Letter From Georgia.

Dear Sentinel:

This is August 23rd 1907. And our summer months will soon be gone for this year, but the hot weather has not left us yet. We have had fine growing weather for cotton for several weeks and under these conditions cotton has made rapid growth, and bids fair to be a good harvest in many sections. Picking will soon begin now. Then the hum of the gin will be heard all over the cotton belt. This scribe has only 6 acres planted and from this I hope to get 4 bales, yet some disaster may come to disappoint my anticipations, but it looks well now. The weed is shouldered high and well fruited.

Corn is very good here. The fodder is being pulled and stacked, and put in barns as the case may be.

Our State Legislature has adjourned and one of the best laws they have made was the state prohibition act to come into effect January 1st next. So the Empire State of the South takes her stand among the dry states in the Union. This is a long stride in the right direction and the next will be to properly execute these laws. This we hope to do.

I see George Mallory has had a close call by the electric arrows of the Almighty, entering his quiet home, quite unexpectedly no doubt. Geo., I am glad you and family were not hurt, and I know you are glad too. How important to be ready. Lighting has done much damage here this summer. Many have been killed. It struck in my cotton field and killed a small patch of it. How much the human family have to be thankful for, and yet how careless we are about giving praise to God for his protection and care over us!

Now I will tell you of a freak of nature. Two days ago I called to see a near neighbor, a widow lady Mrs Goins 88 years of age. She has been paralyzed and helpless for months and is a mere skeleton, and now comes the interesting part of my story. For 40 years her hair has been very thin, only a mere wisps, but now in the last 4 months a new lot of brown hair as fine as a baby's covers her head thickly all over, four inches long. This is no hearsay or far fetched tale, but came under my own eye and touch. As I looked on this aged mother with her sunken eyes and shriveled hand and arms, it occurred to me?" "What is man that thou art mindful of him or the son of man that thou visited him.

I am sorry those few logs in the river that some one claims, and the other fellow possesses, should cause so much feeling among friends, let everybody do right and keep the commandments and all men will love their neighbours.

Ex-Coun Stevens.

We notice a small article in our valued contemporary The Press stating that Mayor Munro will not be a candidate for re-election. As His Worship is a frequent contributor to that sheet we presume the article correctly states his attitude. As to Mr Stevens, we believe he is a good square man, who would prove an excellent mayor, and if he decides to run again, it will take a very strong candidate to keep him home, providing there is no treachery or wholesale desertion as was the case two years ago, when his conservative friends, for whom he had worked with all his might in the past and from whom he had good reason to expect better treatment, voted pretty solidly for his opponent, and after the election by way of consoling the defeated candidate, let it be whispered around that it was necessary to give Stevens a good whipping in order to make Munro appear a wonderfully strong candidate for something higher. Now, it seems, after using Mr Stevens as a chopping block the Mayor and his friends are perfectly willing to let him have the chair, their purpose having already been served. How better it would have been had his Worship and his backers been content to use Mr Stevens fairly in the first place, when the latter agreed to make way for Munro this year if that gentleman would have been content to wait a brief twelve months? We imagine ex-Coun Stevens is far too bright to be caught by the crumbs that fall from the Mayor's political table.

Tuesday evening at eight thirty in Young's Hall Ivanhoe Lodge No 7 K P will be re-organized with a large charter membership. Officers will be elected. All member of the Order in town are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served. Any person wishing further information will do well to call on R E Holyoke.

An Aged Servant of God.

Speaking of Rev Joseph Noble, the Montreal Star says:—

Rev Mr Noble has been in the active ministry for over 66 years, and during that time has participated in all the important events connected with the history of the Baptist denomination in the Maritime Provinces. He is the only person now living who was present at the first Free Baptist conference.

Joseph Noble was born in what was then Wakefield, York county, now Brighton, Carleton county, in August, 1815. He is the son of Benjamin Noble, and his grandfather, Seth Noble, was the first Congregational minister in New Brunswick. The latter organized a church at Sheffield and also at Bangor, Me., to which latter city he gave its present name. Rev Joseph Noble's mother was Susannah Currier, of Wakefield. Mr Noble was educated at home. There were common schools in those days, but he says, "They were very common indeed," and he could learn more from his father.

He was ordained in 1841, and took up mission work, his first pastorate being in St John, where he founded the present Waterloo street Baptist church. He had charges all over the province, and never shirked the responsibility retiring about five years ago, when he felt that increasing age should be considered. He did not desire to give up preaching, but intimated his intention to remain in the ministry, although not caring to assume the duties of a circuit. Since this partial retirement he has preached almost every Sunday, and is seemingly as vigorous as when he was forty years younger. Mr Noble is in excellent health.

Seventy-three years ago, when the dissensions between members of the Baptist denomination in New Brunswick resulted in a split in the church by which the Free Baptists became a separate organization, Mr Noble, then a boy of 17 years, went with his father to attend the Free Baptist conference, to which body his father belonged. He has seen the entire life of that denomination, and for the greater part of the past half century devoted much effort towards bringing the two bodies together again. Twenty-three years ago the first active step towards union was taken, at the Free Baptist conference held in Fredericton, which was attended by a delegation from the Baptist convention of the Maritime Provinces. Mr Noble was one of the conference committee appointed to consider the union proposals. Later he served on every committee chosen towards this end and his earnest advocacy of the scheme was greatly instrumental in bringing about the successful culmination of negotiations in October, 1905.

His Worship the Mayor has a couple of editorials in this week's issue of the Anti-Dam organ, the burden of which seems to be what a bad Company it is that has the contract, and what a wonderfully clever chap Mayor Munro really is. As to the arc circuit all we have to say is a repetition of our warning of last week. It is dangerous to life and property, and if the Town Council will not have it fixed up right away it is hard to predict just what blame may not be placed against them in the event of further calamity. It is the bounden duty of the Council to put the arc system in perfect condition, and if the contract, as interpreted by the Courts, may determine that some other body of men are really responsible, let the cost be collected from them, by legal process if necessary. The Town Council, as the guardians of the ratepayers, have this duty staring them in the face. Life is too sacred, property is too valuable, to remain in jeopardy. The Company contend the onus is on the Council. The Mayor is of the opposite belief. Let the Council do their duty first, and look to the courts for relief if the Mayor's contention be sound. Ancient Rome was burning when Nero fiddled. Shall we have a full orchestra of seven pieces performing, the Mayor playing first violin, while modern Woodstock goes up in smoke? No, a thousand times, No! Let the Council, the only body to whom the citizens may rightfully look for relief, rise to the occasion, and do their duty.

J T G Carr has already received his first fall shipment of Ladies Coats and Skirts. These are nobby goods and will soon go. If you want something right up to date you can't get it now. (tf.)

About Perfumes.

We have made our stock of Perfumer embrace the best odors of the best makers.

For instance, the Violet Extract made by a certain firm surpasses, in our judgment, that of any other make. At the same time the Rose Odor made by the same firm may not be so good as that of another perfumer. Hence we select one brand of violet, another of white rose, etc, thus giving our patrons a selection of the best to be had without having to pay any fancy prices.
