This is Nov 5th 1907 and our little city is on the upward grade. Real estate is advancing. People are in good humour. The weather is of the Indian summer variety. We had only a quarter of an inch of rain in Oct. A very fine fall to gather crops. The cotton is largely harvested and much of it is sold, yet the warehouses are full of cotton held for a better price. When that time will come no man knows. What has been marketed has been sold to satisfy obligations. The Farmers Union seems determined to hold for higher prices. During all this time the human race is marching on as they were in Noah's day, marrying and being given in marriage, being born and dying.

Curious things happen here as well as other places. I will suggest that my friend, one of your readers, who dislikes to hear so much about negroes does not read this little unwritten history that occurred in our town recently. The story runs as follows:—Bill Parks and Mattie Hugely, both colored, got in a peck of trouble because of the fact they were married Sunday and are not married either. Parker who is only sixteen years old, had another negro to secure the license from the issuer in the name of Bill Rogers, and he was married Sunday as Bill Rogers. They had hid themselves away to the woods and were married secretly and the trouble began Monday morning when the colored parson who married them returned the license to the issuer and the parents of Bill and Mattie objected to the match. It developed that Bill was only sixteen and Mattie only fifteen years of age, and Parks had the license secured in the name of Bill Rogers in order to get around the fact that he was not of marriageable age. The question now seems to be, are Bill Parks and Mattie Hugely married? Their parents claim they are not and are keeping them apart.

How curious things get mixed up in this world. Now Mr Editor I will tell you a few circumstances that have come under my observation here among my white friends. The first of these was a man I admired and knew for years, whose name I withhold. He had a family, but his wife sickened and died, and was buried and when the days of mourning were over, this good man after casting about, decided he saw a good opportunity to replenish his lovely home with a new wife, so during these days of outlook on the father's part, and his appreciations rested on the object of his love. Now both father and son's love focused on the one and same family, where two attractive sisters awaited a change of name and surroundings. I can't say if there was a private understanding between father and son how these prizes should be divided or not. However the father chose the younger and the son the older sister. There may have been some good philosophy in this when we consider that perhaps the father thought his son needed a mother, while he may have decided the younger needed a father, so I presume it was all arranged to suit, and as far as I know they are all alive and happy today. The other case was a very prominent physician who at quite an advanced age lost his wife, and sought and found a handsome young lady with whom he lived happily for a number of years, when he died, and left a young widow in a cold world, but the world was not cold to her long before she found a warm spot in the heart and affections of her step-son, to whom she soon was wedded. They too are no doubt happy on the way. These were all people of good families and respected, so see curious things happen all over the world. When I was a boy a thing a little out of the ordinary happened in Victoria Corner as it was then known. I may not correctly give the names, but as near as I remember the young lady was named Sarah Ann, and her uncle's name was Jim. They married and it created quite a flutter in society at that time. This was perhaps sixty years ago. If they are living now they will rank among the old people. At that time most all the inhabitants of Victoria Corner were either Boyers, Shaws or Dickinsons but I recollect there was one other man there whose name was Moran. He and his wife kept a public house, or she did according to reports, and run it her own way, but he was a tooth charmer. He charmed my brother's tooth and it never hurt him after.

Thus is mankind, all tending onward and downward to the grave. I see Mrs Scott Emory is dead. I knew her husband well, and his father. I am sorry the crop of potatoes is so short. This has become our money crop to a large extent. Good luck to you all.

SHAKE IN A BOTTLE.

Advice of Noted Authority, Also Gives a Simple Home Prescription.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. Just try this simple home made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

The Raymond Boys.

