

THE SOUTH HITS BACK.

Forsyth, Ga., Dec. 20th., 1905. To the Editor of Carleton Sentinel:-Enclosed a clipping which I hope you will give room in your columns. It is in accord with my free sample in my letter of Oct 31st. It shows your readers a little of what the southern people have to contend with since emancipation. Before the negroes were free the southern people had no such trouble with ser vants or as your people would say of the coal mining district. hired help. The word servant cuts your people but here it is thought fathomage system goes on there, all nothing of especially is it satisfactory with the blacks. They ask when applying for a job if you do not want a servant, that is to say when they apply which is very seldom. I got a letter today from my niece in Florida whose husband has negro labor altogether and she being a rather delicate lady with one child and has all her own work to do ex cept what little she can get out of the trifling negro women who come in which the library is chiefly kept | in to do a days work from 8 to 9 a.m. and demand to quit at 3 p. m.. After the department comprised 27,870 leaving her house in a worse condiion than when she came with her filth and slouchy work then demands 75 cts for the so called days' work. How would this sit on the nerves of a nice bluenose housekeeper? It would suit all who are in favor of and will vote for a negro city father or councillor. I hope your people will have more pride and better taste than vote a son of Ham into an important office in the town of my lock and key, and only permitted to young manhood and my pride.

I have received a few sample Room of the Museum, known as the copies of the Press of your town and it has much readable matter in it. I hope you will all get on in good feeling and harmony like all good HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS.

W. W. CORY,

They bring the news that a number of men well known on this coast, including another Victoria boy, all of whom were believed to have been lost at sea, are languishing in a Russian prison far up the Amur River.

Coal Mining in New Zealand.

The best and only district where coal mining is carried on in New Zealand is the district inland from West Port, in the South Island. Should a miner make up his mind to go there he will find mining different from mining in Britain. The route would be from Britain to Wellington, and by a coasting vessel to West Port, thence inland to Miller ton, where he would be in the centre

Very little of the tonnage or classes of workmen being engaged by the day. The shift is eight hours established by law, and the rate of wages is fixed by a conciliation board every two years, so that strikes and other labour troubles are unknown. The rate of wages, as a large turpentine still. He works fixed at present, are from 10s to 14s per day for fillers, blasters, timbermen, &c, and the rate of living is rather below Britain. Young men batch, or hire huts from others. Married men, of course, have homes of their own, and very seldom take boarders, unless to oblige for a time till a hut is got.

The mines up to a short time ago were private property, but within the last year the Government has started one or two mines. Work is generally to be got, though there is not a great demand for coal miners, and sometimes there is a slackness, which causes the dismissal of a proportion of the men employed. At the present time work is better, regular employment being got at all the mines.

I use the word " miner," there being no pits. All the mines are situated up the hillsides, the coal being brought down the hill by gravitation. I would advise a miner not to be too particular about his employment for a time, to take what every man has a right to his party comes first, and, using a Yankee phrase, to "keep his eyes shinned." latter going our way for it seems to There is money to be made in New be the way to success and prosperity | Zealand, and the country is one of the best to live in especially for families .- P. When Michael Burke joined his brother James in America the money he took over, added to James's savings, enabled them to go into the ice business. In course of time their custom increased, and it become necessary for them to have an office. In this James soon installed a nice roll-top desk.