Editor Sentinel,

SIR,—I wish to make mention of a family of Woodstock boys who have gone to the States and made good. I refer to the Raymonds. George J. one of the brothers, is head of The Raymond Syndicate, which this year is doing a million dollars business. The other week when I was in Boston this gentleman sent a present of two dozen carts and sleds, each, for the boys and girls of his former town. His firm has a large store in Washington Street, another in Tremont Street, and employ hundreds of clerks. In Boston it is a familiar sign to see "Sold out to Raymond," as nothing is too big for him to tackle. He has a big stack of the ready coin, and what he wants he comes close to getting. About 20 miles out of the city he has a 360 acre farm, well stocked with cattle, horses, sheep, poultry, etc., and a fine orchard. There is a fine fish pond as well, and the place is most attractive. The last fourth of July he had the misfortune to lose the thumb and the tips of three fingers from his left hand through the discharge of a cannon cracker. It's pretty hard to catch him taking a holiday, for he has so many things to look after. It goes without saying that he is a friend of the poor. He has given tons of goods on Boston Common to the poor of the city. Then again goods bought from the Syndicate are far lower in price for equal value than anywhere else in the city.

Mallory Raymond is another of the family doing well. He runs a big skate factory. He has had a lot of experience, having conducted rinks in England, New Zealand and South Africa. He makes the best roller skates in the world. His big factory, which employs 200 hands, is in the Charlestown district. S Rice Raymond is the head buyer for the Raymonds, and is kept busy on the go the year through. The Raymonds are doing well and are always glad to give a hearty handshake and welcome to anyone from Woodstock.

Thanking you, sir, for the space.

Yours very truly

WM F BLAKE.

The Session.

Parliament will assemble on Thursday, 24th inst.

In all probability this will be the last session of the House of Commons. It goes without saying that on this account many a member will emblazon his ideas on the pages of Hansard.

These addresses, delivered to perhaps little more than a bare quorum, half of whom are asleep, the rest reading or writing, will be sent by the mail sack all over the Dominion.

Of course it will be a "scandal session." The Opposition tried to work up several first class instances of graft last session, but from their standpoint the result was not very gratifying.

Judging from straws indicating the direction of the wind, the occupants of the treasury benches will not be wholly on the defensive. Fire can be very often employed to fight fire, and there will surely be plenty of smoke on Parliament Hill.

Sir Wilfrid will meet the House with two new ministers, Hon Wm Pugsley and Hon George P Graham, each of whom is expected to loom large in the public eye. The house and country will anxiously await the trying out of these gentlemen.

Hon Mr Graham has charge of the Railways & Canals. He is an able man, has had his eye on the federal arena for some time, and may be depended upon to take care of himself in the Commons. A journalist by profession, he is ready of speech, quick witted and genial, a heavy hitter in debate, and willing at any time to take his share in the battle.

Of our own Mr Pugsley what shall we say? They know him by reputation at least all over the country. Billy McLean M P in the Toronto World says it would not be surprising if Dr Pugsley seized the laboring oar. There are members of the opposition ready to meet him, but the acute William of the West sees in his smooth namesake of the East a seasoned campaigner, and perhaps more dangerous antagonist than any other occupant of the treasury benches.

It looks as if there will be a big duel early in the session between the leader of the Opposition and the new Minister of Public Works. This will be for blood, and it should be pretty safe betting that when the fighting dies away the honors will be found with the suave New Brunswicker.

There will be one or two absentees whose departure cannot escape notice. The Minister of Justice is temporarily out of action through illness. It may be late in the session before he can appear. Then there is the ex-member for Labelle, who having put his hand to the plough, seems disinclined to turn his back upon the self-imposed task of ousting the Gouin provincial administration at Quebec. Bourassa is a great tribune, perhaps Canada has no stronger debater. At any rate no man in the Commons has it on him when it comes to genuine jaw-swatting. He will be missed, yet scarcely mourned.

Many eyes will be upon the ex-Minister of Railways. Hon Mr Emmerston is far from considering himself effaced from the political map. His friends say he has been quietly accumulating a trunkful of spicy pages from the lives of certain bitter opponents, and should he lift the lid there may be consternation among certain who number themselves in Mr Borden's following.

Just what legislation is to be advanced we are not in a position to say. Very little has been promised. The outlook is for a lengthy session, largely consisting of ante-campaign preparation on the part of each of the organizations.
